Vast Lands at Stake

By the Associated Press

Vichy, May 19.—French antiaircraft batteries were reported tonight to have begun firing on British warplanes over Syria and official sources here indicated an imminent French offensive attempt to regain empire territory now held by "De Gaullist rebels."

These swift developments came as Admiral Darlan left suddenly for Paris presumably to continue Franco-German collaboration negotiations and the German-controlled Paris press again assailed American diplomacy as "flour blackmail."

"France cannot permit a foreign power to intervene" against her efforts to get back the territory held by Gen. Charles De Gaulle and his followers, an official French information office statement said.

"Rebel" Messages Cited

The statement particularly cited messages written by "rebel French" military leaders and dropped by English planes on Syrian towns as proof "that one of the objects of English politics is to separate Syria from metropolitan France."

A dispatch from Beirut, Lebanon, said French batteries had fired at British planes yesterday.

Germany already has agreed to release approximately 100,000 of the 1,800,000 French prisoners of war, and Telemondial, an official news agency, said "still more important results of the negotiations would be announced soon."

The followers of Gen. De Gaulle hold a huge section of French Equatorial Africa, Gabon, the Cameroons, and the Chad territory, a section of approximately 1,000,000 square miles with a population of more than 3,400,000.

This land stretches from the West African coast northward to South-

Russians Maneuver Near Iran; Joint Action With Nazis Seen

Ankara, May 19.—Russia and Germany would appear to be arranging some sort of joint action in the Middle East, according to diplomatic reports received here as the Soviet army began spring maneuvers with a considerable concentration of troops at Tashkent, near the Iranian frontier.

The information available is vague and scanty, but there are indications that Reichsfuehrer Hitler is having his way in shoving all Soviet aspirations eastward out of Europe.

Shipping interests in Istanbul have received the news of negotiations now under way for an accord whereby Germany would be able to employ Russian ships on the Black Sea to transport war material to Russian ports for transshipment to Iran.

Iranian-Iraqi negotiations are now going on in Bagdad for the expansion of commercial relations between the two countries and it is thought the question of developing better ways of transporting munitions is being discussed.

It has been believed here for some time that the Reich will seek to use the Black Sea for the shipment, in quantity, of materials and possibly soldiers, across Russian Caucasus to Iran and Iraq.

Reports are current in Istanbul that Russia has relinquished her claims to a share in the control of the Danube delta and in exchange it is believed that Germany has offered certain unknown gains in the Middle East to Moscow. The general assumption is these will come in Iran.

Russia's traditional quest for warm water ports has always aimed in the two directions of Istanbul and the Indian Ocean. Istanbul is out of the question and it is believed developments in Iran may soon be forthcoming.

British Smash Twin Assault Against Egypt

2 Axis Tank Columns Pushed Back Into Libya On Invasion Attempt

By International News Service

Cairo, May 19.—Fall of Italy's last big Abyssinian stronghold of Amba Alaji, along with the Duke of Aosta and 7,000 of his troops, was followed tonight by announcement that a new attempt by two German-Italian armored columns to invade Egypt in force had been smashed.

Supported by Royal Air Force and South African bombers that destroyed or crippled many tanks, vanguard detachments of Britain's imperial mechanized forces were stated to have hammered the Axis columns back into Libya.

Cross Frontier, Then Withdraw

The furious battle occurred yesterday south of the northwest Egyptian coastal town of Salum which the British today declared to be still in their possession, despite Axis claims to the contrary.

The two Axis columns, striking north and south of the Libyan border port of Capuzzo, were "supported by numerous tanks," the British said. They "crossed the frontier," the communique added, "but withdrew after they were engaged by the forward elements of our mechanized forces."

Relating the aerial aspect of the engagement, an R. A. F. bulletin said a "large formation" of British and South African bombers "attacked enemy tanks between Fort Capuzzo and Halfaya Pass yesterday," adding:

"A number of the tanks was put out of action and serious damage was inflicted on enemy motor transport."

R. A. F. Raids Bengasi, Derna

British combat planes at the same time patrolled the Libyan-Egyptian battle area, ready to meet German Stukas or fighters but, according to the communique, "there were no decisive engagements."

After nightfall, heavy R. A. F. bombers raided the Axis-held Libyan ports of Bengasi and Derna and were stated to have caused wide-

Pass Shipyard Pickets Today, AFL Men Told

Two Works Affected; Unions Plan to Enter Seven More Tomorrow

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Word last night that American Federation of Labor union members were planning to go through the picket lines at two of the 11 strike-bound shipyards on the West Coast today injected a disturbing note into a generally improving defense labor situation.

Dispatches from San Francisco said federation leaders had directed their members to ignore the A. F. L.-C. I. O. machinist strike at two yards today and seven more tomorrow.

Earlier, despite two strike outbreaks affecting 1,000 men, the troubled labor picture appeared to be clearing, with termination of a one-day strike of 100,000 Pennsylvania hard coal miners.

There also had been hope that a back-to-work meeting tonight in San Francisco would end the shipyard work stoppage on $500,000,000 of defense orders.

Miners Return to Jobs Today

Other developments included an announcement by five major railroad operator unions of a concerted national drive for a 30 per cent wage increase; the beginning of efforts by the National Defense Mediation Board to end the ten-day strike against 60 logging and sawmill operators in the Seattle region, and the settlement of a ten-day strike at the United States Reduction Co., East Chicago.

The coal strike, which became effective Sunday morning, was ended when terms of a new two-year contract were agreed upon by anthracite operators and John L. Lewis, president of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers.

In ordering the men back to work this morning, Lewis said the agreement was a "substantial achievement" and that there was "every reasonable expectation of more em-

Last Year's Profits Tax Plan Revived

Treasury Seeking One Billion More In Program Aimed At Arms Income

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Teasury yesterday unexpectedly revived its drastic 1940 excess profits tax plan in a comprehensive new corporate tax program striking directly at defense profits.

Carrying the indorsement of President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, the plan sought $1,096,000,000 additional from corporate surtaxes and excess profits levies ranging from 33 to 65 per cent.

Undersecretary of the Treasury John L. Sullivan asked the House Ways and Means Committee to tap all above-normal corporate earnings by accepting in substance excess profits methods Congress sidetracked last year.

Cites Ineffectiveness

Sullivan told the committee the present law does not effectively reach defense profits and excess profits.

"We must adopt extraordinary measures to deal with our extraordinary situation," Sullivan testified. "We cannot expect to devise a painless tax bill. The situation calls for sacrifices."

Should Congress reject the proposed schedules, Sullivan recommended it abandon the existing profits tax which "fails to tax large amounts of profits that it properly should reach" and increase corporation income taxes by enough to produce the revenue asked.

Schedule of Levies

Over and above a proposed 6 per cent surtax on corporate income, levies under the new plan would range as follows on profits, after allowing as credit up to 10 per cent of earnings on invested capital:

33 per cent on excess profits net income up to 15 per cent of invested capital.

52 per cent on 15 to 30 per cent of invested capital.

Sixty-five per cent on profits in excess of 30 per cent of invested capital.

Rates compared with levies ranging from 25 per cent on the first 10 per cent of excess profits to 40 per cent on all over the second 10 per cent under the 1940 plan. But the method was the same, with modifications.

Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee, who fought the old plan to its death, is now ill, but his fight may be taken up by Senate colleagues. Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, announced he will issue a statement today.

Combined with corporate income tax proposals, Sullivan estimated his profits-tax plan would raise a net of $303,000,000 in excess of the

Congress Told President Has No Requests

Possibility Exists He May Submit Special Message On War Situation

President Roosevelt yesterday advised Congressional leaders that he has no further legislative proposals to submit to Congress at this time, it was reported last night.

The decision apparently barred the possibility that the President would submit the convoy question or related issues to Congress for action, although leaders said the question of convoys was not discussed.

Possibility that the President might send a special message to Congress on the foreign situation was conceded by one of the legislative conferees, but he said there was no definite word that one would be sent. If it was, he said, there would be no legislation attached.

White House Secretary William D. Hassett said the President "at present" does not plan to send a message to Congress on international affairs.

Some speculation on whether the President might have some unusual move in mind followed announcement late yesterday that his Tuesday press conference, regularly at 4

President Calls Lubin As Lease-Lend Adviser

President Roosevelt last night called in Isador Lubin, commissioner of Labor Statistics, as his economic adviser on the $7,000,000,000 lease-lend program.

While Lubin's appointment was not announced officially, it was learned he will head a division of economic defense, designed to check and counter the Axis barter drive for world trade.

Lubin, now also a deputy director of the Office of Production Management, headed by William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, will be closely associated with Harry L. Hopkins, director of the $7,000,000,000 aid-to-democracies program.

p. m., would be held at 10:30 this morning.

Meanwhile, it was learned that President Roosevelt has selected Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia to head a new Government agency to organize civilian defense.

LaGuardia, who lunched at the White House yesterday, reportedly accepted with the understanding he will continue as Mayor of New York.

The new agency, known as the Office of Civilian Defense, would be set up by the President under an executive order and give every civilian a chance to do his part for defense, it was said.

LaGuardia, in his new job, it was reported, would help coordinate

Rep. Case Offers Bill to Acquire French Bases

A bill authorizing the United States to acquire French possessions and property in the Western Hemisphere was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Case (Democrat), South Dakota.

Case proposed that the State Department be directed to negotiate with France for the acquisition of Martinique, Guadaloupe, St. Pierre and Miquelon in the Atlantic, Clipperton in the Pacific, French Guiana in South America and "such ships, airplanes and cargoes as the French government may care to sell."

U. S. to Release Princess Stephanie, Friend of Nazis

San Francisco, May 19 (AP).—Maj. Lemuel B. Schofield, head of the United States Immigration Service, said tonight that Princess Stephanie Hohenlohe, of Hungary, held for several weeks for deportation, would be released immediately.

The order of deportation against the Hungarian noblewoman, however, will remain in force and her whereabouts and activities will be known at all times to the Immigration Department.

[Attorney General Jackson, on May 10, said Princess Hohenlohe, who has been said to have close contacts with high Nazi representatives in this country, "has been telling us some very interesting things." Jackson added that "we feel much better natured toward her now."—Editor's note.]

2 Police Officials Of D. C. Reported Ready to Retire

Two high-ranking police officials were reported yesterday to be planning retirement this summer. They are Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, 62, chief of detectives and veteran of 32 years' service, and Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, 60, assistant chief of police, a member of the force for 37 years.

Thompson, who began a 30-day vacation yesterday, has been in poor health in recent months, suffering from a blood clot in his leg. He is expected to resign at the end of the leave should his leg fail to heal.

Ill for a year, Edwards is also on leave until August 1. At headquarters it is said that his resignation has already been turned in.

Proctor Upholds A. M. A. Conviction

Convictions of the American Medical Association and the District Medical Society on antitrust law charges were upheld yesterday by Justice James M. Proctor, of the District Court.

The justice disposed of half a dozen technical motions in this memorandum:

"All pending motions in various forms looking to the granting of a new trial are severally denied. The clerk will enter the proper orders."

The societies were convicted of violating the antitrust laws by opposing Group Health Association, Inc., when it was organized four years ago. Twenty individual physicians, many of them officers of the societies, were acquitted.

Barbara Hutton Weds Count Haugwitz-Reventlow

Barbara Hutton, 29-year-old heiress to the Woolworth fortune, was married to Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow, 32, in a civil ceremony at Santa Barbara, Calif., yesterday.

The bride, who was divorced from Cary Grant, film star, in March, 1941, is the mother of a 3-year-old daughter, Lance.

The count, a Swedish nobleman, is a former husband of Woolworth heiress Woolworth Donahue.

Bioff Trial Delayed; U. S. Needs Him

Los Angeles, May 19 (AP).—On the ground that he has become highly important in national defense, William Bioff, film labor leader, today obtained postponement of his trial on charges of evading payment of $85,000 income taxes for 1936 and 1937.

Bioff's trial was set for June 24, but was put over until the September term of court.

Defense Attorney George M. Breslin told the court Bioff was the only suitable and available man to prevent strikes when Hollywood technicians were sent to produce military training films.

Defense Housing Tied Up

350 Walk Out at Indianhead Over Employment of C.I.O.Men

Defense housing work in the vicinity of the Naval Powder Factory at Indianhead, Md., shut down yesterday at noon with the walk-out of approximately 350 workmen employed on some 650 houses in the project.

An official of the Washington Building Trades Council (A. F. L.), said the walkout had been ordered after one contractor had hired C. I. O. workers on one section of the project.

Strikers include plumbers, carpenters, bricklayers and lathers, it was said. The project, which was started March 20, is not yet halfway through the construction stage.

Houses are being constructed for defense workers at the Naval Powder Factory to meet demands of rapidly increasing production for national defense.

Construction work on the project was given out to six large contracting firms. Nearly 50 subcontractors also are involved in the work, it was said.

Construction work on the naval reservation has not been affected by the walk-out, officers said. It was pointed out that the off-reservation project was started to fill the needs of workers who had come to engage in Government work and who were faced with a housing shortage.

Workmen at the scene said that demands for pay increases were involved in the walk-out. A contractor stated that the problem was a jurisdictional dispute.

Broadcasts Earlier Had Offered Hope Liner Was Safe; 138 Americans Aboard

By the Associated Press

New York (Tuesday), May 20. A British Broadcasting Co. announcement that "it has learned with regret of the loss of the Egyptian steamer Zamzam in the South Atlantic early today minimized previous radio reports from London indicating the liner, carrying many Americans, might be safe.

The report added that "60 American citizens and 23 Canadians were on board, as well as the British-American ambulance unit, which was being carried to the Free French forces in the Middle East."

138 Americans Believed Aboard

"This unit included 20 vehicles lavishly fitted with X-ray and other valuable equipment."

Other sources placed the number of Americans aboard at 138.

The Associated Press was informed by its Berlin correspondent shortly after midnight, "authorized sources say they know nothing about Zamzam."

Two London broadcasts heard here earlier had indicated the possibility that the Zamzam, an 8,229-ton motorship 26 days overdue on a voyage to Africa with 322 persons, might be safe.

No Word Since April 9

A short time later the Berlin radio was heard to state that the Zamzam had sunk "en route from Pernambuco (Recife, Brazil) to Capetown."

Although there was no official word that the Zamzam had been heard from since leaving Recife, April 9, for Capetown, where she was due April 23, a commentator on the British radio said at 7:30 tonight:

"It's good news by the way that has just come in that the Zamzam may be safe after all. We were not less sorry than you about the presumed fate of the Americans on board; let's hope it's true that the gallant band of disinterested workers have in fact escaped the fury of those modern pirates, who took their orders from Berlin."

News to the Admiralty

There was no explanation of the source of the "good news."

(In London both the admiralty and the naval affairs division of the ministry of information said the B. B. C. report was "all news to them.")

Earlier, Edward R. Murrow, C. B. S. correspondent in London, said in a broadcast to this country:

"The latest news to reach London concerning the reported sinking of the Zamzam . . . quotes the American vice consul in Alexandria as saying that the ship was safe at 7:30 Sunday night but he adds that her present whereabouts is unknown."

A 2-year-old girl was killed by a truck in front of her home yesterday, the District's thirty-second death of the year. In Alexandria, a Camp Lee soldier was fatally injured when hit by an automobile.

Mary Nancy Tear, daughter of Mrs. Phyllis Tear, 465 H Street Northwest, ran into the side of a truck, police said, and fell beneath the right rear dual wheel. She was taken to Emergency Hospital, where she died a short time later.

Police listed the driver as Abraham Borak, 54, of 1746 Thirty-third Place Southeast.

An inquest will be conducted by Dr. J. A. Sims, Alexandria coroner, at 12:30 on Saturday into the death of Private Julius Fuller, 24, attached to Company B of the Fifth Battalion, Camp Lee, Va. He died at Alexandria Hospital yesterday of injuries sustained when he was struck by an auto on the 1000 block of North Washington Street.

Ford J. Monroe, 20, sailor attached to the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, said to be the driver of the auto, was released by Alexandria police yesterday in custody of air station officials.

4 Army Fliers Die in Collision Of Bombers

Planes Touch Wings Flying in Formation; Both Crash and Burn

By the United Press

Rains, S. C., May 19.—Four Army fliers were killed today when two of the Army's A-20 light bombers collided in midair and crashed near here.

Flying in a formation of six ships being transferred from Savannah, Ga., to Langley Field, Va., the two bombers brushed together, tearing the wing off one plane which plummeted to the ground immediately. The second ship crashed about a mile away.

Two of the other bombers in the formation flew on to Langley Field while the other two returned to Savannah.

The dead:

Second Lieut. Frank B. Ralston, Pittsburgh.

Second Lieut. Allen J. Moore, Reno, Nev.

Sergt. David L. Boyd, Frost, Tex.

Corpl. Herbert O. Pruett, Collinsville, Miss.

Both planes burned after crashing. Lieut. Moore attempted to bail out but his parachute opened too late at the low altitude and he was fatally injured in the fall. The other three fliers were found mangled and burned when their bodies were taken from the wreckage of the planes.

District Woman a Victim

Vagabond Sex-Murderer to Die For Strangling N. Y. Housewife

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, May 19.—George Joseph Cvek, 24-year-old vagabond, who confessed to attacking and robbing 16 women, including one Washingtonian, today was convicted of first-degree murder in the strangling of Mrs. Catherine Pappas, pretty 30-year-old Bronx housewife.

The all-male jury took but 43 minutes to reach the verdict and offered no recommendation of mercy. Thus the death penalty is mandatory.

Mrs. Pappas, known to her neighbors as "the Egyptian princess," was found February 4 on a couch in her apartment, a towel knotted about her throat.

Cvek, who fooled many of his victims into believing he was a former mayor of Father Flanagan's Boys Town, was captured three weeks later in a New York City hotel.

In the interval between the murder and his capture, Cvek attacked Mrs. Ruth Franco, 29, then living at 330 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast, Washington, on February 17. He gained entrance into the Franco home by posing as a friend of Mrs. Franco's husband, Joseph, a hotel employe, who was at work. She told police Cvek conversed with her for an hour before he seized and bound her, ransacked the apartment, attacked her, and left.

Informed of the verdict last night, Franco said: "Cvek got what he de-

9 on Zamzam Were Known In D. C. Area

At least nine persons with a direct connection with Washington are thought to have been on board the Zamzam which yesterday was reported sunk in the South Atlantic.

MISS HYATT

They included a Chevy Chase, Md., youth, Donald Royce King, who was among 24 ambulance drivers believed lost; David Scherman, 24, a photographer for Life Magazine, who was known to many in the Capital, and a party of Seventh Adventist missionaries, six of whom studied or lived in Takoma Park, Md., or were well known there. With the latter group was a baby girl.

The 24-year-old Chevy Chase youth had apparently reached the end of his adventures in this war, which included driving an ambulance in France before its surrender, a week spent in a Spanish jail, and a dangerous Atlantic crossing.

Went to Georgetown U.

The son of Mrs. John Thomas Brown, 4612 Hunt Avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., King was a Western High School graduate and an honor student at the Georgetown University Foreign Service School, which he left in 1939 before graduation.

He was a licensed pilot. One weak eye withheld him from entering the R. A. F. or the armed services of this country. He went to France instead.

Returning to this country, he worked for a while with the British Purchasing Commission here before joining the British-American Ambulance Corps as soon as it was organized.

He sailed on the Zamzam March 19. His family received a postcard from him in Trinidad in which he told of an uneventful trip and looked forward to new adventures and opportunity for service.

James Russell and Wife

The missionary group included Mr. and Mrs. James Smith Russell and daughter, Caroline, about 3 months. Their latest residence was Union Springs, N. Y. Mr. Russell was graduated from Atlantic Union College at South Lancaster, Mass., and from Seventh Day Adventist Theological Seminary at Takoma Park last February in the class of '41. He was a new appointee to Mombassa, Kenya Colony, field headquarters of the Adventists.

Also missing were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Jenkins. Mrs. Jenkins was formerly Laurene Williams, of Lincoln, Nebr., and was born in 1918. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams, of Collegedale, Tenn. Her husband was born in Colorado in 1913 and was graduated from Union College, Lincoln, Nebr., in 1938. He served in the ministry at Scotts Bluff, Nebr.

Prof. and Mrs. James H. Yost, of the Theological Seminary at Takoma Park, knew both of these families. Prof. Yost baptized Jenkins and took him into the Adventists. They said goodby to both couples at Baltimore. The Yosts received word from the Jenkins from Trinidad after April 1 that they were going to touch at some South American port before going on.

Helen Hyatt Aboard

Among those on board was Miss Helen Hyatt, who was born in New York in 1883 but had spent most of her life in Africa as nurse and teacher. She was graduated from Emmanuel Missionary College, Berrien Springs, Mich., in 1927. She is an aunt of William Hyatt, an employe of Doctors Hospital in Washington, and visited with him at 301 Lincoln Avenue last summer while she was taking a course at Theological Seminary. Miss Hyatt was returning to her post as teacher at Helderberg College, Cape Town, after a year's furlough.

Another of the missing was Mrs. Violet Hankins, who was returning to her husband, Dr. H. G. Hankins, a practicing physician in Cape Town, after visiting friends and relatives in Toronto and Canada. She did not visit Takoma Park, but was known to many Adventists who had met her while on missionary tours abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Johnson, graduated from Walla Walla College, College Place, Wash., were bound for Mombasa. He is an evangelist.

Boarded Ship in Brazil

David Scherman, 24, Washington photographer for Life magazine, took a 5,700-mile air-taxi ride in order to board the Zamzam. The Zamzam changed its course to put in at the port of Recife (Pernambuco), Brazil, to pick up Scherman, and a companion, Charles Murphy, of the staff of Fortune magazine, officials of Life magazine said here yesterday.

Scherman and Murphy were believed to be the only passengers to board the Zamzam at Recife, its last stop before sailing for Capetown, South Africa.

Scherman had covered Washington for more than a year. In side trips, he had covered a sizable extra segment of the United States. When he boarded the Zamzam he was headed for Capetown, and an overland trip from there through Africa to Egypt. That was as far as his assignment went.

His rush to board the Zamzam began when he returned to New York after photographing America's new bases in the Caribbean. He obtained a passport in a day and a half, according to a spokesman for Life, flew with Murphy from New York to Miami and then to Recife. Distance of the flight is 5,704 miles, according to Pan American Airways.

From Recife, Scherman and Murphy cabled their New York office that the Zamzam was not scheduled to stop there. Their magazines got the steamship line to radio the Zamzam at sea and have it stop at Recife. On April 8, Scherman and Murphy radioed New York that they were to board the ship the next day, the last message their offices received from them.

A resident of New Rochelle, N. Y., Scherman was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1936. He had been sports editor of the student newspaper, and worked as a compositor in the local printing press—but never took a picture, according to Life officials, until after he got a job with the magazine.

He was employed first in their promotion department, and while there bought a second-hand camera from a German refugee, and asked a tryout covering the New York World's Fair in 1939. His pictures landed him a job as a staff photographer.

Besides covering the White House and Capitol here, he covered the political conventions last year, had toured the country with former Postmaster General James A. Farley and with Wendell Willkie when the latter was campaigning for the Presidency.

On another assignment last spring he toured the country by plane for a month and brought back pictures for a dozen magazine pages printed under the title, "Flight Across America." Along with his cameras, his equipment included a supply of ocharinas. He played one of them, symphonies or swing, and gave away his extra ones to anyone who liked the way they sounded. He left about half a gross of them at the Life office here.

Zamzam May Be Safe, London Says

If the Zamzam went down with the loss of all aboard, the loss of American life would exceed that in the World War sinking of the Lusitania, when 124 Americans died.

The confusion concerning the Zamzam's fate led shipping circles in New York to wonder whether she would be a second Cyclops case. The Cyclops, a United States collier, was never heard from after being reported missing March 4, 1918, with 293 persons aboard.

Names Are Confused

Among the unofficial theories as to what befell here were these:

1. She may have been sunk by a German sea raider, which took the survivors aboard.

2. She may have been torpedoed or mined.

3. She may have foundered in rough weather.

Or, she may still be afloat, her radio silent.

In addition to the United States citizens, the Zamzam on leaving Recife carried 64 other passengers and a crew of 120, a total of 322.

There was considerable confusion as to the names of the Americans on board.

Thomas Cook & Son, New York passenger agents for the vessel, said the State Department in Washington had instructed it not to release the passenger list on the ground that there was no official word as to whether the ship had been sunk.

List Sent Here

State Department officials disclaimed any such order, saying it was up to the Cook office to decide whether or not to release the list. The Cook office closed for the day without releasing it, although it was announced that a copy had been sent by airmail to the State Department.

Meanwhile, friends and relatives throughout the country reported the names of persons supposed to have been aboard.

The Zamzam was en route to Alexandria, Egypt, by way of the southern Atlantic and Indian Oceans, the route to be followed by American ships taking supplies to Britain's Near East armies.

Marked with the flags of Britain's nonbelligerent ally, Egypt, the 8,299-ton motorship carried among her passengers 24 American ambulance drivers and their assistants en route to service with British and "Free French" forces in Egypt. Also aboard were missionaries of various religions and their families.

Dr. Emory Ross, general secretary of the Foregin Missions Conference of North America, said in New York that there were some 170 missionaries on the ship.

The State Department, meanwhile, said it had no definite information on the ship, which left here March 20 with a cargo of fertilizer, trucks, automobiles, ambulances and machinery.

The Alexandria Navigation Co. received word from London that the vessel's master, Capt. William Gray Smith, was missing. The cable gave no details.

Shipping circles here observed that if the Zamzam had been torpedoed by a submarine survivors probably would have been rescued from lifeboats by now.

Shipping circles rejected the suggestion that she might have been the victim of the elements, declaring she was sufficiently seaworthy to ride out a storm. In connection with this, they noted the absence of any radio distress calls from the ship.

Vichy Prepares To Fight De Gaulle

ern Libya—a direct link also with the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Dakar, the French West African port which the De Gaulle forces attempted to take, is far to the northwest.

In declaring "the hour without doubt now has come" for France to retake all her empire, the official French information statement said:

"It is necessary to underline one point, and that is that the problem of rebellion is to be settled solely between France and the rebels. The rebels for the most part are good Frenchmen who have been betrayed.

"At the moment when she is endeavoring to regain them and bring them back, France cannot permit a foreign power to intervene to prevent it."

Another official announcement was that French merchant marine tonnage now totaled 1,516,746 as compared to 2,483,946 when the armistice with Germany was signed.

The largest part of the third France lost went to the English and free French forces which seized 456,000 tons, it was said. The Germans took 244,800 tons, and 57,000 have been sunk.

Warning to United States

Vichy, May 19 (U.P.)—French officials said tonight that France will "defend every inch of her empire" and warned that any United States attempt to occupy Martinique, the Antilles or Dakar on the African coast will be resisted by force of arms.

"France does not recognize the right of the United States or any of the Pan-American republics to dispose of French colonies unilaterally without a fight," it was stated authoritatively.

The French officials said they were "dumbfounded" that the American press and even members of Congress should talk of the necessity of protectively occupying Dakar.

There is no basis for such agitation against France, they said, because Marshal Henri Philippe Petain has given assurances—publicly and to United States Ambassador Leahy—that Morocco, Mauretania, Senegal and especially Dakar, Casablanca and Agadir will not be used as Axis basis

Treasury Revives '40 Excess Profits Tax Plan

$3,600,000,000 tax program originally projected by the Treasury. But he indicated $3,600,000,000 still was the goal. Increased yields from excess profits may be used by the committee as offset against modifications in other proposed taxes.

Sullivan Reviews Move

In a full morning before the committee, Sullivan was led by questioning from profits tax broadening into a review of the entire tax program. He disclosed:

That the Treasury was in agreement with Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, and Defense Price Administrator Leon Henderson that higher taxes should be levied on autos and other durable goods in competition with defense industry.

That the Treasury will be willing to discuss lower rates on such items as tobacco, gasoline and beer, provided the committee adopts the Eccles-Henderson theory and raises the revenue needed from heavy articles in competition with defense.

Upholds $800 Exemption

That the existing $800 individual income tax exemption for single persons should not be lowered because, with living costs rising, "I have very strong doubts as to whether we should subject a person earning less than $16 a week to an income tax."

That he likewise opposed any lowering in the $2,000 ($42.30 a week) exemption for married persons, but if it were lowered, the credit for dependents should be increased.

That the Treasury was not suggesting any change "at this time" in its individual income tax proposals starting surtaxes at 11 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income.

Under the 1940 excess profits tax plan, readapted by the Treasury yesterday, corporations would be allowed free of the excess tax an amount of earnings equal to their earnings during a base period (1936-1939), but not more than 10 per cent of invested capital.

Excessive profits would be determined by a comparison between the ratio of earnings to invested capital in the taxable year, with such ratio computed for the base period.

Thus, if a corporation earned 7 per cent upon its invested capital in the base period, it would be permitted to earn 7 per cent on its invested capital for the taxable year before application of the excess profits tax.

Deficit Relief Planned

Corporations having dificits, or very low earnings during the base period, would be relieved by allowing them to earn free of excess profits 6 per cent on the first $500,000 of invested capital for the taxable year and 4 per cent on the remainder of such capital.

Sullivan yesterday further revised this to reach "substantial" defense profits received by corporations which had especially low earnings during the base period. Where average base period earnings were less than the minimum of 4 per cent, he proposed that the excess profits tax be applied at the flate rate of 10 per cent to that part of profits in excess of base period earnings, but not in excess of 4 per cent of invested capital.

In the case of corporations which earned more than 10 per cent on their invested capital during the base period, only 10 per cent of their invested capital for the taxable year would be permitted to be earned free of excess profits tax.

Specific $5,000 Exemption

In all cases a specific exemption of $5,000 of income would be provided. Additional capital would be permitted a tax free return of 10 per cent in the case of new capital which does not cause the total invested capital to exceed $500,000, and 8 per cent in the case of any further additional new capital.

Clash of opinion within the Treasury was reported to have held up revival of the 1940 plan, but Sullivan gave no hint of this. He likewise denied that the Henderson-Eccles testimony caused a "furore" at the Treasury. Under questioning, he said he thought the Eccles-Henderson recommendations "generally" improved the Treasury plan.

He said his statement was read by both Morgenthau and President Roosevelt, and it was a "correct inference" to assume it was the Administration program.

Prison's Efforts To Beat Hitler Make Nazis Mad

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, May 19.—The sharpest German attack yet made on President Roosevelt appears in tomorrow morning's Voelkischer Beobachter.

Headlined, "They are one heart and one soul—Roosevelt mobilizes criminals in penitentiary against Hitler—murderers and thieves, arm in arm with the American President," the leading party organ comments on the disclosure that the inmates of the Federal Penitentiary of Atlanta had doubled their production of war materials and drawn caricatures of Reichsfuehrer Hitler in their workshops, with such captions as "We want to help beat him."

The newspaper declares, "This report confirms once again that Germany is fighting a battle against the organized underworld which, under the disguise of freedom and democracy, is revolting against National Socialist decency and order."

58th Brigade Combat Unit To Play at War

By the Associated Press

Fort George G. Meade, Md., May 19.—About 7,000 soldiers, comprising the Fifty-eighth Brigade combat team, will participate tomorrow in the largest scale maneuvers held on the Fort eMade Reservation since the division's arrival here in February.

The combat unit will be loaned by the division for part of an Army test being taken by Col. Paul B. Parker, of Arlington, Va., to qualify for eligibility for appointment to brigadier general.

The troops in the combat team include the 115th and 175th Infantry Regiments, the 110th Field Artillery Regiment, one company from the 121st Engineers Regiment and a company from the 104th Medical Regiment.

At 8 a. m. the troops will be turned over to Col. Parker, who will command them during the working out of an all-day tactical problem that will be given to him by an examining board of officers.

Board Named

The board will consist of Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock, commander of the Fifty-eighth Infantry Brigade; Brig. Gen. Ray L. Avery, of Edgewood Arsenal, and Brig. Gen. William H. Sands, commander of the Fifty-fourth Field Artillery Brigade.

Col. Parker was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1916 and later was football line coach there. In 1926 he became director of athletics at the University of Tennessee, a position he held until three years ago when he resigned to engage in the real estate and construction business in Arlington.

He has been an Infantry reserve officer, but is now on active duty in Washington.

Promotions Announced

Meanwhile the Twenty-ninth Division has announced the following promotions of officers, with home stations of their units:

Maj. Henry F. Buettner, 104th Medical Regiment, Baltimore, to lieutenant colonel.

Maj. Franklin C. Lieder, 104th Medical Regiment, Baltimore, to lieutenant colonel.

Capt. Norval H. McDonald, 110th Field Artillery, Pikesville, Md., to major, Dental Corps.

First Lieut. Edward A. Gill, 175th Infantry, Baltimore, to captain.

First Lieut. William H. Merrill, jr., 175th Infantry, Baltimore, to captain.

Second Lieut. Benjamin I. McGowan, jr., 175th Infantry, Baltimore, to first lieutenant.

First Lieut. James S. Morris, 115th Infantry, Bel Air, Md., to captain.

Mexico Declared Backing U.S. Policy

Mexico is joining the United States in its efforts to preserve democracy in these troubled times, Senor Don Eugenio de Anzorena, attache of the Mexican Embassy, declared last night at a meeting of the Pan American Club of the Central Young Men's Christian Association in the "Y" at 1736 G Street Northwest. The speaker urged development of a closer friendship between the people of this Nation and Mexico.

A program of entertainment included dances, by Katherine Willis; violin selections, by Dotty Buch and Peter Panagos; song and guitar numbers, by Vincente de la Garza, and singing by R. E. Myers. Miss Lelia Fern, Miss Lillian E. Gagnon and Miss Alma Grayce Miller were accompanists. Leopoldo Rojas was waster of ceremonies. Two hundred persons attended the meeting.

Engraving Workers' Fund to Aid British

A mobile canteen will aid British war victims as the gift of employes of the Bureau of Engraving. A check for $1,260 will be presented by the bureau's director, Alvin W. Hall, to Otto Lund, manager of the District Chapter of the Red Cross, at 7 p. m. tomorrow.

The presentation will be made in the studios of Station WWDC. The sum was raised by employes of the Government bureau with a benefit dance and individual donations under the auspices of the Red Cross unit of the bureau.

Through the District Red Cross Chapter, the amount will be forwarded to England for purchase of the canteen there.

Fort Belvoir Trains Masters For War's Iron Juggernauts

Skilled Mechanics Held Major Need Of Modern Army

In an age when war is made with machines, the United States Army is busy training men to operate the thousands of metal monsters it has enlisted.

Out at Fort Belvoir, Va., officers and men of the Corps of Engineers were in school yesterday, learning to bend these juggernauts to their will, to take them apart and put them together again. They are officers and men of the regular Army, the National Guard and the organized reserves, of all components of that growing hybrid of fighting men and fighting machines, the Army.

Since the Engineers must open the way for the Infantry, their machines are amazingly varied and complicated. Besides ordinary military transport, trucks and the like, the Combat Engineer Regiment these days is equipped with eight air compressors, a concrete mixer, an electric lighting plant, a road grader, two power shovels, an earth auger and eight bulldozers, all of which it must move with it on the march. To operate this formidable array of machinery, the engineers need thousands of trained men.

To afford this training, the Specialist School is maintained at Fort Belvoir, under Maj. C. T. Hunt, director. In this school 60 men and 50 officers are now attending the equipment section, 60 are in the drafting section, 60 are studying surveying, another 60 water purification and 15 map reproduction. Officers complete the course in 30 days, the enlisted men, whose training is much more thorough, in three months.

In the equipment section, under Capt. W. B. Grimes, men are trained to operate power shovels, road graders, bulldozers, all of which are used in making roads for the foot soldiers and the guns. There soldiers become familiar with nightmarish implements that will do enormous amounts of work at their bidding.

They learn to operate great self-powered scrapers which gobble up, transport and dump 15 tons of earth at one swoop. They become acquainted with shovels which will scrape out a trench with a few bends of its elbow quicker than a regiment could do the job with pick and shovel. They marvel at a 12-ton brute which waddles up to trees and uproots them without a pause in its snorting progress and which will level a path 8 feet wide through underbrush and small trees, a valuable implement in constructing emergency airports, for instance.

Graduates of the Engineer Specialist School go back to their regiments trained in the use of the manifold machines developed for modern war or adapted to that purpose from commercial products. Throughout the Army today these men from Fort Belvoir are making machines work for their Uncle Sam and teaching others to do the same.

ARMY "MONSTERS"—The juggernaut (top), operated by Private Harry L. Rager, First Student Company, Engineer School Provisional Battalion, digs, moves and dumps 15 tons of earth at a time. The shovel (lower), operated by one man, digs a trench more quickly than a regiment with shovels.

Fox Will Be Called To Testify Against Davis, Kaufman

Philadelphia, May 19 (AP).—The Government announced today at opening of the Federal Court trial of retired U. S. Circuit Court Judge J. Warren Davis and Morgan S. Kaufman, former bankruptcy referee, that William Fox, bankrupt movie producer, would be called to testify against them.

Davis and Kaufman are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the United States—a charge that developed out of litigation over Fox's financial affairs.

Fox, indicted by a Federal jury at the same time, already has pleaded guilty and is awaiting sentence. He was not in court today.

The grand jury, in its March 28 presentment, said it had found evidence that Davis accepted "sums of money" from Fox and Kaufman in return for "action favorable" to the movie producer. Davis, who is 74, retired two years ago.

Volunteers Sought to Aid Home Front

Volunteers for the District's home front to serve in health, welfare and recreation agencies, will be sought in a drive from June 10 through 12, Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, chairman of the Committee on Volunteer Service of the District Defense Council, announced yesterday. She spoke at a meeting of the Council of Social Agencies, at Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest.

A central volunteers bureau will be established to meet the greatly increased demands for service brought about by the increase in Government workers here and by the proximity of four Army camps, Mrs. Bernton told the group.

Volunteer placement services formerly operated by several different organizations will be merged into this central bureau, thus permitting a more orderly assignment of needed workers, she said.

A total of at least 500 volunteers are needed immediately in group field work, it was said. This field includes group leaders for settlements, scouts and playgrounds and for the recreation activities planned in the District for soldiers on leave.

Nurses' aides, orderlies and other workers are surgently needed by hospitals and other agencies, it was said. The demand for clerical workers are urgently needed by ernment service has taken up workers who formerly gave their time.

Details of the actual registration were explained by Mrs. Montgomery Blair, who is in charge of that phase of the work. Between 30 and 40 school buildings will be open from 3:30 to 8:30 p. m. June 10 through 12 for registration of volunteers.

Mrs. G. Howland Chase, chairman of a group which has been surveying the need for volunteers spoke, and Mrs. Stuart A. Rice told of administrative details, to be handled by volunteers.

James V. Bennett, director of the United States Bureau of Prisons and newly elected president of the Council of Social Agencies, presided. He introduced the other new officers: Mrs. William Kittle, chairman of the D. C. Minimum Wage Board, first vice president; Judge Fay L. Bentley, judge of the Juvenile Court, second vice president; and Charles W. Pimper, treasurer.

Two agencies were elected members of the council: St. Elizabeth's Hospital and the D. C. Home Economics Association.

Franco Again Shifts Cabinet

Madrid, May 19 (AP).—Generalissimo Franco named three new cabinet ministers today in the third cabinet shake-up of the past 15 days.

Labor and Agriculture Minister Joaquin Benjomea Burin was made minister of finance in place of Jose Larraz, former civil governor of Madrid Province, and Miguel Primo de Rivera, brother of the founder of the Falange (Fascist Party), became minister of agriculture. Architect Jose Luis Arreses Magraz was named vice secretary of the Phalange Party secretary of the Falange Party with ministerial rank in the place of Pedro Gamero del Castillo.

Green Favors Gift Of Vessels for Convoy

A. F. of L. President William Green told newsmen last night that it was his personal view that the Government should transfer title of naval vessels to Great Britain for convoy purposes rather than use the United States Navy for convoy duty.

"This would lessen our chances of involvement in the war," he said.

Air Squadron Of D. C. Guard Called to Army

President Roosevelt, by executive order yesterday, called the new District National Guard air squadron into Federal service along with nine other Guard units.

No dates were given for any of the units to report, and officials said it may be some time before they actually begin training. Most of them are just being organized and at least in one case, have no planes or personnel assigned as yet.

The District's 121st Air Corps Observation Squadron is said to be farther along than any of the air units and may be the first of the group to receive War Department orders to report.

Commanded by Capt. C. C. Hutchison, the 121st now has its full complement of 116 enlisted men and has 9 of its quota of 31 officers. Eight others are now under instruction in Air Corps training schools.

Field and hangar facilities are now being constructed for the squadron near Beltsville, Md. Orders for the National Guard air squadrons to active duty will be withheld until facilities are available for their training, it was said, and the local unit may await completion of its own air field or be sent elsewhere sooner.

The other National Guard observation squadrons listed for Federal call under yesterday's executive order were: 122d, of Louisiana; 123d, of Portland, Oreg.; 124th, of Iowa; 125th, of Oklahoma; 126th, of Wisconsin; 127th, of Kansas, and 128th, of Georgia.

Also called under the order were the 121st Coast Artillery Battalion, of Nevada, and the First Infantry Battalion of the 298th Regiment, of Alaska.

Kutz to Take Oath Of Office Today

Brig. Gen. Charles W. Kutz will be sworn in as District Engineer Commissioner in ceremonies at 10 a. m. today in the office of Commissioner John Russell Young, in the District Building.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, who has been absent from his office for several weeks due to illness, is expected to attend the ceremonies, it was said yesterday.

Gen. Kutz, 70, succeeeds Col. David McCoach as Engineeer Commissioner. Col. McCoach recently was called to active duty with the War Department. Gen. Kutz served as District Commissioner for two terms following the World War. He retired from the Army several years ago, being recalled to service a few months ago.

Judicial Meeting Opens Thursday

The District Court will suspend sessions Thursday, Friday and Saturday so that the justices and lawyers may attend the judicial conference called by Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner of the United States Court of Appeals.

The law provided for holding a conference in each Federal circuit once a year. Washington by itself is considered a circuit.

One justice will remain on duty each day to handle emergency matters.

Fly Urges Merger To Keep Telegraph Service Operating

By the Associated Press

James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, urged yesterday that Congress authorize a merger of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies to prevent the possibility of the industry's "total disappearance as an independent entity."

"It is perfectly conceivable," Fly testified before a Senate committee investigating the telegraph industry, "that the next prolonged or pronounced recession in the general business level will drive both companies to the wall—and I don't mean just financial bankruptcy. I mean discontinuance of service.

"Competition and other factors have driven the two major telegraph carriers to the point where their very existence is in jeopardy. The national defense, the interests of employes and other considerations make it undesirable that we should permit either to be forced to the wall.

"The most promising alternative is a merger, with suitable legislative safeguards."

Roosevelt Gets Bill Exempting Ex-Service Men From Draft

Legislation exempting from the draft former members of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard and former reservists of these services was approved by the House yesterday and sent to the White House.

The first change voted by Congress in the Selective Service Act since its passage last summer, the bill would relieve all former members of the sea-going armed forces who have had at least three years' service from liability to military service in time of peace.

Former reservists must have performed three years in active service, in order to qualify for the exemption, or to have had one year active service and two consecutive years with an organized unit of the Naval Reserve or Marine Corps.

The House yesterday accepted Senate amendments to the bill which made it retroactive. This will permit anyone exempted by the measure who has already been drafted into the Army to request discharge, it was said.

Former Army men with three years' service and former National Guardsmen with at least one year's active service and two more years with the Guard were exempted from peace-time service and training by the terms of original act. At the request of the Navy Department, however, former Navy men were made subject to the draft, with the idea that it would induce them to apply for enrollment in the Naval Reserve.

Recently, however, the Navy indorsed the bill and all other affected Government departments approved it.

Belvoir Steps Up Basic Training

So badly are replacements needed in Engineer Corps regiments, a number of selectees have been graduated from their 13-week basic course at Fort Belvoir, Va., in 3 weeks, it was learned yesterday.

These men, who reached the Engineer Replacement Center March 20 and later, already have gone to regiments in the field. Who they were, how many, where or when they went could not be learned from Reception Center officials.

"Troop movements," they said, "are military secrets."

'Free French' In U. S. Planes Bomb Syria

Nazi Aircraft on Way To Iraq Destroyed; Cairo Announces

By the United Press

Cairo, May 19.—Latest type American-made bombers and fighter planes flown by "Free French" pilots tonight were reported to have blasted French airdromes in Syria and destroyed a number of German planes en route to Iraq.

Capt. James Roosevelt, here on a mission as military observer attached to the British Middle East command, has talked with the "Free French" pilots and heard from them glowing accounts of the performance of the American-made planes in the Syrian attacks, it was said.

A Royal Air Force communique today, describing bombings of Palmyra, Damascus and Rayak airdromes in Syria, said that a large German troop-carrying plane and a Heinkel-111 bomber were destroyed at Palmyra.

Airdrome Lies on Pipeline

Palmyra airdrome is one of Syria's chief air bases lying along the main oil pipeline from Iraq's Mosul fields to the Syrian coast of Tripoli.

Damascus and Rayak airdromes were both bombed and machine-gunned, the R. A. F. communique said.

Raschid airdrome on the outskirts of Bagdad, a favorite objective of the R. A. F., also was subjected to heavy attack, it was stated.

R. A. F. Bombs Rhodes Field

Other R. A. F. bombers struck at Calato airdrome on the Italian Island of Rhodes Saturday night. Axis warplanes apparently have been using Rhodes as one of their "stepping stones" en route to Syria and Iraq.

Today's Middle East command communique said that in the Iraq fighting there was "no change to report" either at Habbaniya, west of Bagdad, or at Basra, at the head of the Persian Gulf, where British forces were said Sunday to have extended their zone of control.

The R. A. F. communique announcing the aerial attacks on Syrian and Iraqi airports said that only one British plane is missing.

Iraqis Claim Successes

Beirut, Syria, May 19 (U.P.).—The Iraqi high command, in a broadcast communique, claimed the destruction of 30 British armored cars and trucks and the damaging of two British gunboats.

The British gunboats were said to have limped away into the Persian Gulf after an artillery duel in the Tigris River south of Basra with Iraqi artillery mounted on the hillsides.

The Bagdad radio asserted that an Iraqi column had invaded Trans-Jordania and attacked the British on a new front.

served—that's the easiest thing that can be said of him." Franco revealed that his wife had only recently returned home from the hospital.

Cocky and smiling through most of the trial, Cvek's knees wobbled visibly as he stood before the Bronx County Court bar and heard the verdict.

Later, when Judge James M. Barrett set Wednesday as the day on which he would impose the death sentence, Cvek announced through his attorney that he was inviting all the women he had attacked to attend the sentencing.

To this invitation, Franco said in Washington: "As far as we're concerned, the case is over."

Remarkable Achievement

New York detectives captured Cvek after a remarkable bit of investigation. Baffled by the Pappas slaying, they checked similar unsolved crimes throughout the country, discovered a pattern, obtained a description of the pimply faced Cvek from victims, and then kept watch in many of New York's cheap hotels, in the belief that the hitchhiking tramp would show up. He did, and was arrested one month after the murder.

Cvek's crime pattern followed along two lines: He would pose as a former member of Boys Town who was trying to overcome his past of juvenile delinquency, and thus get the sympathy of his victims; or he would gain entry into the women's homes on the pretext that he wanted to return to their husbands small sums they had given him as a hitchhiker.

Alexandria Gets 400 House Listings From D. C. Agency

The District of Columbia Housing Registry has turned over a listing of more than 400 Virginia homes, apartments and rooms to the Alexandria Housing Registry, Mrs. Ellen R. Harper, Alexandria director announced yesterday. The Alexandria office was established last week to assist incoming defense workers in obtaining homes in the city.

Mrs. Harper said the registry also had received the cooperation of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, which has made available its entire list of tourist accommodations. However, she said few private home owners have furnished the office with information on apartments and rooms available.

Persons having houses, apartments or rooms to rent are urged to list their property with the bureau, which also is accepting applications from defense workers seeking homes in the Alexandria area.

Hoover Plan Rejection a Blunder, Says Official

The accusation that the United States is allied to a policy of trying to win the war by promoting pestilence and famine is being made by Belgians because the Hoover food plan was not approved by Britain, Gilbert Redfern, relief representative in Europe, said yesterday in his first press conference since his return.

REDFERN

After delivering a report to Herbert Hoover on the "critical" food situation in German-occupied countries, Redfern said he was free to make his first public statement to reporters at the Carlton Hotel.

"The British made a terrible blunder in rejecting the proposal made by Mr. Hoover" to feed children and destitute adults in Belgium, he said. Members of a Belgian mission which Redfern saw in Russia said that the Germans accepted the Hoover proposal not because they liked it but because they were sure Churchill would say no.

Redfern said "Germany is shipping grain in substantial amounts to Belgium" from war reserves and from Russia. But it is to "keep alive such workers as Germany needs and Nazi sympathizers." Germany will let "the children and the destitute and unemployed go to the devil," he said.

No Hope for Revolt

The German propaganda machine is "putting across the idea in Belgium that England is trying to win the war by starving people," he said. Thus Belgium is being made a part of the Greater Reich and is being compelled to accept the "new order" of Germany and to seek trade agreements with Moscow.

The theory that starving Belgians will revolt is "poppycock," Redfern said. What chance, he asked, have starving women and children to rise up against the German machine.

Redfern, who has been with the Commission for Polish Relief, Inc., in Poland and Lithuania since October, 1939, landed in the United States about two weeks ago on a return trip by way of Moscow and Tokyo. Germany, he said, would not let him go back across that country, "probably because I am British born."

In two months, he said, Russia sold $175,000 worth of food for children and destitute adults in German-occupied Poland. German and Belgian missions in Russia are "paying with barter," he pointed out.

Russia will have about 4,500,000 tons of bread grain for export this year, and Germany expects to get about 2,500,000 tons of that total, he said.

"Starvation is now rampant" in Belgium, Redfern said. In Holland and Norway conditions may be as bad next year as they are in Belgium now.

"Grewsome Story"

The daily ration in Belgium is only about 960 calories, compared with approximately 2,600 needed to maintain the health of an active person, Redfern said.

John Cudahy, former Ambassador to Belgium, will tell "a grewsome story" of conditions in that country in an article to be published later this week, Redfern said.

It was estimated about 2,000,000 children and 1,000,000 unemployed adults could have been fed in Belgium under the plan proposed by Hoover and the National Committee on Food for the Small Democracies of which Hoover is honorary chairman. Under the proposals which the German government accepted, Germany would have furnished 25,000 tons of breadstuffs monthly for Belgian relief, while 20,000 tons of soup materials and special food for children would have been shipped from America through the blockade. It would have been purchased by Belgian funds in this country. But the British Embassy here issued a statement opposing the passage of food through the blockade.

Redfern yesterday referred to the respect which European countries felt for the United States for food relief in the last war. "If we don't make some effort to rescue these people from certain death, we ought to be ashamed of letting this respect get away from us," he added.

Germans Talk With Japanese On U.S. Convoys

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, May 19.—How Japan and the other Axis powers might deal with any new situation in the world conflict—particularly United States convoying of material to Britain—has been the subject of frequent conversations among German, Italian and Japanese diplomats recently, informed sources said tonight.

The crux of last week's discussions was whether convoying could be construed as aggression under Article 3 of the Tri-Partite Pact which Japan signed eight months ago.

Article 3 provides that Japan, Germany and Italy "undertake to assist one another with all political, economic and military means when one of the three contracting parties is attacked by a power at present not involved in the European war or in the Sino-Japanese conflict."

Around the word "attacked" has centered much of the conversation among Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, German Ambassador Eugen Ott and Italian Ambassador Mario Indelli.

Some months ago, Matsuoka told foreign correspondents that the article could be invoked only in event of aggression. The German view is that American convoys of British war materiels shipments would constitute aggression, but how widely this view is held among Japanese officials is not known.

The newspaper Kokumin, in comment rather typical of the press, said:

"Japan's attitude is very simple. All depends on what America is going to do. Regardless of Japan's possible declaration of war, it is quite natural for Japan to extend material aid to the Axis. Whether war be declared or not is a secondary matter."

ployment in the industry due to the national defense program."

The settlement provided basic wage increases of 7½ per cent on all contract and day rates until October 1, when the increase will be advanced to 10 per cent. It also provided for a token payment of $20, or an equivalent vacation, to each person employed in the industry more than one year.

Lewis then turned his attention to the bituminous coal industry, where a deadlock exists between the union and Southern mine owners. Unless an agreement is reached before Friday, the case will be brought before the National Defense Mediation Board. In the meantime, however, Lewis postponed indefinitely his threat to renew the 30-day coal strike in eight Appalachian States.

Yesterday's new strikes in defense industries:

About 1,000 men abruptly left their jobs at American Shipbuilding Co.'s Lorain, Ohio, yards, halting work on six submarine net tenders being built for the Navy. The strike, involving seven A. F. of L. unions, was called to obtain a retroactive grant of wage increases. An employe spokesman said the walkout was "unauthorized at this time."

Operations at the Apollo Steel Co., Apollo, Pa., were halted by a C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee wage strike affecting about 900 men. The company holds $100,000 of defense orders, largely galvanized sheet iron for the Navy.

The railroad unions, which together represent about 350,000 engineers, firemen, trainmen, switchmen and conductors, declared their 30 per cent wage increase drive was equivalent to a demand for increases of not less than $1.80 a day. Their demands will be served on the railroads June 10, pursuant to provisions of the National Railway Mediation Board.

In a joint announcement, signed in Chicago by the presidents of the five unions, the railroad men said "soaring prices and the general increased cost of living, including rents and taxes imposed upon employes, are important factors in the situation."

Hopeful that tonight's mass meeting in San Francisco would be successful in securing an agreement of 1,700 striking A. F. of L. machinists to return to their jobs in the shipyards, defense officials here said the situation was nevertheless still "full of dynamite."

They explained that if some 15,000 other skilled A. F. of L. tradesmen persist in their decision, reached by the San Francisco Metal Trades Council Sunday, to cross the machinists' picket lines and go back to their jobs, violence might result.

It had been strongly indicated, however, that the men involved would not be asked to return until tonight's meeting, when Gov. Cuthbert L. Olson plans to urge the strikers to abandon their picket lines and go back to their jobs in the interest of national defense.

Miss Talley Admits Daughter's Birth 3 Weeks After Marriage

Concealed Motherhood To Keep Film Contract, Opera Singer Testifies

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, May 19.—Weeping and finally near collapse, Opera Singer Marion Talley testified today that she and Adolph Eckstrom, voice teacher, were married three weeks before the birth of their daughter, Susan, now 5.

Each is seeking a divorce.

Miss Talley admitted that after a romantic association with Eckstrom, who was giving her singing lessons, and on the eve of a great opportunity in motion pictures, she discovered that she soon would become a mother.

The singer said that Susan was born in secrecy at the St. Paul, Minn., home of Eckstrom's family physician, and she concealed her motherhood so she would not lose her contract with M-G-M. Studio.

As she testified, the brown-haired Missouri girl who rose to fame in grand opera and motion pictures, sobbed more and more until finally she could not go on and buried her face in her handkerchief.

Superior Judge Ingall W. Bull recessed court until tomorrow.

Eckstrom, whose presence in the courtroom Miss Talley had ignored, arose and left as she began the story of their premarital relationship.

In his opening statement to the court, Isaac Pacht, Miss Talley's lawyer, said:

"We might as well admit, because it will appear in evidence, that Miss Talley engaged in indiscretions with Mr. Eckstrom prior to their marriage, as a result of which their 5-year-old daughter, Susan, was born one month after their marriage."

Pacht told Judge Bull that Miss Talley went to St. Paul to give birth to the child, and that the evidence would show Eckstrom hid the baby from her for three years, placing the infant with relatives.

"We will prove that Eckstrom, through his former attorney, a New York lawyer, telephoned Miss Talley in Hollywood, demanding $150,000 as the price for information concerning the child's whereabouts. We will show that the New York lawyer made the call while Eckstrom listened in on an extension line.

MARION TALLEY

This $150,000 was to be split up three ways, Eckstrom and the lawyer getting $50,000 apiece and $50,000 being set up as a trust fund for the baby."

Philbrick McCoy, Eckstrom's lawyer, said he expected to show that at the birth of the child in a St. Paul physician's home, Miss Talley gave fictitious names for the mother, father and child on the certificate; that when she later signed a movie contract "she posed as childless and arranged to keep the child hidden in St. Paul for the six months that her film contract was to run."

"Eckstrom recklessly charged Miss Talley with wholesale sex infractions, wholesale acts of adultery with seven men for the purpose of destroying her reputation in the musical world, as a loving mother and an honest woman," said Pacht.

"He did not have the slightest evidence to support these false charges.

"Why, among other men with whom Eckstrom charges his wife with indiscreet conduct is her New York attorney, John S. Keith, a man 60 years of age."

Keith was in the courtroom.

Congress Faces No New Requests

Federal and local civilian defense programs, organize air raid precaution plans and promote recreational and health facilities in training camp communities.

In addition to his duties as mayor, LaGuardia now is cochairman of the Canadian-American Permanent Defense Board, and is chairman of the United States Conference of Mayors.

Legislators, who are running out of business, meanwhile speculated on a brief summer recess, and it was in this connection that the possibility of a message was said to have been broached.

Before considering any plans for a midsummer rest, leaders were reported to have sought and obtained assurance that no further legislation is planned.

While plans for a sine die adjournment were long-since abandoned, leaders hinted it might be possible to recess for a month or two after Congressional slates are clear in late June or July.

Dynamic Move Forecast

Copyright by New York Times

Important new moves in the field of international affairs, designed to adjust the policy of Western Hemisphere defense to the changing situation in Europe—especially to whatever collaborative arrangement may be worked out between Germany and the Vichy government of France—are expected to be taken by President Roosevelt in the next few days.

These steps, it was believed, would deal with the question of home defense, and with the status of French possessions in and near the Western Hemisphere, and possibly with the problem of safe delivery of war materials to the democracies for which there has been much agitation of late in Mr. Roosevelt's official family.

Inter-American Conference to Discuss Seizure of Idle Foreign Ships

By Lloyd Lehrbas
Associated Press Staff Writer

The proposals of the 21 American republics for utilizing nearly 200 foreign ships tied up in hemisphere ports will be presented for unified action at a meeting here Thursday of the Inter-American Financial and Economic Advisory Committee.

Envoys of the American nations, it was learned yesterday, are scheduled at that time to report on the number, tonnage, nationality and condition of all refugee ships now idle in their ports.

At the same time, it was learned, members of the committee will present their governments' specific recommendations for putting the vessels back into service to help relieve the acute shortage of cargo space on hemisphere trade routes.

Several South and Central American republics already have presented their views to the inter-American committee, and the United States is understood to be ready with an outline of its plans.

No uniform action on the idle ships has yet been taken by the American nations but Thursday's meeting may pave the way for formulation of a general hemisphere policy.

The United States has taken 44 ships (28 Italian, 14 French, and 2 German) into "protective custody" in addition to 39 Danish vessels in United States and Philippine ports.

At least six other nations—Mexico, Venezuela, Peru, Costa Rica, Ecuador and Cuba—have seized Axis ships, while Chile has taken over Danish vessels, but taken no action concerning German and Italian vessels.

An unofficial survey showed 89 German and Italian vessels in South and Central American ports: Brazil, 30; Argentina, 17; Mexico, 12; Venezuela, 10; Chile, 2; Uruguay, 5; Peru, 5; Colombia, 3; Costa Rica, 2, and Cuba, Ecuador and Panama one each. The exact number of French and Danish ships was not determined.

The inter American committee, acting on the original proposal by Foreign Minister Guina of Uruguay, has unanimously recommended that the American republics "declare that foreign-flag vessels immobilized in their ports by the war may now be utilized by the American republics in accordance with the rules of international law and their national legislations to promote the defense of their economies, the peace and security of the continent."

Henri-Haye to See Hull

Gaston Henri-Haye, Ambassador of the Vichy government, will confer with Secretary Hull this morning about the placing of Coast Guardsmen aboard French vessels in American harbors.

This visit was made known by the French Embassy tonight following receipt of reports here via the Havas and DNB news agencies that the French Ambassador has been "ordered" to make a protest.

An embassy spokesman said that no such order had been received and that it was unlikely that a formal protest would be made. It was added, however, that the Ambassador had expressed "surprise" from the time the Coast Guard took over the French vessels.

'Free French' In U. S. Planes Bomb Syria

By the United Press

Cairo, May 19.—Latest type American-made bombers and fighter planes flown by "Free French" pilots tonight were reported to have blasted French airdromes in Syria and destroyed a number of German planes en route to Iraq.

Capt. James Roosevelt, here on a mission as military observer attached to the British Middle East command, has talked with the "Free French" pilots and heard from them glowing accounts of the performance of the American-made planes in the Syrian attacks, it was said.

A Royal Air Force communique today, describing bombings of Palmyra, Damascus and Rayak airdromes in Syria, said that a large German troop-carrying plane and a Heinkel-111 bomber were destroyed at Palmyra.

Airdrome Lies on Pipeline

Palmyra airdrome is one of Syria's chief air bases lying along the main oil pipeline from Iraq's Mosul fields to the Syrian coast of Tripoli.

Damascus and Rayak airdromes were both bombed and machine-gunned, the R. A. F. communique said.

Raschid airdrome on the outskirts of Bagdad, a favorite objective of the R. A. F., also was subjected to heavy attack, it was stated.

R. A. F. Bombs Rhodes Field

Other R. A. F. bombers struck at Calato airdrome on the Italian Island of Rhodes Saturday night. Axis warplanes apparently have been using Rhodes as one of their "stepping stones" en route to Syria and Iraq.

Today's Middle East command communique said that in the Iraq fighting there was "no change to report" either at Habbaniya, west of Bagdad, or at Basra, at the head of the Persian Gulf, where British forces were said Sunday to have extended their zone of control.

The R. A. F. communique announcing the aerial attacks on Syrian and Iraqi airports said that only one British plane is missing.

Iraqis Claim Successes

Beirut, Syria, May 19 (U.P.).—The Iraqi high command, in a broadcast communique, claimed the destruction of 30 British armored cars and trucks and the damaging of two British gunboats.

The British gunboats were said to have limped away into the Persian Gulf after an artillery duel in the Tigris River south of Basra with Iraqi artillery mounted on the hillsides.

The Bagdad radio asserted that an Iraqi column had invaded Trans-Jordania and attacked the British on a new front.

served—that's the easiest thing that can be said of him." Franco revealed that his wife had only recently returned home from the hospital.

Cocky and smiling through most of the trial, Cvek's knees wobbled visibly as he stood before the Bronx County Court bar and heard the verdict.

Later, when Judge James M. Barrett set Wednesday as the day on which he would impose the death sentence, Cvek announced through his attorney that he was inviting all the women he had attacked to attend the sentencing.

To this invitation, Franco said in Washington: "As far as we're concerned, the case is over."

Remarkable Achievement

New York detectives captured Cvek after a remarkable bit of investigation. Baffled by the Pappas slaying, they checked similar unsolved crimes throughout the country, discovered a pattern, obtained a description of the pimply faced Cvek from victims, and then kept watch in many of New York's cheap hotels, in the belief that the hitchhiking tramp would show up. He did, and was arrested one month after the murder.

Cvek's crime pattern followed along two lines: He would pose as a former member of Boys Town who was trying to overcome his past of juvenile delinquency, and thus get the sympathy of his victims; or he would gain entry into the women's homes on the pretext that he wanted to return to their husbands small sums they had given him as a hitchhiker.

Alexandria Gets 400 House Listings From D. C. Agency

The District of Columbia Housing Registry has turned over a listing of more than 400 Virginia homes, apartments and rooms to the Alexandria Housing Registry, Mrs. Ellen R. Harper, Alexandria director announced yesterday. The Alexandria office was established last week to assist incoming defense workers in obtaining homes in the city.

Mrs. Harper said the registry also had received the cooperation of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, which has made available its entire list of tourist accommodations. However, she said few private home owners have furnished the office with information on apartments and rooms available.

Persons having houses, apartments or rooms to rent are urged to list their property with the bureau, which also is accepting applications from defense workers seeking homes in the Alexandria area.

Hoover Plan Rejection a Blunder, Says Official

The accusation that the United States is allied to a policy of trying to win the war by promoting pestilence and famine is being made by Belgians because the Hoover food plan was not approved by Britain, Gilbert Redfern, relief representative in Europe, said yesterday in his first press conference since his return.

REDFERN

After delivering a report to Herbert Hoover on the "critical" food situation in German-occupied countries, Redfern said he was free to make his first public statement to reporters at the Carlton Hotel.

"The British made a terrible blunder in rejecting the proposal made by Mr. Hoover" to feed children and destitute adults in Belgium, he said. Members of a Belgian mission which Redfern saw in Russia said that the Germans accepted the Hoover proposal not because they liked it but because they were sure Churchill would say no.

Redfern said "Germany is shipping grain in substantial amounts to Belgium" from war reserves and from Russia. But it is to "keep alive such workers as Germany needs and Nazi sympathizers." Germany will let "the children and the destitute and unemployed go to the devil," he said.

No Hope for Revolt

The German propaganda machine is "putting across the idea in Belgium that England is trying to win the war by starving people," he said. Thus Belgium is being made a part of the Greater Reich and is being compelled to accept the "new order" of Germany and to seek trade agreements with Moscow.

The theory that starving Belgians will revolt is "poppycock," Redfern said. What chance, he asked, have starving women and children to rise up against the German machine.

Redfern, who has been with the Commission for Polish Relief, Inc., in Poland and Lithuania since October, 1939, landed in the United States about two weeks ago on a return trip by way of Moscow and Tokyo. Germany, he said, would not let him go back across that country, "probably because I am British born."

In two months, he said, Russia sold $175,000 worth of food for children and destitute adults in German-occupied Poland. German and Belgian missions in Russia are "paying with barter," he pointed out.

Russia will have about 4,500,000 tons of bread grain for export this year, and Germany expects to get about 2,500,000 tons of that total, he said.

"Starvation is now rampant" in Belgium, Redfern said. In Holland and Norway conditions may be as bad next year as they are in Belgium now.

"Grewsome Story"

The daily ration in Belgium is only about 960 calories, compared with approximately 2,600 needed to maintain the health of an active person, Redfern said.

John Cudahy, former Ambassador to Belgium, will tell "a grewsome story" of conditions in that country in an article to be published later this week, Redfern said.

It was estimated about 2,000,000 children and 1,000,000 unemployed adults could have been fed in Belgium under the plan proposed by Hoover and the National Committee on Food for the Small Democracies of which Hoover is honorary chairman. Under the proposals which the German government accepted, Germany would have furnished 25,000 tons of breadstuffs monthly for Belgian relief, while 20,000 tons of soup materials and special food for children would have been shipped from America through the blockade. It would have been purchased by Belgian funds in this country. But the British Embassy here issued a statement opposing the passage of food through the blockade.

Redfern yesterday referred to the respect which European countries felt for the United States for food relief in the last war. "If we don't make some effort to rescue these people from certain death, we ought to be ashamed of letting this respect get away from us," he added.

Germans Talk With Japanese On U.S. Convoys

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, May 19.—How Japan and the other Axis powers might deal with any new situation in the world conflict—particularly United States convoying of material to Britain—has been the subject of frequent conversations among German, Italian and Japanese diplomats recently, informed sources said tonight.

The crux of last week's discussions was whether convoying could be construed as aggression under Article 3 of the Tri-Partite Pact which Japan signed eight months ago.

Article 3 provides that Japan, Germany and Italy "undertake to assist one another with all political, economic and military means when one of the three contracting parties is attacked by a power at present not involved in the European war or in the Sino-Japanese conflict."

Around the word "attacked" has centered much of the conversation among Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, German Ambassador Eugen Ott and Italian Ambassador Mario Indelli.

Some months ago, Matsuoka told foreign correspondents that the article could be invoked only in event of aggression. The German view is that American convoys of British war materiels shipments would constitute aggression, but how widely this view is held among Japanese officials is not known.

The newspaper Kokumin, in comment rather typical of the press, said:

"Japan's attitude is very simple. All depends on what America is going to do. Regardless of Japan's possible declaration of war, it is quite natural for Japan to extend material aid to the Axis. Whether war be declared or not is a secondary matter."

ployment in the industry due to the national defense program."

The settlement provided basic wage increases of 7½ per cent on all contract and day rates until October 1, when the increase will be advanced to 10 per cent. It also provided for a token payment of $20, or an equivalent vacation, to each person employed in the industry more than one year.

Lewis then turned his attention to the bituminous coal industry, where a deadlock exists between the union and Southern mine owners. Unless an agreement is reached before Friday, the case will be brought before the National Defense Mediation Board. In the meantime, however, Lewis postponed indefinitely his threat to renew the 30-day coal strike in eight Appalachian States.

Yesterday's new strikes in defense industries:

About 1,000 men abruptly left their jobs at American Shipbuilding Co.'s Lorain, Ohio, yards, halting work on six submarine net tenders being built for the Navy. The strike, involving seven A. F. of L. unions, was called to obtain a retroactive grant of wage increases. An employe spokesman said the walkout was "unauthorized at this time."

Operations at the Apollo Steel Co., Apollo, Pa., were halted by a C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee wage strike affecting about 900 men. The company holds $100,000 of defense orders, largely galvanized sheet iron for the Navy.

The railroad unions, which together represent about 350,000 engineers, firemen, trainmen, switchmen and conductors, declared their 30 per cent wage increase drive was equivalent to a demand for increases of not less than $1.80 a day. Their demands will be served on the railroads June 10, pursuant to provisions of the National Railway Mediation Board.

In a joint announcement, signed in Chicago by the presidents of the five unions, the railroad men said "soaring prices and the general increased cost of living, including rents and taxes imposed upon employes, are important factors in the situation."

Hopeful that tonight's mass meeting in San Francisco would be successful in securing an agreement of 1,700 striking A. F. of L. machinists to return to their jobs in the shipyards, defense officials here said the situation was nevertheless still "full of dynamite."

They explained that if some 15,000 other skilled A. F. of L. tradesmen persist in their decision, reached by the San Francisco Metal Trades Council Sunday, to cross the machinists' picket lines and go back to their jobs, violence might result.

It had been strongly indicated, however, that the men involved would not be asked to return until tonight's meeting, when Gov. Cuthbert L. Olson plans to urge the strikers to abandon their picket lines and go back to their jobs in the interest of national defense.

Miss Talley Admits Daughter's Birth 3 Weeks After Marriage

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, May 19.—Weeping and finally near collapse, Opera Singer Marion Talley testified today that she and Adolph Eckstrom, voice teacher, were married three weeks before the birth of their daughter, Susan, now 5.

Each is seeking a divorce.

Miss Talley admitted that after a romantic association with Eckstrom, who was giving her singing lessons, and on the eve of a great opportunity in motion pictures, she discovered that she soon would become a mother.

The singer said that Susan was born in secrecy at the St. Paul, Minn., home of Eckstrom's family physician, and she concealed her motherhood so she would not lose her contract with M-G-M. Studio.

As she testified, the brown-haired Missouri girl who rose to fame in grand opera and motion pictures, sobbed more and more until finally she could not go on and buried her face in her handkerchief.

Superior Judge Ingall W. Bull recessed court until tomorrow.

Eckstrom, whose presence in the courtroom Miss Talley had ignored, arose and left as she began the story of their premarital relationship.

In his opening statement to the court, Isaac Pacht, Miss Talley's lawyer, said:

"We might as well admit, because it will appear in evidence, that Miss Talley engaged in indiscretions with Mr. Eckstrom prior to their marriage, as a result of which their 5-year-old daughter, Susan, was born one month after their marriage."

Pacht told Judge Bull that Miss Talley went to St. Paul to give birth to the child, and that the evidence would show Eckstrom hid the baby from her for three years, placing the infant with relatives.

"We will prove that Eckstrom, through his former attorney, a New York lawyer, telephoned Miss Talley in Hollywood, demanding $150,000 as the price for information concerning the child's whereabouts. We will show that the New York lawyer made the call while Eckstrom listened in on an extension line.

MARION TALLEY

This $150,000 was to be split up three ways, Eckstrom and the lawyer getting $50,000 apiece and $50,000 being set up as a trust fund for the baby."

Philbrick McCoy, Eckstrom's lawyer, said he expected to show that at the birth of the child in a St. Paul physician's home, Miss Talley gave fictitious names for the mother, father and child on the certificate; that when she later signed a movie contract "she posed as childless and arranged to keep the child hidden in St. Paul for the six months that her film contract was to run."

"Eckstrom recklessly charged Miss Talley with wholesale sex infractions, wholesale acts of adultery with seven men for the purpose of destroying her reputation in the musical world, as a loving mother and an honest woman," said Pacht.

"He did not have the slightest evidence to support these false charges.

"Why, among other men with whom Eckstrom charges his wife with indiscreet conduct is her New York attorney, John S. Keith, a man 60 years of age."

Keith was in the courtroom.

Congress Faces No New Requests

Federal and local civilian defense programs, organize air raid precaution plans and promote recreational and health facilities in training camp communities.

In addition to his duties as mayor, LaGuardia now is cochairman of the Canadian-American Permanent Defense Board, and is chairman of the United States Conference of Mayors.

Legislators, who are running out of business, meanwhile speculated on a brief summer recess, and it was in this connection that the possibility of a message was said to have been broached.

Before considering any plans for a midsummer rest, leaders were reported to have sought and obtained assurance that no further legislation is planned.

While plans for a sine die adjournment were long-since abandoned, leaders hinted it might be possible to recess for a month or two after Congressional slates are clear in late June or July.

Dynamic Move Forecast

Copyright by New York Times

Important new moves in the field of international affairs, designed to adjust the policy of Western Hemisphere defense to the changing situation in Europe—especially to whatever collaborative arrangement may be worked out between Germany and the Vichy government of France—are expected to be taken by President Roosevelt in the next few days.

These steps, it was believed, would deal with the question of home defense, and with the status of French possessions in and near the Western Hemisphere, and possibly with the problem of safe delivery of war materials to the democracies for which there has been much agitation of late in Mr. Roosevelt's official family.

Inter-American Conference to Discuss Seizure of Idle Foreign Ships

By Lloyd Lehrbas
Associated Press Staff Writer

The proposals of the 21 American republics for utilizing nearly 200 foreign ships tied up in hemisphere ports will be presented for unified action at a meeting here Thursday of the Inter-American Financial and Economic Advisory Committee.

Envoys of the American nations, it was learned yesterday, are scheduled at that time to report on the number, tonnage, nationality and condition of all refugee ships now idle in their ports.

At the same time, it was learned, members of the committee will present their governments' specific recommendations for putting the vessels back into service to help relieve the acute shortage of cargo space on hemisphere trade routes.

Several South and Central American republics already have presented their views to the inter-American committee, and the United States is understood to be ready with an outline of its plans.

No uniform action on the idle ships has yet been taken by the American nations but Thursday's meeting may pave the way for formulation of a general hemisphere policy.

The United States has taken 44 ships (28 Italian, 14 French, and 2 German) into "protective custody" in addition to 39 Danish vessels in United States and Philippine ports.

At least six other nations—Mexico, Venezuela, Peru, Costa Rica, Ecuador and Cuba—have seized Axis ships, while Chile has taken over Danish vessels, but taken no action concerning German and Italian vessels.

An unofficial survey showed 89 German and Italian vessels in South and Central American ports: Brazil, 30; Argentina, 17; Mexico, 12; Venezuela, 10; Chile, 2; Uruguay, 5; Peru, 5; Colombia, 3; Costa Rica, 2, and Cuba, Ecuador and Panama one each. The exact number of French and Danish ships was not determined.

The inter American committee, acting on the original proposal by Foreign Minister Guina of Uruguay, has unanimously recommended that the American republics "declare that foreign-flag vessels immobilized in their ports by the war may now be utilized by the American republics in accordance with the rules of international law and their national legislations to promote the defense of their economies, the peace and security of the continent."

Henri-Haye to See Hull

Gaston Henri-Haye, Ambassador of the Vichy government, will confer with Secretary Hull this morning about the placing of Coast Guardsmen aboard French vessels in American harbors.

This visit was made known by the French Embassy tonight following receipt of reports here via the Havas and DNB news agencies that the French Ambassador has been "ordered" to make a protest.

An embassy spokesman said that no such order had been received and that it was unlikely that a formal protest would be made. It was added, however, that the Ambassador had expressed "surprise" from the time the Coast Guard took over the French vessels.

'The Brave Rifles' Celebrate 95th Anniversary With Parade

Twelve hundred strong, the Third Cavalry, "Brave Rifles" of the Mexican War, yesterday observed its ninety-fifth anniversary with a regimental formation at Fort Myer, Va., and a holiday.

COL. GORDON

Massed on the Fort Myer parade ground, with its red and white guidons fluttering in front and its band on the right, the regiment heard Maj. James K. Mitchell, its adjutant, read a special order celebrating Organization Day. In the order, Col. William W. Gordon, commanding, offered "congratulations to the officers and men of the Brave Rifles." He reminded the regiment that "the first flag on the walls of Mexico City was that of the Brave Rifles" and praised its "enviable record for loyalty, fidelity and valor" in all the Nation's wars since then.

In this day of fast motor convoys, he spoke of the time, in 1849, when the Third Cavalry, then the Regiment of Mounted Rifles, with 800 men and 1,600 animals, trekked 2,000 miles along the Oregon Trail. The trip then, from Fort Leavenworth, Kans., to Oregon City, Oreg., required almost a year, from May, 1849, to March, 1850.

Maj. Mitchell then read "warm greetings" to the regiment from Maj. Gen. John K. Herr, chief of Cavalry, then the regiment stood at attention while its band played the Brave Rifles March, and marched off the field to a day of rest and recreation.

Organized May 19, 1846, as the Regiment of Mounted Riflemen to garrison a line of forts from Missouri to Oregon Territory, the young regiment was tossed at once into the War with Mexico. In the battles of Vera Cruz, Cerro Gordo, Contreras, Curubusco, Molino del Rey, Chapultepec and Mexico City, it earned its first battle streamers. At the capture of Mexico City, it gained its accolade from Gen. Winfield Scott, who addressed it: "Brave Rifles! Veterans! You have been baptized in fire and blood and have come out steel."

In 1853 the regiment became the First Regiment of Mounted Riflemen and in 1861, the Third Cavalry. It served in all wars since and in numerous Indian fights on the Western frontier.

Fight Appears On Whitehurst Program Funds

A major battle over the financing of the Whitehurst program for new highway and bridge facilities in the District was hinted yesterday when the American Automobile Association announced results of a survey showing that "Washington is the only city in America where motor vehicle owners are called upon to carry practically the entire highway cost."

"It is only fair and proper that the Government should bear a substantial portion of the cost" of such programs, the statement declared, saying that "Federal Government business and buildings and employes are largely responsible for the growing congestion and strangulation that make the Whitehurst program and future programs necessary."

The survey showed that in contrast to Washington, where "the motorists carry virtually the entire highway load," only 69 per cent of the cost of city street facilities is charged against the motor vehicle tax in Baltimore, 26 per cent in Richmond and 24 per cent in Philadelphia, it was stated.

The statement from the A. A. A. came on the eve of hearings at the District Building on the Whitehurst improvement program.

Relief Secrecy Bill Goes to Congress

A bill to prohibit disclosure, except to relief officials, of information taken from the District public assistance rolls, was forwarded to Congress yesterday by the District Commissioners.

"The sole purpose of the bill," said Commissioner John R. Young in a letter to Speaker Rayburn, "is to provide safeguards to confine disclosure of information concerning applicants or recipients of relief to purposes directly connected with the relief program."

British Smash Two Axis Columns

spread damage and fires. The situation at the long-besieged British-held Libyan port of Tobruk was described as unchanged.

But far to the south the British siege of Amba Alaji, 280 miles northeast of the Abyssinian capital of Addis Ababa, came to a victorious end today when the tall Duke of Aosta, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel and Viceroy of Italian East Africa marched out to give themselves up.

Britain's Cairo headquarters announced that 7,000 Italian troops and a "considerable quantity of arms and war material" fell into British hands.

The 42-year-old royal duke was scheduled to surrender himself at noon tomorrow.

Two Other Points of Resistance

After telling of the capture of the Duke's troops, the communique related:

"It was further arranged, in compliance with his urgent request that he be the last to leave, that the Duke of Aosta, accompanied by Gen. Trezzani (commander of the garrison) and the Duke's personal staff of officers, will surrender at noon tomorrow."

Except for the Duke's own headquarters, British occupation of the town of Amba Alaji, situated atop a 9,000-foot peak commanding the highway from Addis Ababa to the British-held Eritrean capital of Asmara, was believed to be complete tonight.

Two other Fascist points of resistance in Abyssinia remain to be overcome by the British. They are Jimma, 200 miles south of Addis Ababa, and Gondar, about 200 miles west and south of Amba Alaji. British imperial forces advancing from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, the Cairo command announced, captured "important positions" in the Gondar area.

Aosta Hailed as Hero

Rome, May 19 (U.P.).—The "Iron Duke" of Aosta tonight was hailed as Italy's greatest hero of the war after surrendering himself and his defenseless, starving army of northern Ethiopia to the British at Amba Alaji.

The Italian Viceroy of Ethiopia was ready to die with his men atop Amaba Alaji Mountain "unless he received authorization to surrender" and end a 40-day siege that had stripped the Fascist garrison of its food and ammunition and filled the stronghold with wounded, it was said.

The Fascist high command announced that the duke, named Viceroy of Ethiopia and commander-in-chief in East Africa in 1937, is now a prisoner of the British along with his bedraggled troops.

In a message to Premier Mussolini just before the surrender, the duke said that "the war is not over" and "we shall shortly return to this land once again, stained with the blood of Italian soldiers who fought for the greatness of the mother country."

Mussolini in a wireless message to the capitulating viceroy said: "Your Highness: You and your soldiers fought heroically and resisted beyond the limits of human endurance. The Italian people admire you and concur with you in the certainty of forthcoming victory."

House Votes Fund For Gallery Design

Purchase at not more than $2,500 of a model of the winning design for the proposed Smithsonian Gallery of Art was authorized yesterday in a bill passed by the House. The measure has yet to be acted upon by the Senate.

Competitors for the design, conducted by the Smithsonian Gallery of Art Commission, are named in the bill as Eliel Saarinen, Eero Saarien and Robert F. Swanson.

Final payment to the competition consultants, $800 to Joseph Hudnut and $700 to Thomas D. Mabry, jr., also is authorized in the bill.

June 9 Set For Trial of 3 On Alien Law

Three alleged Soviet propagandists were ordered yesterday to appear in the District Court June 9 for trial on charges of conspiring to evade the law requiring all foreign agents to register with the State Department.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts fixed the date and indicated that he would not be disposed to grant further delay. The trial had been set for yesterday.

Accused are Raphael Rush, Norman Weinberg and Morris Liskin, alleged officials of Bookniga Corporation, which the indictment described as an instrument of Mezhniga, a Soviet agency with headquarters in Moscow.

Liskin pleaded guilty of failing to register and was fined $500 and sentenced to 4 to 18 months in jail. This plea, was made in December, 1939, soon after tht indictment was presented. The sentence was suspended and Liskin was released in $100 bond.

Irving A. Rubin, New Rochelle, N. Y., announced in court yesterday he was withdrawing as Liskin's attorney because the Department of Justice "double-crossed" his clinet. Rubin said in a sworn statement that the prosecutors promised that the conspiracy charge would be dropped if Liskin would plead guilty to the charge of failing to register.

Justice Letts overruled a defense motion, based on this alleged agreement, to drop the conspiracy charge against Liskin.

Prosecuting the alleged Russian agents will be Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Parker. Defending Weinberg will be former District Attorney Leo A. Rover. Attorney Isadore Englander will appear for Rush.

National P-TA Official Assails Horror Comics

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 19.—Representatives of the Nation's parents and teachers were told today there was danger to youth at a time of total defense from "the poisonous growth of action and horror comic magazines, some of which depict sex and even the abduction of children."

Exhibiting some magazines to members of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers at their forty-fifth meeting, Mrs. H. M. Mulberry, of Chicago, director of the organization's reading and library service, declared:

"At a time of national defense, when the interests of children should be directed to the ideals of democracy and of American life, such examples of overemationalism, horror, gruesomness and lurid color not only are a waste of time for all children, but for sensitive and highly imaginative children they offer the danger of false ideals."

At the same meeting, a message from President Roosevelt declared that "in the crisis of affairs by the Nation, it is of the utmost importance that parents and teachers plan a definite program for the development of character in their boys and girls, who will in a short time be men and women holding responsible positions and making far reaching decisions for the Nation."

Prof. T. V. Smith of the University of Chicago, calling for "mental and moral defense" of the Nation as well as military defense, and for preservation of the institutions "upon which free childhood rests," asserted at an evening session:

"We move now, indeed, to defend ourselves against the high tensional thought and action which in Germany turns play into drill, in Russia turns education into indoctrination, turns barter into buccaneering, turns courage into sadistic cruelty."

He said that military defense at this time was "imperative," but declared "military defense is the most odious of all forms of discipline to Americans. We have never thought the uniform glamorous, nor given our highest glory to military men unless they possessed also the gentler virtues."

House to Get St. Lawrence Project Soon

By the Associated Press

The Administration moved yesterday for prompt development of the controversial St. Lawrence seaway as a defense and British aid project.

Chairman Mansfield (Democrat), of Texas, of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee said he would introduce legislation "possibly within a week" authorizing the $277,000,000 project—dams to develop 2,200,000 horsepower of hydroelectric power and a 27-foot deep channel from the Great Lakes to the St. Lawrence River which would enable shipyards on the Lakes to build ocean-going vessels.

The measure, upon enactment, would constitute Congress' approval of the March 19 agreement between the United States and Canada to start the 15-year-old project at once in connection "with both the power supply and shipbuilding phases of our national defense program," as the State Department put it.

Unlike a treaty proposing a similar project which failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote for Senate ratification in 1934, the agreement needs only the concurrence of a simple majority in both houses.

President Roosevelt, reporting the agreement to Congress March 21 for its information, said that he would "request introduction, in due course, of legislation designed to make this agreement effective." Mansfield waved aside questions as to whether the President had asked him to offer the bill, but said he was acting after conferences with the State Department and Speaker Rayburn.

"I was opposed to the development solely for the purpose of providing a commercial seaway, but with the addition of power and the national defense features it makes a very different picture," Mansfield remarked, recalling that previous St. Lawrence legislation has been buried in his committee for five or six years.

Puppet Kingdom

Italy acquired a new domain in the Adriatic littoral on the very day that she lost her last important stronghold in East Africa. Of course, it was acquired by consent of Hitler. Some of the new territory will be incorporated in Italy; another slice becomes Croatia, an "independent kingdom" under Axis domination which has been given a princeling of the House of Savoy as its monarch.

Reports from Rome say that the pomp and ceremony attendant upon the formal birth of Croatia in the Eternal City were somewhat marred by a downpour of rain which tended to dampen the spirits of the claque assembled in the square in front of the Palazzo Venezia to cheer this Italian "triumph." But the great majority of Italians needed no rain to keep down their enthusiasm. The addition of a few hundred or few thousand square miles of beautiful but barren coastline on the other side of the Adriatic will not ease the bitter hurt over the loss of Ethiopia—whose annexation five years ago was trumpeted so lustily by Mussolini as a sign of Italian invincibility and Fascist vigor. Italians are earthy folk. They know that the victor in the Balkans was not Italy but Germany. They know that the presence of an Italian on the throne of the puppet kingdom of Croatia will not change the basic fact that the region will be under German rather than Italian domination. They realize that Italy herself is now an occupied country whose ultimate salvation can only be achieved through a British victory over Hitler. They have every reason, in short, to look the Croatian and Dalmatian gift horses in the mouth.

The world will not envy Italy's problem in government or administration, either. This latest Italian "victory" means that the Italians must police an area which, whatever internal divisions may have characterized it in the past, is united in hatred and contempt of Italy. Nor is the circumstance propitious that the Duke of Spoleto (to whom has been entrusted the crown of King Zvonomir) is the brother of the Duke of Aosta. Aosta has just surrendered to the British in Ethiopia. Undoubtedly the creation of the "Kingdom of Croatia" was timed to ease the pain produced by the loss of Ethiopia, though, we imagine, the only result will be to exacerbate it.

Labor Leadership

The vote of the Bay Cities Metal Trades Council to send workers through the picket lines established by striking machinists at 11 shipyards in the San Francisco area is a cheering development. Such action will undoubtedly make possible resumption of work on the huge shipbuilding program which has been held up since May 10 by the intransigeance of a little group of willful men. But, aside from the gratification which this news will cause from the standpoint of defense, the item is encouraging as evidence of a sense of responsibility on the part of some of our labor leaders. John P. Frey, international head of the A. F. of L. metal trades unions, took the initiative which brought the Bay Cities Council into action. And there is no derogation from this tribute either to Mr. Frey or the local organization in the knowledge that this strike, if continued much longer, would have necessitated resort to strong-arm action by the Government.

This particular West Coast tieup, as we said on Sunday, offered a direct challenge to organized labor which it would have been perilous for it to ignore. It raised squarely the question whether a small group of strategically placed skilled workers should be assisted in their efforts to obtain special concessions for themselves by virtually sabotaging a major collective bargaining agreement acceptable to the preponderant majority of their fellow workers. If, by the simple device of setting up picket lines, a dissident minority could prevent a majority from fulfilling the terms of contracts negotiated with employers in good faith, collective bargaining might as well have been thrown out of the window. Mr. Frey evidently realized the need to maintain discipline in the ranks and to suppress irresponsible practices which have aroused widespread public indignation and hostility toward labor unions. This is why he acted with such commendable firmness to put an end to an anarchic state of affairs which not only constituted a threat to the national defense program, but also jeopardized the gains won by organized labor in its fight for recognition of the right to bargain collectively.

Mr. Hull's Credo

Thomas a Kempis observed that all men desire peace, but very few desire those things that make for peace. In a speech on Sunday night the Secretary of State, outlining the economic war aims which would help to insure peace, called for many things which in prewar days we had forgotten, let alone desired, but which, nevertheless, are fundamental in the organization and maintenance of world peace. Much of our present trouble today is due to this neglect.

We may reorder Mr. Hull's aims so as to begin with first things first. Surely the primary aim in our economic dealings with other nations is nondiscrimination. This is Mr. Hull's second item. Discrimination, or exclusive arrangements between nations in which third parties do not participate, sows the seed for international discord. If a nation finds itself on the outside in a deal concluded by two other nations, naturally it will aim at reprisal, and before long a state of economic war is in progress.

Our Nation has to its credit a latter-day pioneering in behalf of nondiscrimination. To Mr. Hull himself belongs the credit. Most people think that his trade agreements program was directed mainly at the reduction of tariff barriers. But there was a more basic aim in his policy. He sought to end discriminations in trade agreements, and to that end insisted upon the insertion of a clause in every one of his agreements which provided that all nations should share in the benefits of the agreement. The clause was given a mouthful of a name. It was called the unconditional most-favored-nation clause, and, though it came trippingly off Mr. Hull's tongue (though sometimes he called it equality of treatment), few other people cared to pronounce it, let alone understand it.

Yet the idea behind this clause is traditional American doctrine and the clause itself must always remain the master rule in world economic organization. George Washington himself had something to say about it. In his Farewell Address he enjoined a commercial policy which should "hold an equal and impartial hand, neither seeking nor granting exclusive favors or preferences." He knew that the world could not live as "a band of brothers" without it, that, in other words, it must be the foundation stone of trade intercourse. All the other items in Mr. Hull's blueprint fall into place on top of it: no discrimination in the availability to the world of raw material supplies, no excessive trade restrictions, protection of consumers in any international agreements, a proper operation of international lending for the development of the world which shall also provide for proper repayment of loans.

Again in some of these items our policy is traditional and our record fairly clear. We stand for the open door in the raw material producing countries as well as for a free field and no favor in the terms of international trade. As the world's greatest consumer of raw materials we have suffered from the monopolism exercised by the proprietary nations of raw material areas. For rubber we paid the British and the Dutch through the nose for several years. For tin we had our troubles with a selling cartel. But we ourselves were at fault in the matter of trade restrictions and international finance. Tariff barriers in themselves are no impediment to a peaceful world. But when they are raised indiscriminately and frequently, as we in recent years have raised them, they play havoc with the development of trade. In our case we also bear a responsibility for the world's ills in ignoring our obligations as a creditor country. The more loans we made in helping to move our goods abroad, the more we stepped up the barriers to repayment in goods. Instead we either made more loans or took gold, and the result was to help to bring down over our heads all organization and system in our international life.

Mr. Hull's war aims may be said to be a companion piece to Mr. Roosevelt's. The President has stated four human freedoms that we should strive for. One is freedom from want. The trouble is that sometimes in our preoccupation with spreading incomes we are apt to forget the necessity of earning them. Mr. Hull shows once again that the way to raise the incomes of the entire world is to unclog and broaden and deepen the channels of world trade. In that way we shall help to insure the more perfect peace which, as Sherman said, should be the end of war.

Syrian Key

On Sunday the official Beirut radio broadcast an announcement that France would remain on the side of Germany and the "new order." Soon after Gen. Henri Fernand Dentz, France's high commissioner to Syria and Lebanon, came to the microphone to issue a stern warning to the British against the bombing of Syrian air fields. In other words, it is entirely in order, so far as Vichy is concerned, for Hitler to use Syria as a base from which to launch an attack against the British in the Middle East, but it is an act of "criminal aggression" if the British try to stop it! And the plain implication of Gen. Dentz's warning is that the French in Syria will take up arms against the British unless the latter permit the Nazis free entry into the mandated area.

This attitude, so destructive of France's long run interests and of her hope of ultimate freedom from the Nazi yoke, makes it clear that Vichy is now wholly a catspaw of the Third Reich. For that reason the question may well be raised whether any further useful purpose can be served by the continuation of American recognition of Marshal Petain's puppet regime. The American people, who are bound to the people of France by historic ties, have only the deepest sympathy for them. Having been defeated by the Nazis, France is now being betrayed by those who profess to speak in its name. The extent of that betrayal is brought out in the events now taking place in Syria.

Rail Trouble

Looming on the horizon appears a labor dispute on the railroads. Representatives of the five railway brotherhoods assembled Saturday in Chicago to discuss such topics as increases in basic rates of pay, vacations with pay, allowances for expenses away from home, and —that bane of all-out effort—changes in working rules that would create jobs for more men when the country is suffering from a scarcity of labor. It all sums up to just one thing for the railroads: Higher operating expenses and reduced earnings due to increased wages and higher labor costs.

From present indications the carriers may earn enough this year to produce an average return of 4 per cent on their property investment. That is a very modest rate. But it looks good because it represents a marked improvement over the wretched earnings record of previous years. As such it represents an opportunity for the rail unions. Having succeeded in boosting hourly rates of pay to record high levels during the depression years, when some roads could not even cover operating expenses and taxes, assuredly they will not miss an opportunity to demand further increases at this time. There is no indication in past experience that the rail managements will be able to offer effective resistance to their demands.

Admittedly the roads are the victims of uncoordinated regulatory policies affecting wages and rates which have seriously impaired their ability to earn fair returns on their investment. Indeed, they may have completely destroyed it. Caught between demands for wage increases at the expense of earnings, and demands for downward revision of freight charges, which are most insistent when times are bad, the railroads have been squeezed in the past, and can hardly expect much better treatment in the future. And, in addition to their regulatory troubles, they face increasingly strong competition from rival transportation systems. No doubt the roads will be able to struggle along and make a fair earnings record so long as the defense program creates new business for them. But eventually, with the restoration of more normal conditions, it will be necessary to face the problems of this regulated industry. Specifically we shall have to make up our minds whether it is to be given the leeway essential to survival as a privately owned concern or be taken over by the Government.

MOZART: SYMPHONY IN E-FLAT MAJOR

Tonight from a long-vanished summer, from a bright season lost,
Came this remembrance on a tide of sound,
And I was moved to wonder: "Were they days
Of placid sunlight and deep shadows? Did the wind
Move gently over dreaming fields at noon?
Or were there storms and rushing surf of clouds and drifts of rain?"

I should say sunlight, rather, having heard
Your heavenly laughter, Mozart, in a night
Of ominous winter, having sat entranced
To hear you speak tonight across the gulf of years
That lie between your joy and ours, between your grief
So splendidly put by and ours held back a while
By this, your deathless magic, whereby time
Is cozened of his prey, and death is foiled.

THE GATE

He took no credit that his gate
Swung open into the rising sun,
Except that he had kept it straight
And latched it each time he was done
With passing through, so that it swung
For him and not for every gust
That passed his way since he was young.
But, since the sun was there, he must
Have something in himself to blame
If there was not an answering spark
To welcome such a golden flame
Where all had been but lately dark.
And, having no such blame, he knew
How soon there would be no excuse
For any gate that we go through
If we could find no better use
For it than keeping something out . . .
He saw the Gate of Dawn begin
To open, shining all about
A World that it was letting in.

Musical Instrument Tax

The proposal of the Treasury Department that a new tax bill include a luxury levy of 10 per cent on musical instruments is unsound. Not only do I believe that it is unsound but it is dangerous.

I believe that musical instruments are tools of education and of trade. I think I am expressing the opinion of the majority of music dealers as well as artists, manufacturers, and educators when I make the assertion that millions of boys and girls are studying music because it benefits as an educational medium.

In these troublesome times we should think of music as we did in the last war when it was thought necessary in stirring patriotism and stimulating the morale in both the military service and at home. Friends of music all over the country are writing and wiring in opposition to this tax.

FCC Ruling

I was very much disappointed by the complacent and resigned tenor of your editorial, "Chain Broadcasting," in The Post of May 8, commenting upon the recent arbitrary ruling of the Federal Communications Commission. If this ruling is allowed to stand, it can only lower the high standards of broadcast programs this country is now enjoying. Trust or no trust, the American people are well-satisfied with the quality of the programs of the present chains, and it is earnestly hoped that the N. A. B. and the chains will resist the ruling of this bureaucratic outfit. All persons that are able to see the handwriting on the wall should protest vehemently to the proper Senate Committee. The Wage And Hour Law

Let us keep, if we are to be wise, the Wage Hour Law in full force just as it now stands. It is silly to consider relaxing this law, as there are in the United States today more than 10,000,000 unemployed men. The ever-growing magnitude of national defense work which meets with the approval of the American people will absorb millions of our unemployed, many of whom have not had any work in years. Because of unemployment, they have suffered much from being poorly clad, ill-fed and ill-housed.

Any employer has every reason to expect good results and efficiency from a 40-hour a week employe but he has no reason, unless he be a fool, to expect the same efficiency from a 48 or a 60-hour a week employe. A worker who works more than 40 hours a week is taking bread and butter out of the mouths of one or more persons. A job that keeps a man at work more than 40 hours a week is a job on which the employer loses, and, although the employe gains time and a half in overtime pay, it is to the detriment of his employer because the employe's work is not up to par.

It is democratic and right to keep, not a few or a particular class of manpower of a nation employed, but to keep as many, and if possible, all employed. A minimum hour law is not an obstacle to defense production, but it may be, and likely is, an obstacle to nondefense production, the operators of which will shout loudest because it prevents them from utilizing cheap labor. Japan And U. S.

As a regular subscriber to "The Post," I wish to tell you that your editorials and other articles concerning the world situation are among the best. Your paper holds a most distinguished place, for you are located in the Nation's Capital, and your circulation includes the most prominent persons in our Federal Government. Your world distribution sends your paper to the far distant points of the compass, and when you speak your message carries the utmost significance.

Please accept the challenge that has been thrown at our country. Please come out on the side of action instead of futile words. It is really pathetic to read daily papers and see such remarks as "Japan warns America that if . . .": "Germany threatens America with severe action unless . . .": "Italy warns America that she may be the victim of united action from four great powers . . ." etc. Isn't it about time that America answers these hounds? Are the hands of the Statue of Liberty tied behind her back so that she cannot strike when the hour has come? Has America ever remained on the inactive and passive side when danger threatened? Has any war ever been won on the defensive? Did the red-blooded men of America remain East of the Mississippi, or did they fight their way to the Pacific? Has America become so soft that it cannot bear to hear a gun fire?

Japan has already entered into a sworn agreement as our enemy. She is waiting for the opportune moment to play the jackal role, just as Italy did with France and with Greece. Just as Russia did with Poland. Why in the name of Providence doesn't America use the might that she has while it can be effective? Strike Japan now with the only striking weapon we have, our Navy.

The Pacific seems to be too small for both America and Japan. Either we lick Japan or she licks us. There can be no compromise. England is fighting our war in the Atlantic, just as she did 23 years ago. Our job is in the Pacific. I am confident that 75 per cent of the American people would rejoice if their radio message came through that the American fleet had sunk the Japanese overrated navy and that every coastal city in Japan had been shelled for 24 hours.

For Convoys

My three sons are of draft age, so you can see that I would like to keep this country out of war. I know as long as England fights, Hitler cannot attack us, as he has repeatedly threatened to do. At one time people laughed when Hitler threatened a country, but now it is no more a matter of laughter, since he has redeemed his promises and imposed his brutal lawlessness on one country after another.

Britain is the last stronghold of democracy in Europe, and in order to implement the purpose of the lease-lend bill we must supply her with war materials even if it means convoys. Under international law, under the theory of "reprisals" we have this right, since Hitler, the head of a state, has threatened to sink our ships on sight. Hitler will not declare war on us as long as the British navy, an integral part of our first line of defense, prevents his coming here.

In this struggle between liberty and tyranny, when our freedom and all that makes life worth living is imperiled, we must see that the embattled British get the goods our lawmakers voted to give them!

Congress must now act to permit convoys! JULIA PRIMOFF.

Of Our Recognition Of Germany

Severance by America of relations with the existing German government would be in consonance with the historic pronouncements and traditional practice of the United States. International law justifies a nation that denies recognition to a new state whose legality and stability are not assured, and to a new state that demonstrates an unwillingness or an incapacity to respect international rights and to perform international duties, and by analogy to end recognition of a state whose nature is so varied as to exhibit a new state, or whose acts are de facto hostile to the established society of nations.

The present German government is not the government recognized by the United States, a fact that is visible when the acts and professions of that government are contrasted with the international wrongs perpetrated and the spheric pretensions voiced by the Nazis.

In respect of the Russian government, recognition by the United States was delayed for years so that we might be convinced of the Soviet's stability and capacity to fulfill international duties, an invisible element being a preparedness to defend international rights, a hiatus that distinguishes the American neutrality law's provisions that expose to violence the right of freedom of the seas.

We are now of a single belief that the present government in Germany respects, and is determined to respect, no international rule that is not of German devising excepting only as Germany's respect may be compelled by arms and such devices as famine that the law of nations sanctions for the purpose of forcing an enemy to surrender.

Whether the present German nation is a new state, or is the old state gone lawless, is for our Government to determine. Whatever the decision may be, a partial remedy for the moral and legal inconsistences in the anomalous situation would be the discontinuance of diplomatic relations with a government and people whose right to the advantages of the law and comity of nations is forfeited.

During the Napoleonic wars, the Netherlands were annexed for some years to France, and later subjected to a Bonapartist prince, their independence being revived by the Treaty of Vienna in 1815. At the occasion of a dispute with the United States concerning treaty stipulations, the Netherlands argued that during the French and Bonapartist periods the nation's independence was extinguished, so that the treaty provisions were void. The United States, not accepting completely the Netherlands' argument, decided that a new Netherlands state was created in agreement with the peace dictated to Europe, so that the treaty with America negotiated by a previous Netherlands state was void.

A Germany with a considerable part of Europe seized forcibly and some territories proclaimed to constitute integral parts of the state, and which pretends to the hegemony of Europe and to primacy, by right of violence, in the earth, is not the same German state as that recognized by America. Now that the nature of the existing German state is plainly defined, the continuance of diplomatic relations might appear to constitute a tacit acquiescence, if with protest, in some of Germany's lawless acts, and compromise lawful justice in the presence of lawless violence, while the enemies of men's liberty are warring to make of independent states, instead of holy altars of free nations, as they might best be, demoniacal sacrifices. Claim to Fame

My two years as a high school teacher have been filled with many interesting episodes, but none of them had promised me immortality until I came across some Armenians.

Every one who reads Saroyan or sees his plays knows about the Armenians. They are rich, sentimental, gusty, and earthy, full of laughter, and with a great love for talk—any kind of talk, but especially talk of people. They love America and its democracy, and they stand in awe of education and knowledge. Even the lowliest Armenian has a great respect for anyone who is concerned with books. I suppose that is why Mr. George Halebabikian has honored my name and, in a way, has promised me immortality. It is because I am a teacher.

At the beginning of last semester, while they were writing compositions, I looked around at the faces of my second termers in English, in order to learn their names, and I found myself looking at a black-eyed little girl of 13, who smiled at me in a dark and wonderful way. I liked that sort of smile, and I knew I would remember her name because of it. I consulted the roll book and saw that she was Annabella Halebabikian.

Dispensing favors as only a teacher can, I made Annabella a monitor, and she used to collect the money for the school magazine and the school play.

Though Annabella was shy, she became talkative once or twice during the term, and she told me about herself. She was 14 years old, and she had come to America when she was 7. Each year her father, who had arrived here four years before Annabella and her brother, and who was now in the wholesale fruit business, had sent for two of his children, and now the whole family was happily assembled in America. She likes America very much. She liked the movies and roller skating and the boys and girls and school. She liked me, too, and I told her that I liked her.

She must have talked to her father about me, for not very long after, I received a note from him: "Annabella is my favorite daughter. She is obedient, and she is very smart. Some day she will be a bookkeeper. I appreciate your interest in my daughter. Between the two of us, she will become an educated and successful girl. Answer please."

I answered: "Thank you for writing to me about Annabella. She does her work well, and her deportment is excellent. I'm quite sure that your faith in her will be justified."

I was told by Annabella, the next day, that my letter caused a good deal of excitement in the Halebabikian household. It hadn't occurred to me that I had used Board of Education stationery. The official letterhead, the elaborate watermark, and the important seal had deeply affected Mr. Halebabikian. As a matter of fact, everything in the letter had pleased him very much. The contents, my signature, and my first name, Bernard, caused him endless joy.

Annabella said that her father framed the letter immediately and hung it on the wall. Then he called in his ten children and made a speech in Armenian. In the speech he lauded Annabella and exhorted the other children to be like her so their teachers would write to him about them. He praised my character and proclaimed me great. He was positive that I was one of the best teachers—if not the best—in the country. He pointed to my signature and glowingly described it as unique. He said that my name was a wonderful name. He concluded with some words on the meaning of democracy and education. Then he dismissed the children.

Two months later, on a Thursday night, the faculty assembled in the boys' gym for parents' night. That is the night in each term when the parents and relatives of our students visit us in order to discuss, rather avidly, their children's work and personality.

At 9 o'clock, I was discussing Skinny's faulty sentence structure with his mother, when one of the senior ushers joyfully led a parade over to my corner. It was headed by Mr. and Mrs. Halebabikian, followed by Annabella, and then in descending chronological order, the other nine children.

Mr. Halebabikian, a bald-headed, heavily built, little man, with eyes and smile like Annabella's, introduced me to his wife, a pleasant woman, who was a good six inches taller than he, and to their children. He called off their names sonorously, each time drawing out the stressed syllable.

I was under the impression that all Armenians named their children as they are named in Saroyan's stories: Melik, Bedros, Pantalon, and Aram. Not Mr. Halebabikian. His boys were named Alexander, Zachariah, Leopold, Emanuel and Constantine. The girls were Annabella, Eloise, Philomena, Isabella and Imogene. Mr. Halebabikian said he had an ear for names, and that they should fit the person's character. He extolled me to the children and informed them that they were standing in the presence of a great man. They stared at me in open-eyed wonder, and I began to feel as though I had just signed the Emancipation Proclamation, or that I had done something equally wonderful. Mr. Halebabikian, holding Annabella in front of him, assured me solemnly that I was a wonderful teacher. Then he shook my hand and led his family away.

That was last term. In February of this semester, Annabella left my class because she was promoted into English three, which was taught by another teacher. However, neither she nor her father forget me. One day I met Annabella in the hall, and we stopped to chat for a moment.

She smiled her dark, wonderful smile and said, "I have a new baby brother."

I said that I was glad and that I hoped he would grow up to be a happy and successful man.

"Oh, he's going to be a teacher," said Annabella. "My father named him after you."

Hail to you, Bernard Halebabikian. I shall await you in these halls.

Business As Usual

OCCASIONALLY a tendency, an atmosphere or a situation within the Government is succinctly summed up in a brief episode. A little thing happens. And in the light of it one is suddenly able to understand a puzzling big thing. Such an episode was the dispute between one of the Office of Production Management's construction supervisors and an official with the expressive title of OPM steel expediter.

ALSOP

For some time now, supplies of structural steel for new defense plants have not been regularly available. The construction men at OPM have been complaining pretty loudly to the raw materials division. The difficulty came to a head a couple of weeks ago when work on one of the vitally important new factories for big bombers at Fort Worth, Tex., was slowed down by a steel shortage. The man checking construction progress had evidence that structural steel of the sort needed at Fort Worth was being shipped in large quantities to New York, for private building projects. He passed his information on to the OPM raw materials divison, where the problem was referred to the steel expediter.

THE STEEL EXPEDITER then made a careful investigation of the situation, and sat down and wrote a report to the construction man. The construction man, said the report, was correct in every charge that he made. Steel was indeed going to New York that could be used at Fort Worth. Therefore steel was not available for Fort Worth. The construction man replied, with considerable heat, "Hell, I knew that all along," and pointed out that application of a priorities ruling might be advisable. A bitter row within the OPM ensued, but in the end, so far as can be learned, nothing was done.

There has been a good deal of talk, much of it justified, about the harm done the defense effort by New Deal axe-grinding. The above is a specimen of the harm done by the businessmen, among many of whom the attachment to the psychology of business-as-usual is so strong as to amount to axe-grinding of another kind. The worst manifestation of this business psychology has been a fear of wartime over-expansion of industry, and resulting post-war economic disruption. Any reasonably intelligent man who reads the morning headlines ought to be able to see that this is no time to worry about the post-war economic picture. If the defense effort is unsuccessful, our free economy is doomed in any case.

YET IN THREE crucial fields, steel, aluminum and railroad cars, this fear of over-expansion has caused planning for the future on a miserably inadequate scale. The aluminum shortage is now a public scandal. The possibility of a steel shortage, long predicted by the OPM economist, Stacy May, was solemnly ridiculed in an elaborate report by Gano Dunn. Dunn, an extremely able engineer, seems to have had the wool pulled over his eyes by the steel companies. For a steel shortage is also an established fact today, and rigid priorities must be immediately enforced if the defense effort is not to suffer further. A railroad car shortage, also called impossible by the business-as-usual crowd, is also rapidly developing.

Nor are these special and out of the ordinary problems. On the contrary, they are simply normal outgrowths of a besetting vice at OPM, of which numerous other outgrowths can also be cited. A minor example was that of the strongly defense-minded New York county whose supervisors evolved a system of voluntary scrap-iron collections for defense. The system was disapproved by a minor OPM official on the grounds that it might arouse a dangerous sense of emergency among the citizenry. Similarly, a system under which the Sanitation Department was to collect New York's scrap iron and scrap aluminum, devised by the brilliant AEF salvage expert of the last war, Col. C. R. Van Etten, was turned down at OPM on the simple ground that it was too novel.

THIS KIND of nonsense should be put a stop to, and it is to be hoped that the President will not spare the feelings of the men responsible for it. Nor is it necessary to hand the OPM over to the New Dealers, as a few of the New Dealers like to think, just because certain of the OPM businessmen have not waked up to the realities of their task. A powerful, though apparently a minority faction among the OPM businessmen is already completely awake.

The views of this group were recently expressed by W. L. Batt, deputy chief of production, who has gained the reputation of being the hardest-driven official in the OPM setup. In a broadcast speech Batt demanded a "radical change of attitude" among "some people," in Government, in industry and in the labor unions. Overtime work, more rapid expansion of facilities and a program more broadly planned were Batt's three recommendations. His speech was timed to coincide with publication of a report by the National Planning Association, which he heads, urging that the defense program be conceived in terms of $100,000,000,000 of expenditure, rather than of $40,000,000,000. Only in this way, the report said, could we begin to equal the German and British records of putting half the national productive effort into defense.

KINTNER

ON ANY LOGICAL grounds, it is impossible to answer the question, "Why should we not do as well as the enemy?" The result of Batt's speech, and the report, however, is understood to have been an unholy ruckus within the OPM, in which his immediate superior, Production Chief John Biggers, the leading advocate of the policy of go slow, is said to have taken a conspicuous part. But the personalities and the rows are not important. All that is important is getting the job done. And there is very little time left to do it in.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Interview With Hess

"Now, come across with the truth, Rudolf, why did you fly to Scotland?" we asked Herr Hess.

He was quite candid. "To be nearer Hitler," he replied.

"But Hitler isn't in Scotland," we argued.

"That's what you think," he replied. "Hitler has been in Scotland all winter. I'm surprised you didn't know."

"You're mistaken," we replied. "What would he be doing in Scotland?"

"He has a place there. It's called Berchtesgaden."

"Berchtesgaden is not in Scotland."

"It is now. He flew it over."

"Who flew it over?"

"The German general staff and a couple of German gods."

"That's quite impossible."

"Not at all," insisted Herr Hess. "If Berchtesgaden were sane it would be impossible, but the place is nuts. By the way, would you mind pressing the buzzer for Goering?"

"Goering?"

"Yes. He's around he house somewhere."

"Don't be absurd."

"I'm not absurd. Nothing is absurd to a Nazi, not even a Nazi buzz for Goering."

"He is not here."

"You're quite wrong. Have you looked in the guest rooms?"

"How would Goering get in a guest room in Scotland?"

"Violet ray. Not really a violet ray, but a new German ray capable of transporting four persons. It was a little weak to carry Goering, but he made it."

"We have been through every guest room. They are empty," we said.

"They could be empty and have Goering in 'em."

"That's professional jealousy, Herr Hess," we insisted.

"Can I get a phone call through to Dundee?" asked Herr Hess suddenly.

"What for?"

"I want to talk to Goebbels."

"Goebbels in Dundee?"

"He arrived during the night, flying a toy plane."

"A human being can't fly a toy plane."

"Goebbels can . . . and still have room for 100 pounds of plots."

"Please be serious."

"I am," Herr Hess insisted. "By the way, I'd like to run into town and see the Graf Spee. It should have made Glasgow by this time. It's a wonderful long-range hopper."

"You might be a little reasonable, after all."

"The Bremen's there, too. It was spotted over the moors and shot down last night."

"Was it hurt?" we asked, a little dizzy by this time.

"The poop deck was sprained and the larboard watch was scratched up. I had a long talk with the aft deck. It said it had come to save the world."

"Will you have some breakfast?" we inquired. "Boiled eggs or some Matsuoka cuts?"

"I never use Matsuoka," replied Herr Hess.

"Now, I know you're lying. One lump or two?"

"One lump or two of what?" asked Herr Hess. He was getting a little queer now, too.

"Of Von Papen," we replied. "He just arrived. He flew over on a left-handed stepladder, using nothing but oil for range finding."

"Say, are you crazy?" demanded Herr Hess.

"Who isn't these days?" we replied.

Button Hole won a race in New York the other day. He had been tightened up, obviously.

Quentin Reynolds is the newsreel voice describing the sensational reel "The Battle of the Atlantic," and again does it impress hearers as the most effective voice in newsreels. It is voice reflecting poise, calm, restraint and, above all, unspeakable sadness. To sit through a newsreel twice generally requires effort, but to sit through a newsreel voice twice is in this case a satisfying experience.

On "Information Please" the other night one of the questions was, "What characters in fiction are brought to mind by knitting?" And nobody mentioned the character who has figured millions of times in all descriptions of a contemplated play, "So-and-so and So-and-so."

The typographical error of the week occurs on the menu at La Guardia Field, or at least it seems so to a passenger who has just had a rough trip. It is a cocktail listed as "Thumps Up."

Reflecting the cockeyed season, Jay Vee observes that, "April flowers bring May showers."

G. H. Q. Air Force

By Rice Yahner.
Associated Press Staff Writer

World's Greatest Striking Power

PILOTS are being trained at the rate of 12,000 a year, and the Army Air Corps has projected its schedule to 30,000 a year.

Mechanics are coming from Army Air Corps schools at the rate of 45,000 a year.

A national goal of 50,000 planes has been set for the Army's air arm that is being organized and outfitted to meet any threat in the Western Hemisphere.

But all the production of trained men and planes means little to the defense of the Americas unless it is welded into an army of the air.

To give the Nation just that, the General Headquarters Air Force has been organized, projected as the greatest air striking power in the world and distributed so that a force can be concentrated at any point in the Western Hemisphere within 24 hours.

Formed six years ago on a plan that was originated in 1917 but with the benefit of experience from observers of the great air battles over Britain, the General Headquarters Air Force is concerned with combat alone. Maj. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, now in the Canal Zone, was the latter-day author of the idea.

RECENTLY President Roosevelt called for greatly accelerated production of heavy bombers. Carrying out the President's command is the function of the War Department and the Office of Production Management.

The G. H. Q. Air Force is concerned only with the finished product—planes and the men to fight them.

The job of this ever-growing force of specialists in the science of air combat—so important since the European conflict demonstrated the necessity for control of the skies—is to blanket the Nation and watch the hemisphere with its planes.

Because production has only recently begun to mount—it is approaching 1,500 planes a month, and Britain is getting an undisclosed portion of that—G. H. Q.'s force of combat planes probably numbers only a few thousands now.

The President has set a goal of 50,000 planes for the Nation. By the gauge of the other air forces of the world, that will mean about 25,000 combat planes, the remainder trainers, transports and such.

To have a fighting force immediately available wherever it might be needed, the Army has districted the Nation thus:

First Air Force—Covers the Northeast, with the main base at Mitchel Field, Long Island. Its planes, from there and nine other fields, are to cover from New York to Michigan and as far south as the Virginia-Carolina line.

Second Air Force—McChord Field, Spokane, Wash., is the base of this Northwest unit covering east to Boise, Idaho, within flying distance of Michigan.

Third Air Force—The Southeast headquarters are Tampa, Fla., the force extending as far west as Mississippi.

Fourth Air Force—Southwest headquarters are at Riverside, Calif., with operations as far east as Tucson, Ariz., and its territory reaching eastward to overlap with the Third Air Force.

With the speed and range of the modern military plane, each force is in position to support the other within a few hours.

This decentralized field army of the air has many operating bases within each Air Force district. General headquarters are at Bolling Field, within sight of the Capitol dome.

COMMANDER of it all is Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, tall, athletic appearing 58-year-old West Virginian who started in the Army as an infantryman and has been flying since 1917.

He has equal rank with the commander of the four armies, and like them, in event of war, will work immediately under the general field headquarters.

All the energies of the Air Force are directed toward perfecting the General Headquarters Air Force. Other branches of the Air Corps are concerned with the vast and ever expanding program of developing and testing planes, enlisting and training pilots, bombardiers, photographers, observers, navigators, gunners, radio operators, mechanics and the thousands of men required to keep a vast force in the air.

The work of 12 to 15 ground men—most of them highly skilled—is needed to keep one pilot and plane in action.

Each segment of the Army's air force will have two general fighting units—a bomber command and an interceptor command. The bomber, just as it names implies, is the force charged with destroying enemy strongholds, whether they be military or the vital production centers. The interceptor command directs the swift, deadly smaller planes, armed with cannon and machine guns, that are able to put enemy flights out of action or protect our own bombers.

Working closely with the interceptor commands will be the civilian aircraft spotters—planned to total more than 500,000—who are being organized to watch the skies and report instantly to air force headquarters any hostile planes.

Although the General Headquarters Air Force is designed to be most flexible with expansion possible to the limit of the availability of pilots and planes, a representative setup of a bomber command would include a wing of two groups and two reconnaissance squadrons. One group would be of heavy bombers—the four-motored, long-range ships on which so much effort is being concentrated. The planes of the other group would be of medium size—the familiar two-motor craft developed generally from the better-known transport types.

THE GROUP of heavies would consist of three squadrons of 8 planes each while the mediums would total three squadrons of 13 planes each.

Each interceptor command would be composed of two wings each. Each wing would have three groups. Each group would be composed of three squadrons, with more than 200 planes to each wing.

The interceptors are the fastest fighters the Army can get. Most familiar of the present types are the bi-motored Lockheed P-38, the single motored, cannon-bearing Bell "Airacobra" and the fighters made by Curtiss (P-40) and Republic (P-43). These are the standard types already in production. Variations and improvements of the modes are constantly being tested.

Roughly the bombers are 200 to 300-mile-an-hour planes; the interceptors' speeds range to 100 miles an hour faster.

Observation squadrons of National Guard units in the States are not a part of the air force G. H. Q. Their duty is to be the eyes of the ground forces, reconnoitering enemy positions, directing artillery and other missions assigned them by the commander of the field army.

In addition to the four air forces set up for the United States, the air force G. H. Q. has bases and planes in Panama, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Trinidad, and the Philippines.

A New Threat

By John C. Goodbody

British And The Jehad

WAR DRUMS beat in the Near East, and the British face a new crisis. Fighting in Irak upthrusts the menace of a religious war. More than 200,000,000 Mohammedans on the rim of the Mediterranean, in the deep Near East, and in India would be affected if the banner of a jehad, or "holy war," should be raised. To the British war machine, now trying to block a Nazi putsch toward rich Iraq oil fields, the threat of Moslem discontent and sabotage is a serious one.

England has long been in hot water in the Near East. Arabs who cooperated with Allenby and Lawrence were outraged with the post-war settlement. Palestine "incidents" have pinpricked a long-lived discontent. Gossip, often via the Italian radio, has spread through Iran and Afghanistan to India, where many Moslems harbor a smoldering antipathy to Great Britain.

TODAY, a new element has been added in the case of Moslems in Morocco; the nonintervention of Weygand and the French army here is essential to British defense plans. Significant repercussions will also be felt in Turkey, which only four years ago signed a nonaggression pact with Irak, Iran and Afghanistan.

The foundations of a pro-Islam movement, which may now be turned against England, were laid by Germany and Italy, especially Italy. Since Mussolini came to power, Italian radio stations have unleashed vicious anti-British broadcasts through the Near East. Italian planes and technical advisers have poured into this area. When I was in Kabul three years ago 30 Italian planes had just been bought on easy terms by the Afghan government, and a good-natured Italian mechanic had been "loaned" by Italy to keep the planes in top-notch condition. Italian army officers had just finished training and renovating the Afghan army.

In Iran—or Persia—the Shah rode to power on the ground-swell of anti-British sentiment. From his gaudy new palace at Teheran, he directs a strong "Persia for the Persians" policy, which is generally aimed at the ouster of any Anglophiles. The Shah's Triumphal Gate has machine-gun mosaics—the sign of the "new order." From the central arch, like a moosehead in an American lodge, projects a sculptured head of the Shah—the evidence of a one-man rule.

How can the British meet this new threat? The situation is not hopeless. The Moslem world is still split by religious and political schisms. In such countries as Iraq, a strong pro-British bloc is anxious to replace the present regime. And in Persia, the Shah must understand that the coming of Hitler to the oilfields of southern Iran may well mean the end of his own rule. Also, Italian defeats have lost Axis prestige.

THE ANSWER may well lie in American foreign policy. Almost without exception, the United States stands well in the Near East. American technical advisers helped Persia out of the economic doldrums after the first World War. American business interests have in general been extremely tactful and cooperative with governmental authorities. American mission hospitals have pioneered in humanitarian work. Just outside of Meshed, near the eastern border of Persia, American doctors have set up a model leper colony and pointed the way to a solution of the disease.

Behind all of this lies a deep-felt admiration of the United States; and an American passport is welcomed even in the fly-specked caravanserie of inner Afganistan. Through consular and diplomatic agents, the American State Department can do much to salve the present crisis. Whether or not the United States openly joins England in the war on fascism, it can, through Secretary Hull, aid the battle against Hitler in the present crucial situation in the Near East.

France In The Camp Of The Enemy

THERE IS nothing to gain and much to lose by pretending to believe that France has not joined the enemy or that it will be possible, somehow, to resist that enemy without striking the French people. France, under Marshal Petain, is preparing to stab a brave and faithful ally in the back with the same cowardly, treacherous timing that President Roosevelt, in one of his historic remarks, observed in the disgraceful conduct of the Italian nation when France was down and bleeding from a million wounds. This makes it necessary to revise the popular American attitude toward a selfish country, which, for years, has shown the United States nothing but ingratitude and greed.

PEGLER

WHETHER the people of France, in their hearts, would prefer not to follow Petain down that course which he called the path of honor and national interest, it is futile to consider. The fact is and must be faced that they will follow him, in chains and shame, into the camp of the man who started this world war, and that every blow they strike at Britain, whether in action or by facilitating Hitler's war, is a blow at the United States. That France would have done otherwise had the United States sent food to the unoccupied zone seems a wishful and romantic argument. France would have done exactly as Hitler, Petain, Darlan and Laval intended, for there is neither gratitude nor honor in these men who, for selfish, nationalistic interest, have turned against a noble and loyal friend in a terrible hour.

There is great emphasis on the sufferings and sacrifices of the French people, but the truth is that they were largely responsible for their own disaster and, moreover, were far inferior to the British in bravery and stamina. The British people have suffered much more with no thought of quitting, while France, as usual, has been flaunting her tatters and appealing for aid and pity, but simultaneously conspiring in her ingrate heart to betray any friend, including the United States, for any advantage that might be in it.

THIS IS A dangerous situation, and not the least of the dangers to the American people is the presence in this hospitable country of a great many French men and women who have arrived well-heeled, installed themselves in expensive New York hotels and prepared to sit out the war. Among them unquestionably are many individuals who will indorse Petain's pro-Nazi course and help to put his program through. Such individuals are no less dangerous and may be more so, because they are socially accepted and even feted by wealthy and influential Americans, than the German and Italian sailors, stewards and waiters who have been rounded up and filed away.

Rene de Chambrun, a French count who enjoys American citizenship of an honorary kind, the son-in-law of the treacherous and cunning Pierre Laval, who is Hitler's chief agent in the affairs of France, De Chambrun was a soldier in the brief French war effort, but enjoys a cruising radius not permitted to ordinary Frenchmen, and it is obvious that the influence which enables him to commute between France, New York and Washington is that of the same evil power which, now, has taken France into the Axis. He comes and goes with special privilege, and it can be taken for granted that he does not come here in the interests of the United States, but rather in the interests of a France which is now, to all intents and purposes an ally or servant of the enemy. He has powerful friends here, and is a relative of Alice Roosevelt Longworth, but he is a Frenchman always, and is married to Josie Laval, the daughter of the arch-traitor.

IT IS AN alarming thought, but the United States soon will have to face and act upon the necessity for establishing safe places of internment for civilian aliens, whether they are registered or not, whose sympathies lie with the enemy. Britain had to do this, and the United States will court the very dangers that Britain has tried to avoid, if the same precaution is not taken here. It would be very unpleasant, but in war you do not permit people to circulate freely who are devoted to the enemy's cause, and are, by training and position, especially qualified to work treachery.

Many Americans will be saddened by the necessity to regard Frenchmen as their enemies, but the decision wasn't ours. France has chosen her course and, in so doing, has threatened the life of a nation and a people whose affection for France and her people amounted to an infatuation.

Axis Reported Despoiling Croatia; Unrest Mounting

Copyright by New York Times

Somewhere in the Middle East, May 19.—Reported rapid deterioration of Croatia's economic position after six weeks of Nazi occupation, said to have been revealed in messages reaching Croatian circles in the Middle East, was recounted by the official Yugoslav foreign ministry.

Highly placed refugees reaching here report general dissatisfaction among all sections of the Croatian people, especially the peasants, with the new regime, as a result of which 40 members of Parliament representing the Croatian Peasant Party are reported to have been arrested and interned.

German and Italian occupation authorities are said to be ruthlessly engaged in despoiling and exploiting the territory under a plan of so-called military requisitions. Food, cattle, timber and all kinds of raw materials like bauxite, coal and minerals are reported being shipped to Germany and Italy, while food and parcels of clothing, it is said, are being sent individually by soldiers and officials to relatives in both Axis countries.

Prices are reported to have reached unbelievable levels, while the peasants, who do not trust the mark and lira exchange, are said to reject the new currency introduced by Dr. Ante Pavelich and to be refusing to bring commodities to market. Regarded as symptomatic of financial difficulties is a report that civilian state officials have not received their salaries since the Nazi attack upon Yugoslavia and that pensioned public servants similarly have not been paid.

Charges that Dr. Pavelic has instituted a regime of terror were reflected in the reported dispatch of 55,000 Croatian laborers to Germany against promised consignments of ersatz goods. This barter is said to have resulted from suspension of industrial activity throughout Croatia owing to lack of raw materials and what is called the Axis policy of despoliation. The ensuing unemployment is said to have strengthenned Dr. Pavelic's hand when the Germans reportedly requested him to send labor to the Reich.

Another step that Dr. Pavelic is accused of having taken to counter the reported widespread discontent has been introduction of capital punishment for printing and circulating leaflets, practicing economic sabotage and complicity in strikes.

According to Croatian statesmen here, the Nazi occupation of Croatia was a heaven-sent opportunity for Premier Mussolini, who, they say, could never have hoped to lay hands upon the huge food stocks and immense natural resources of the territory.

These Croatian statesmen declared that the Italians asked for a credit of 500,000,000 dinars beginning in March to reimburse the Yugoslav government for the Italian share of railway transit traffic which was payable in foreign exchange under an agreement. Yugoslavs are said to have declared they could not grant the credit and to have suggested that Rome might ask Berlin's assistance, since the Yugoslav government owed Germany 1,000,000,000 dinars.

The Germans, on being approached, are said to have refused to cooperate on the ground that the Italians owed them enough already.

Entire Short Supply Of Nickel To Be Used In Arming U. S.

The future use of nickel in nondefense manufactures was virtually precluded yesterday with the announcement by the OPM priorities division of a mandatory, industry-wide control over the vital metal.

In setting up the new regulations, E. R. Stettinius, priorities director, admitted that the supply of nickel this month would fall short by 26 per cent of meeting the full military and civilian demand. The demand approximates 21,000,000 pounds for May, he explained, while present estimates of supply, even though the amount is the largest ever made available in one month, will be 5,500,000 pounds less than all requirements.

The new priorities rules do not even include a schedule of preference ratings for civilian uses, Stettinius said. Although he added that "some allocations can and will be made for nondefense uses on a restricted basis," it was learned that these allocations would be few and far between.

"In administering the plan," the announcement said, "the priorities division will continue to make an effort to avoid causing unemployment. However, it is apparent that supplies of nickel flowing into civilian channels will have to be drastically curtailed. Defense needs can be cared for in full."

The priorities division said it estimated that the total shortage for the entire year would come to about 45,000,000 pounds. Almost all the United States' supply, the announcement said, comes from Canada, which produces 85 per cent of the world's nickel.

In an effort to obtain more aluminum, another defense metal of which there is not only no supply for civilian purposes, but a deficiency for future expanded aircraft demands, the OPM is contemplating an experimental scrap collection campaign, it was learned yesterday.

Plans are under way in the conservation unit of the production division for a "sample" drive in one or perhaps two localities, as yet unannounced, to determine the efficiency of such a campaign.

Defense officials are not certain whether the drive is worth the effort. They are also reported as concerned over the possible effect on the regular commercial scrap-collecting industry.

Some officials, however, are said to feel that a collection campaign might have a valuable psychological effect in creating an awareness on the part of a larger segment of the civilian population in the defense effort.

Nazis Forming Bloc of Nations To Attack U. S., Wickard Says

By the Associated Press

Hutchinson, Kans., May 19.—Secretary Wickard charged today that Nazi Germany was "deliberately trying to form a combination of nations to attack us."

Speaking on a Farm and Home Hour program, he said:

"The answer to any dictatorship combination aimed at the United States will be something the Nazis should understand and respect—armed might."

"We are the only hope of millions living in bondage. In Latin America, many countries are watching us to see whether we will make good our promises, or whether we simply mean to talk and gesture.

Assails Mere Words

"The Nazis and Fascists are watching us and every sign of indecision fills them with joy. If we simply talk, why the rest is easy. They'll rule the world and spit on democracy every day."

Turning to domestic agriculture problems, Wickard said that President Roosevelt "wants the basic crops to reach parity this year."

The President, he added, "told me also that he thinks wheat farmers, taking loans and payments into account, will get parity on this year's crops."

(Parity is a price that would give farm products relatively the same purchasing power as they commanded in the years 1909-1914. The goal of numerous programs in the last two decades has been to restore farm purchasing power to that level.)

Other Crops Mentioned

Besides wheat, the basic crops Wickard mentioned were corn, cotton, tobacco and rice.

He coupled his discussion of agricultural problems with renewed advocacy of assuring the safe delivery of lease-lend shipments to Great Britain.

"Quite a bit of this product of our sweat and toil is not reaching its destination," he said, adding:

"There is no sense of producing for delivery at the bottom of the ocean. . . . I say, let's see that the goods are delivered."

In his forecast of parity, Wickard indicated that it would be achieved by current benefits plus the parity loan bill which Congress sent to the White House last week. There had been some question as to whether President Roosevelt might veto that measure, but Wickard intimated that it would receive approval.

Rockefeller Sees Nazi Trade Peril

New York, May 19 (AP).—Nelson A. Rockefeller, coordinator of commercial and cultural relations between the American republics, said today the United States must see that defense goods "reach the armies of the democracies" because trade in a Hitler-dominated world would be impossible.

In an address prepared for the New York Foreign Trade Week luncheon, he said:

"We will unite in support of any and all measures that may be necessary to achieve these purposes."

His speech was broadcast throughout the world by short wave by the Columbia Broadcasting System, the National Broadcasting Co. and Station WRUL, Boston.

Asserting "a compromise is unthinkable," Rockefeller added:

"He who would have to trade with Hitler would be compelled to do so on Hitler's terms. He would be compelled to deliberately close his eyes to the coupling of commerce with political penetration.

"Yes, we want and need foreign trade, but not that trade which is used by totalitarian powers as a lever to political domination."

Outside Buses Must Pay D. C. Fee, Court Rules

Sightseeing buses from other cities must pay the District's $100 special license if they transport tourists in Washington, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

Justice Henry W. Edgerton spoke for the court in reinstating the prosecution of Monumental Motor Tours, Inc., Baltimore, and Martin J. Graff, a driver. Graff was arrested May 1, 1940, when he brought some tourists from Baltimore, by way of Annapolis, dropped them at various points here, and was waiting at a hotel to pick them up.

The Police Court dismissed the charge and the District appealed.

The decision was believed to affect the operators of hundreds of buses which bring parties here each spring and summer from as far away as the West Coast.

Bill Cunningham's Column

By Bill Cunningham

A constellation of such glorified toad-disturbers as Jimmy Thomson, Ben Hogan, Lawson Little, Jimmy Demaret, Craig Wood, Sam Snead, Jug McSpaden and Byron Nelson assembled in Brookline, Mass., last week in a golf tournament for British war relief. Here's an aristocracy peculiar to this particular nation and unique in all the run of mankind.

Here is not really the golf professional, although that is the customary billing. The golf professional is mostly that patient cottager who stands on a pitted pulpit somewhere aflank the first fairway, from the dawn's early light until the cow bells toll the knell of parting day, intoning patiently to an endless succession of abdominous gentlemen and awkward dames. "Keep your head down;" "Keep your left arm straight;" "Don't be impatient now, you'll get it."

Yeah, they'll get it, come ten years from the Fourth of July.

If these Sneads, Littles, etc., are professionals in terms of the patient lessongivers and clubhouse vendors of weapons, missiles and protective haberdashery, Lily Pons needs a card in the Chorus Girls' Union. These maestros of the mashie and princes of the putt are really golf exhibitionists, an accurate, if not exactly lyrical label, and if you don't think their cool mastery of one of the most exasperating activities in all the scope of human endeavor has its material as well as its spiritual satisfactions, set your alarm clock, brother, you're sound asleep.

You have to be good to get in on the gravy, but isn't that true of no matter what?

Pro Golfer as Fiction Sees Him

So much has been written by the imaginative genatry of Soandso's missing a putt while the Little Woman standing tensely in the rim of the throng whispered hoarsely to some hand-holding companion, "There goes my fur coat," or "We'll have to move now," that a generally false picture has been built up about these pretty elegant athletes.

Just for instance, Mr. Samuel Snead, one of your correspondent's favorite characters, a quaint and unspoiled rustic from West Virginia hill country, has made more money, met nicer people, lived in better hotels and has probably enjoyed greater personal publicity than one of the most famous, most valuable and most highly publicized stars of major league baseball, Mr. Joseph DiMaggio of the New York Yankees.

Mr. Snead and Mr. DiMaggio are a convenient comparison, because they came along shoulder to shoulder in their respective pastimes, being considered "sophomore stars" contemporaneously. In 1938, while Mr. DiMaggio was still "playing for peanuts," young Mr. Snead pulled down $19,600 in prize money alone. Last year, in actual work in the pasture, he chopped out around $20,000. If that's rated as "salary" against DiMaggio's, the New York ball player is undoubtedly reaping more by now.

Things the Public Doesn't See

But what the public doesn't see, and frequently forgets or doesn't know about, are the unseen earnings of such gentlemen as Mr. Snead. All such have connections with big sports goods companies, that include comfortable retainers amounting to salaries. Such companies give them bonuses for winning important tournaments because they can then advertise in impressive announcements, "Soandso won the National Open with a Suchandsuch ball."

Most of them get royalties from their companies for the use of their names on clubs and other contraptions they're supposed to have, or actually have, designed themselves. Then there are endorsements, public appearances, movie shorts, exhibitions, even sales lectures in department and sporting goods stores, the latter being one of Lawson Little's sidelines at the moment. All this adds up in sums the public never even hears about.

Most people visualize these gentlemen and their loved ones endeavoring to live on prize money with the star lunging desperately at the next tournament cash in an effort to get better shoes for baby. Pardon me for pointing, but it simply isn't so.

Their life is not easy because their concentration is so terrific and the demand for physical fitness so exact. They're probably the best-conditioned and most carefully living athletes in the world, taking one thing with another. But for those who are really good, it's far from any sucker's game. They earn well, live well and go along for years after the ball-player, for instance, is through. And when the travel gets too hard to take, or the swing finally shifts a little too far, there is always the haven of a resident pro's job with some fine country club.

Watch these gentlemen go, while you have a chance, for they are indeed the lords of the manicured meadows, but, dry those tears, if you've felt you should shed 'em. The top gentlemen in golf do extremely well, indeed. You've never heard of a benefit's being given for one, have you?

Funds to Probe Patent Links To Nazis Voted

By Arthur Hachten
International News Service Staff Writer

After hearing charges that American business firms are aiding Germany in military and commercial conquests, the Senate yesterday voted an increase in funds for the Justice Department's antitrust division to investigate these allegations and to crack down on domestic monopolies.

By a vote of 35 to 21, the Senate restored to the antitrust division's appropriation for the next fiscal year $750,000, deleted from the House-approved bill by the Senate Appropriations Committee. Altogether, the bill allots $2,325,000 for the antitrust division—$909,000 more than President Roosevelt's Budget Bureau had recommended.

In leading the fight for restoration of the $750,000, Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, told the Senate that American business firms linked to German interests by patent and trade agreements are supplying Hitler's forces vital military information and helping Germany run the British blockade.

Thurman Arnold, head of the antitrust division, revealed after the Senate's action that his division expects to speed investigation of restrictions on production in war industries, and the spread in prices received by the farmers and what consumers have to pay. Food, fuel and housing costs will be explored, he disclosed.

O'Mahoney's assertions in the Senate that national defense was being handicapped by trade agreements made between American and German firms years ago, moved Senator Wiley (Republican), Wisconsin, to ask whether these American firms were actually guilty of "constructive treason" in not breaking such pacts.

Allegations were made by O'Mahoney that the Schering Corporation, of Bloomfield, N. J., has an agreement with Schering, A. G., of Germany, under which the New Jersey company is manufacturing serums and shipping them to South American customers of the German firm, with labels on shipping cases identical with the German-language labels used by the German company.

"Thus, the American company is running the blockade for its parent company in Germany," O'Mahoney said. The New Jersey company's activities are now being investigated by the Department of Justice, the Senator added in arguing the need for the "war chest."

American companies for years have been linked to German business interests through patent arrangements and deals for division of world markets in aluminum, tungsten carbide, beryllium, optical glass and other vital defense materials, O'Mahoney charged.

American companies operating under German patents are also required to furnish the Germans detailed descriptions of sales made to the United States Government. These descriptions are furnished when royalties are paid, he added.

Actress Expects Second Marriage

LUISE RAINER,
Vienna-born screen actress, said yesterday in Los Angeles after obtaining a divorce from Playwright Clifford Odets that she would make another try at matrimony. "I expect to marry this year," she told newsmen. "Maybe it will be not so many weeks, at that. But I cannot tell you his name. He lives in the East. What girl doesn't dream of a successful marriage?"

Sabotage Charged Against Worker In Defense Plant

Trenton, N. J., May 19 (AP).—A man identified as Charles Virok, 42, Trenton, was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents late today on charges of obstructing national defense work by shutting off the power in a division of the John A. Roebling's Sons Co. which has large Navy contracts for wire and cable.

United States Commissioner Marvin A. Spaulding held the prisoner in $7,500 bail for a Federal grand jury. Virok was placed in the Mercer County Jail. He denied the charges, lodged under a 1940 act of Congress.

Virok was accused of shutting off the power two days last week in the wire drawing room. The shutdowns, Spaulding said he was told, caused half-hour delays in production.

Conference Takes Up Need for Good Men in Defense Jobs

A note of "good workers wanted for the national defense program" ran through the opening sessions of the Eastern Regional Conference, Civil Service Assembly, at the Wardman Park Hotel yesterday.

Out of it came a major problem for discussion by many panels: How to train these thousands of required workers with the greatest possible speed.

One panel, functioning under Winston B. Stephens, coordinator and director of training, Civil Service Commission, considered that the partially trained must be accepted and developed; that employes who have promise and are working in the bottom positions should be brought to situations in which they can be quickly trained.

Welcoming the personnel experts here, Harry B. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission, said that an amendment to the Hatch Act is being considered which would impose severer penalties on Federal employes who engage in political activity. The civil service head said he believed the act should be amended; he said he believed the act was a good one in purpose. He did not say just what line the amendment might follow.

The need for trained personnel was bespoken in the keynote address given the conference by Lyle Belsley, director, Civil Service Assembly and assistant to William H. McReynolds, administrative assistant to President Roosevelt, on personnel questions. He described Government activities as moving "at an unprecedented rate." And meanwhile, expanded industry is competing with the Government's need for peculiarly trained workers, he said.

"Our armed forces are drawing hundreds of thousands of men and women from civilian work. These facts have made it extremely difficult for personnel agencies to find or develop the employes needed by the Government," he said.

Personnel agencies now are "beating the bushes" to find competent workers, and there has been a relaxing of age factors and general requirements, he reminded.

He emphasized that personnel officials "have plainly been forced by the sheer course of events to recognize their responsibilities in the training of workers for entrance into the public service and the training of employes who are already serving Government for transfer to more urgent work as promotion to more responsible positions." He referred broadly to some civil service agencies which "are too closely bound by their traditions."

The assembly, meeting jointly with the Society for Personnel Administration, will reopen sessions at 9 a. m. today with a panel discussion of "Methods of Making and Controlling Promotions," led by Samuel H. Ordway, former United States Civil Service commissioner, now president of the National Civil Service Reform League. The conference will last through Wednesday.

Two hundred delegates are attending the sessions.

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Beer isn't brewed from "Words or Claims"

Only skillful brewing from the highest priced Hops and Malt can make a Beer as good as Gunther's

All beer is NOT alike. A beer can't be as fine as Gunther's when it is NOT made from the highest priced grain, malt and hops! And what beer made in this part of the country IS made from the costliest ingredients?

The public is entitled to the facts!

NO BREWER IN THE U. S. A. uses HIGHER PRICED MALT and HOPS than Gunther's. And that goes for beers selling here for 15¢ . ... or ANY price!

Because Gunther's order and pay for only the top 10% of the malt and hops! 90% of the beer made today must definitely be brewed from cheaper or less costly malt and hops. Because only 10% of the hops and malt bought by all brewers cost as much as ALL the malt and hops used in Gunther's!

THOSE ARE FACTS!!

Regardless of what you pay for your beer . . . Remember those facts when someone offers you "a beer as good as Gunther's!"

PROOF
That Gunther's uses only the finest malt. (Only 10% of the malt bought by brewers costs as much as ALL the malt Gunther uses.)

Another Major Feature Added to Capitol List

'Great American Broadcast' Has Ace Cast; The Season Is Open for Hunting Venuses; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THAT "REST FOR THE WEARY" BUSINESS we were speaking of yesterday seems to be following a diminishing course. Loew's Capitol Theater now has loaded up its booking sheets through the first half of June with screen features that cannot be lightly swished aside.

BELL

With "Pot o' Gold," James Roosevelt's first major production, scheduled to take the screen on Thursday, with James Stewart, Paulette Goddard and Horace Heidt in the top spots; "The Great American Broadcast" to come along on May 29 and "A Woman's Face" penciled in for June 5, the situation seems to be as well in hand as if the Marines had charge of it. "A Woman's Face," in case you had forgotten, is the new Joan Crawford vehicle in which the star ceases to be a "glamour girl" and scores a tremendous dramatic triumph, according to all report, by virtue of a disfigurement that few beautiful young women would dare risk before the cameras.

But it is "The Great American Broadcast" that is the added starter to the Capitol's early summer list of attractions. It has just been slipped into the May 29 slot by Twentieth Century-Fox and has Alice Faye, Jack Oakie, John Payne and Cesar Romero as its stars. Following in the wake of the same company's "Tin Pan Alley," celebrating the writers of popular songs, "The Great American Broadcast" has to do with the early days of radio. Mack Gordon and Harry Warren have whipped up seven songs for Miss Faye to "plug" in this glorification of the ether.

Open Season for Venus Hunting

A That indefatigable pursuer of feminine pulchritude, Mr. Al tearn, is up to his annual tricks again. Last night, in cooperaon with Emile Beauvais, he concerned himself with the onnecticut Avenue Association's annual cruise on the Wilson ine's streamlined S. S. Mount Vernon for the purpose of secting some Ziegfeldian siren to be known hereafter as "Miss onnecticut Avenue." The material reward to the winner as a complete sports outfit valued at $400. And then on ext Sunday night, on the same excursion steamer, will come e selection of "Miss Washington," to represent the Capital the annual "Miss America" contest in Atlantic City in ptember. This really will be something.

Those incorrigible collaborators, Frank Capra and Robert Riskin, responsible for "Meet John Doe," now pacing them in at the Earle, have closed a deal for the purchase of "The Flying Yorkshireman" from Director Frank Lloyd. It is reported that they are negotiating with Charlie Chaplin to appear in the fantasy, which deals with a Yorkshireman who comes to the United States and discovers he has the ability to fly. This is particularly interesting in view of Charles Laughton's fascination with the "Yorkshireman." He and his wife, Elsa Lanchester, put the piece on the air for Arch Oboler. The last time I talked with him, Charles was not at all sure that it could be made into a successful picture. One gathered that, if it could, he would like to do it himself. One can hardly imagine Mr. Laughton and his fellow-Englishman, Mr. Chaplin, being rivals for the same role.

"You Can't Keep a Good Man Down"

Our old friend Hobart Bosworth, great star of the silent ween, has been signed to an acting contract by the Warner Brothers. This is no more distinguished recognition than the year-old veteran deserves. He has enjoyed one of the most table careers in the American theater, having played more lakespearean roles than any other native actor. When he told e this, I suggested that Otis Skinner, ten years his senior, had me pretty well, too. "We thrashed all that out in the Lamb's ub one day," Bozzy old me, "and the final score added up in favor." His first assignment under the new Warner agreement will be a supporting role with Fredric March in "One oot in Heaven," the proposed film version of the Hartzell pence best-seller. A long cry, as the saying goes, from the Tole of Wolf Larsen in the original film play of "The Sea Wolf," back in the early 1900's.

As-We-Have-Remarked-Before Note

What is so rare as a day in June, especially when it comes along in the middle of May—like yistiddy?

Leonard Lyons:

Among My Souvenirs

A PHOTO of the Stork Club party we gave for John O'Hara on the eve of his departure for Hollywood five years ago . . . O'Hara had received recognition for his first novel, "Appointment in Samarra." He had worked for ten years on the staffs of New York's newspapers. That week, Who's Who in America had tapped him for honors. John O'Hara at last was a notable . . . "Give me a list of all the friends you have in New York," I told him, "and I'll invite them." John went into retreat for two hours. He came up with a list of but five names . . . And of those five, only two came to the party.

LEONARD LYONS

A NOTE, written by C. L. Sulzberger, the New York Times correspondent who covered the recent war in the Balkans. Two days before he left for Europe, Sulzberger celebrated at La Conga until the dawn came up over Broadway . . . "What's the name of that tall young man you introduced me to last night?" young Sulzberger wrote. "It keeps running through my mind—but for the life of me, I can't remember" . . . The name he couldn't remember was Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr.

A BOX, made by a lifer in Sing Sing, whose life was saved by Sam Leibowitz, the criminal lawyer who now occupies the County Court bench. The box is made of matchsticks—thousands of matchsticks, whose multi-colored sulphur tips were used to decorate it . . . "I'll give you this box," Leibowitz had told me some months earlier, "if you'll meet me in the lobby of the George V Hotel in Paris on July 19, 1938—at 4:30 p. m." . . . I kept the appointment.

TWO SKETCHES, for which I posed at Ben Marden's Riviera. The artists who drew those sketches were Fanny Brice and Beatrice Lillie—forerunners of a futuristic school in which the finished sketch bears no resemblance whatever to the model who posed . . . They compared the results. "Bea," Fanny told her, shuting one eye to see less of Miss Lillie's sketch, "it looks like a Modigliani" . . . A few days thereafter Beatrice Lillie purchased a Modigliani for $8,000.

A BILL for some merchandise we purchased aboard the Normandie on the last day out before the ship landed in New York. We bought ties, wallets and perfume to present to our friends . . . We had been warned about the natives' predilection for padding the bill of American tourists, and so I added the figures . . . The addition was correct—but the bill still seemed larger than it should be. I checked each item—and one for 558 francs, puzzled me. It had been included in the addition . . . "I beg your pardon," the clerk innocently apologized. "I added your cabin number—558."

A PEN, the one used by Gov. Lehman when he signed the new statute described on page 60 of the current issue of Newsweek—the statue prohibiting theater operators from barring newspaper men. It is affixed to a gold-sealed document from the Governer, certifying that he used the pen in signing his approval of the statute.

A PAINTING, by Heywood Broun. It's a landscape, painted with rags, instead of with a brush—because Heywood said that brushes needed cleaning, and rags simply could be thrown away . . . He showed it to us during a week-end we spent at his home. "This is early Broun," he stated. "The frame cost me $5."

From 'Victoria' to 'Glamour'

whose abilities encompass a wide range of characters, here models a "glamour girl" gown in which she will be seen in her forthcoming RKO-Radio picturization of the stage musical, "Sunny." This is bridging rather a wide span in view of "Victoria the Great" and "Nurse Edith Cavell"

In Hollywood

Hollywood, May 19.

On David Selznick's recent trip to Mexico, he and the other "goodwillers" who went down there came upon six brothers named Reyes (which, translated, means "kings") in a night club.

HOPPER

The kids range in age from 11 to 23. The 11-year-old has a face right out of heaven, a voice which belongs in the Sistine Chapel—and the personality of a ham. So David lost no time. Whitney Bolton went down to Mexico and signed the entire family for David's South American picture. One boy plays the guitar, three play the violin, another the bass fiddle, and the 11-year-old just enchants. David's also got a South American composer on the string.

A local reporter must be pretty hard up for news when he writes: "I hear all isn't hunky-dory with the Gilbert (Janet Gaynor) Adrians." Well, for his information and that of their many friends, they just happen to be the happiest couple in town.

The Jack Benny party was amazing in more ways than one. First surprise for me was that comedians were so kind. They didn't use to be in the old days. Another surprise was that so few people there had ever seen Fibber McGee and Molly.

When I wrote recently that Eddie Robinson spent a day teaching our best radio actors how to act, I didn't know what actually caused the row with George Raft. It was the same reason. Raft was being told how to do his lines. George called Eddie "a ham midget," and it got so bad that George yelled, "You tell me once more how to play this scene and I'll punch you in the nose!"

Sorry I can't be a guest at the Variety Club's big shindig in Atlantic City Friday, nor accept the Washington invitation, because I'm planing out to St. Louis for a day as guest of the wives of the N. A. B. executives.

Louella O. Parsons'

Hollywood, May 19 (INS).—I would be incredulous about Katharine Cornell's making a picture for Gabriel Pascal if I didn't know how he had sold himself to George Bernard Shaw. Kit has steadfastly refused all offers for movies, but now it appears Pascal has sold her on the idea of starring in the movie version of "The Doctor's Dilemma," the Shaw play in which she is playing in the East.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Bombs and Nazi visits notwithstanding, motion picture production is going on in London as usual. Ben Lyon writes that he and Bebe Daniels are working in a picture called "You Can't Escape Forever" and that it deals with Paris prior to the German occupation.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Ricardo Cortez is telling Frances Farmer his innermost secrets; Virginia Bruce expects her baby the latter part of August; Robert Kent, who was divorced from Astrid Allwyn a year ago, is back in town courting his former wife; the pretty girl with Bill Lundigan at the Seven Seas was Margaret Chapman, a model; Fannie Brice is hostessing a party for Jimmy Walker who has been much entertained here.

Martha O'Driscoll and Don Castle, dinner partners at the Hollywood Tropics and later in a ringside seat at the Florentine Gardens; Constance and Gilbert Roland gave their first at home party Saturday night and it was very nice. Some of the people who attended the naval party at Ciro's dropped in later; Ann Sothern danced with a real jitterbug kid in "Ringside Maisie" and she is black and blue and I don't mean maybe.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Pastel 'Prom' Frock Now Takes Lead Over Fancy White Graduation Dress

Caps and Gowns Worn on Big Day In Most Schools

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor.

THE GRADUATION dress that never sees a graduation is a common phenomenon in this practical democratic era. Time was when much ado was made over the gown the "sweet girl graduate" wore to receive her "sheepskin." Now she usually dons a cap and gown or a simple short white dress and is handed a certificate of graduation printed on high-grade linen paper.

That the traditional long white graduation dress is fast becoming extinct was proved by a poll taken of the seven high schools and four of the girls schools throughout Washington. Of the high schools, none graduate their girls in long dresses. Only two of the girls' schools held to the tradition. They are listed as follows:

HIGH SCHOOLS	TYPE OUTFIT
Western	Short white dress
Eastern	Short white dress
Central	Cap and gown
Woodrow Wilson	Short white dress
Roosevelt	Cap and gown
McKinley	Cap and gown
Anacostia	Cap and gown
GIRLS SCHOOLS
Mount Vernon Seminary	Cap and gown
Arlington Hall Junior College	Cap and gown
National Park College	Long white dress

Cap, Gown Preferred

This table reveals that a cap and gown is the preferred robe de style for graduation. There are two good reasons for this preference—one, that it makes a more uniform dress among the students and the other, that it simplifies the problem of "what to wear."

The cap and gown is rented, as a rule, for a nominal fee. Since the gown conceals underclothes it is not out-of-place for a girl to wear a plain white slip or a "just-off" white dress underneath. Thus is eliminated the problem of each school's having a different sleeve length, or other problems which long dresses involve.

When the short white dress becomes the graduation dress, it is usually the shirtwaist type with soft shoulders and plain or pleated skirt. If the dress has a colored belt or buttons, they may be removed and added for wear later after the occasion. Since such dresses are of the casual conservative variety, they are practical for wear all summer long.

In spite of the fact that the graduation dress is becoming passe for the purpose intended, it lives on as "the" gown to wear for the senior prom, class night, country club dances or one of the gala affairs at Annapolis and West Point. Most of these dresses still veer toward the type that also can be worn as a graduation dress. So for those who go to a school which follows tradition, these dresses might serve a dual purpose.

Like Fluffy Gowns

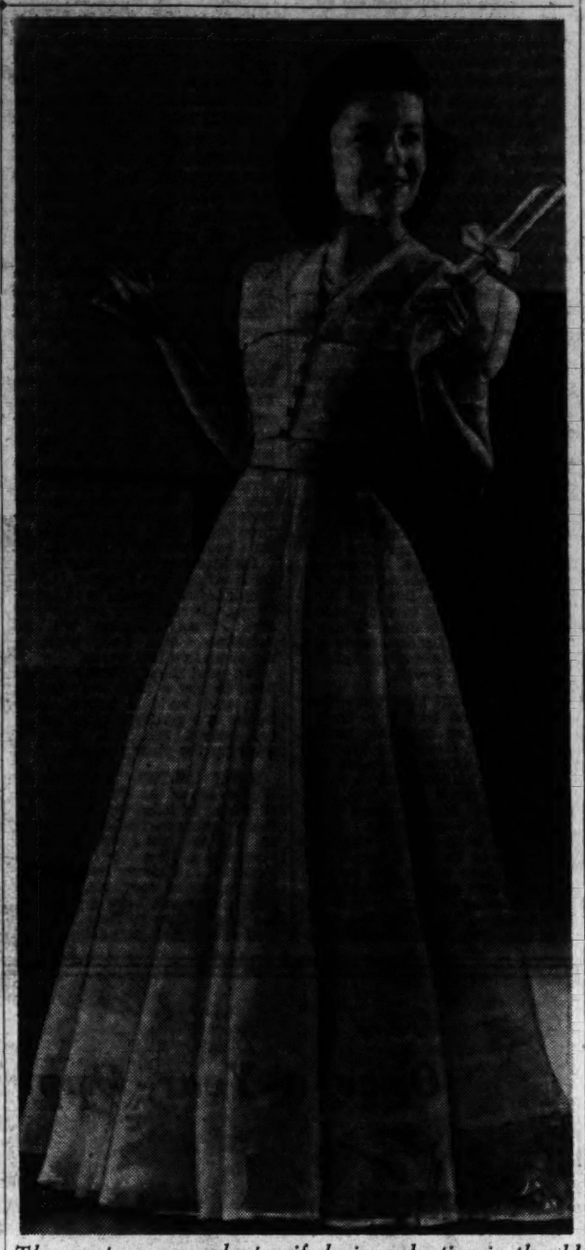
Department store buyers and mothers agree that young girls like the fluffy bouffant gowns for their dances, rather than sleek sophisticated ones. If the gown is to be a girl's "first long dress," she wants it to be a real "formal." It must have bare shoulders, a tight waist—to emphasize her small midriff—a full skirt that swirls when she dances, and a neckline as low as she is permitted to wear.

By the time a girl is a senior, informants agree, she likes the more quaint old-fashioned type—the so-called "baby" dress in organdy, net, dotted Swiss or marquisettes with "Val" lace trimming. This shies from the extreme. Shoulders are covered with either a short cap or long natural midriff (tight fitting), sleeve. The dress has a wide or sweetheart neckline, or a variation of the shirtwaist and a full skirt for waltzes and polkas.

Though white is preferred for the graduation theme, pastels are in the picture for the dance dress. Pink and blue are the favorite colors, with maize coming to the fore. Many of the pastel colored dresses are also available in white for the girl graduate. A little fitted colored jacket will make one dress serve for two.

To give life to the party, many young girls will prefer the gaily printed California cottons instead of the bouffant type. There are cotton piques, seersuckers and lawns printed with gargantuan flowers and tropical motifs, red and blue dotted Swisses with rumba tiered skirts and novelty cottons decorated with chenille coin dots. Tiny sleeves are preferred and midriffs are elasticized or bare.

A wrap for the occasion is of the "short and sweet" variety. Swagger swing backs are the favorite in appliqued sheer wool or quilted taffeta. They are available in pink, blue, yellow and white with the applique and quilting in a contrasting color. Miniature faille coats of the East Lynne type also are well-liked.



The sweet young graduate—if she is graduating in the old traditional manner—will look her loveliest in cotton shadow organdie trimmed with lace. More typical of the modern miss is the graduation dress that is worn for a gala senior prom, rather than the graduation proper. The yards and yards of organdie in the gown above give it a romantic drape. It is the modified shirtwaist type, with extended revers, that is preferred by the modest girl graduate.

Edict of Nantes

The Edict of Nantes, guaranteeing a considerable degree of religious freedom to the Protestant Huguenots in France, was revoked in 1685, causing the Huguenots to emigrate to many other countries. Since many of these were skilled craftsmen they carried with them to their new homes many secrets of weaving, pottery making, metal work and other skilled arts. The result was a severe blow to the French monopoly on the manufacture of fine decorative furnishings and a tremendous stimulation to these arts in the countries to which the Huguenots fled, notably England and Holland.

Susan Shaw's Sparkle Can't Be Faked

By Ida Jean Kain

Whether or not a woman happens to look beautiful to you depends, of course, on what you look for in beauty. Susan Shaw, recently chosen the most beautiful model on the King Features syndicate program for the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, had to fulfill the diversified expectations of a committee of artists, a fashion authority, society writer and your dietitian.

To a man the artists demanded a "natural beauty"—they regarded the glamorous, exotic type as too unreal. The fashion authority stipulated that she be tall and have a flair for clothes. The society writer suggested she be photogenic, and your dietitian insisted on "a good, healthy specimen" and turned thumbs down on a couple of candidates who looked as though they didn't eat regularly.

Composite Choice

So Susan was the composite choice, and a highly satisfactory one all around. She is a blonde with a peaches and Grade A cream complexion and has a figure like this: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 24 inches; hips, 35 inches. She weighs 110 pounds for her height of 5 feet 4 inches.

Besides being a model, Susan is a housewife, and she loves to cook.

To keep in trim, she goes out for tennis as often as possible, does a lot of walking every day, and takes a daily half dozen on her terrace every morning. She says you can't depend on general exercise to keep your figure perfect, and that it saves trouble to have a set of specific streamliners which you take as a matter of course.

Susan is, by way of being one of the head models over at Harry Conover's, and worried newcomers pondering the problems of make-up—the right eye-shadow, the perfect foundation—are often turned over to her. Susan, who is strong for health, tells them that a healthy glow is what is needed, and if they have that, they don't need to worry.

Can't Be Faked

This model has been brought up to believe that sparkle can't be faked, and you can't sparkle unless you have had a good night's sleep. So she gets her rest, along with her varied diet and enough exercise. And there you have the beauty program of a beauty. The only complex thing about it is the doing!

At any rate the judge—some of them veterans in these contests—agreed that health makes beauty and Susan had it. On the committee were Mural Artist Dean Cornwall, McClelland Barclay, the illustrator; Otto (Little King) Soglow; Russ Westover, creator of Tillie the Toiler; Prunella Wood, woman's editor of King Features Syndicate; Inez Robb, syndicate writer, and your dietitian.

Massage Hands Necessary

To help keep your hands soft, smooth and appealing, use a hand massage cream and lotion. These will help stimulate circulation, exercise the hands, and keep them both limber and young looking.

If you have fragile nails you can use a nail lubricant that tends to lubricate dry nails as a fine facial cream lubricates dry skin.

Woman Who Spent Last Summer Nervously Facing First Baby's Coming Learned That Pediatrician Is Providential Guide in Infant-Care Matters

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am both amused and sympathetic with the plight of the young expectant mother whose letter—confessing her total lack of acquaintanceship with babies, and panicked sense of inadequacy for motherhood—was discussed in your column of May 16. I was in precisely the same situation (and state of mind) during the summer of last year, as my son was born in October of 1940.

Some time in June I, too, became panicky, wondering if I knew (or could learn) enough to take care of an infant. Then I heard of the Children's Bureau pamphlets—on "Prenatal Care" and "Infant Care" (which you mentioned, by the way)—and put in a telephone call for them. I also wrote to the Ladies' Home Journal for Dr. Herman Bundeson's booklet, as well as the magazine's monthly pamphlets covering baby's "first year" care. With the aid of these pamphlets I solved (at least theoretically) the intricacies of baby-bathing and—mystery of mysteries!—how to hold the baby.

The hottest of July's days found me poring over these pamphlets, as well as some pamphlets published by a baby's garment-making house, which were mailed to me on request. However (and as would be expected), the best counsel of all was supplied—after the baby's birth—by his pediatrician, who gave him a checkup 48 hours after he was born, saw him several times during his two weeks in the hospital, engaged a nurse for him before we left for home and gave me a list of supplies to get for the nursery.

Within a week after we were home, he came to inspect the baby, gave me exact instructions as to his food, and has seen the baby once a month since—changing his formula from time to time, until now we have progressed from milk to milk-plus-vegetables, cereal and dessert. My advice to any panicked mother-to-be is to remember there are pediatricians to tell her and show her what to do, and to check baby's reactions, so that she may always be sure she is on the right track. (Incidentally, I found your dissertation on this subject very interesting—as, indeed, on all subjects which you discuss.) Sincerely yours,

M. V. B.

Bathe Infant in Oil, Says Mother of Three

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For the benefit of "Eunice G.," who is expecting her first born next October, and who is troubled with a "feeling of nervousness, bordering on panic, at the prospect of caring for a helpless infant,"—I would like to add my comment to your own. I am the mother of three children and with my first two I followed the traditional ritual of bathing them with soap and water. But frankly, I dreaded the bath hour, as our apartment was small, lacking a proper nursery. Baby's bath equipment could not be conveniently kept in one place, but had to be assembled before and dismantled and stowed away after each bath. This created quite a scene of confusion.

But things were different with the third baby, thanks to advanced discoveries in infant care. Our doctor recommended bathing oil, which we bought inexpensively from the source he designated. The bath became the simplest part of baby's care. All it amounted to was placing baby on a fluffy towel or small, soft blanket on the bed—on his back or abdomen—oiling him thoroughly, mopping him dry, turning him over and repeating the procedure.

In a very few minutes he emerged a smiling, nongreasy blond cherub—his ablutions achieved with a mimimum of handling. And there wasn't any "bath equipment" to bother about. There was only the tray of "baby aids," on which the bottle of bath oil stayed, along with the cotton, boric acid, etc. I want to tell "Eunice G." not to worry. Baby care is a cinch nowadays, compared to what it used to be. Sincerely,

KATHIE P.

Man Is Affronted By Women's Styles

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Have you space for a squawk from a man reader? It is about women's styles. For years, women have been saying they dress to please men—when all the time they know they have been telling an untruth. They buy and wear the crazy styles that have been rampant recently in order to make themselves the envy of other women. With the possible exception of men hairdressers, I guarantee you couldn't find 1 man in 100 who approves of daffy hats, lipstick heavily applied, and claw-like finger nails painted red.

And it isn't the young girls who are the most unsightly, from the masculine view. While, to a man's way of thinking, they would be more pleasing in appearance if more sanely garbed and less artificially "made up," nevertheless the natural attractiveness of their youth somewhat offsets the grotesquerie of their tout ensemble. It is their mothers and grandmothers who really pain the eye.

What could be less appealing to the imagination of any beauty-loving person than a woman in the late fifties or early sixties so gaudily gotten up as to seem like a circus performer? But you see them everywhere today—grandmothers with bunches of sausage-like curls jutting out from their cranium, skirts nearly to the knee, coyly painted faces, wearing hats that would try the countenance of a subdebutante—and disporting themselves in an airily self-satisfied manner. Yet it was not so many years ago—indeed, it must be within the memory of these matronly ladies—that a woman with a painted face and attention-getting clothes was a woman outside the pale of polite acceptance.

I suppose there is nothing you or I can do to change the style trend, Miss Haworth—but I will be mighty grateful if you will publish these remarks. In conclusion, I wish to say that if the picture which appears at the top of your column is a faithful likeness of you, then I judge you would have too much sense to deck yourself out in the hysterically exaggerated modern manner. Sincerely yours,

A. C. A.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

New Cleanser Keeps Your Skin Free From Dirt

Lack of proper and frequent cleansing spoils many a potential lovely complexion. Even the finest cosmetics can't camouflage a grimy skin. Dashing from one appointment to another, a woman seldom has time to rush home, remove old make-up and replace it with a fresh coating.

Yet there is a way to meet this problem. Designed especially for the busy woman and traveler is a new type cleanser that can be tucked into your daytime purse or evening bag.

The cleanser itself is a piece of soft flannel saturated with what is called a liquated cold cream. It is air-tightly enclosed in a little square envelope of aluminum foil. The cloth is large enough to handle easily, and one square is sufficient to wipe off all powder and lipstick, leaving the face clean, soft and ready for rouge and powder. The smooth finish of the cold cream acts as a powder base and keeps the skin from drying out.

Skilled Weavers

The Navajo Indians developed a high degree of skill in weaving, an art they learned from the Pueblo Indians but perfected far beyond anything the Pueblos had devised. Their technique today varies little from that worked out hundreds of years ago. They also made pottery and silver of interest.

Wedding Bells Sound a Call For Decoration

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

WEDDING BELLS are tuning up for their June chorus, while bridal couples make thrilling plans for those little new homes to be started on dreams and eagerness. Naturally, lots of decorating questions come up for answering in time to get things all settled before the great day.

A. K. wants to know how to fit an old upright piano into her fresh and pretty new living room. The new furniture is walnut but lighter in color than the walnut of the piano. She also wants suggestions for a livable, pleasant color scheme.

The answer: Why not bleach and refinish the wood of the piano? Make it a pale beige by taking off the old finish; then bleach the wood, paint it white, then wipe off the white paint and finish with clear water-white shellac thinned down a half with alcohol. Place this against pale beige walls and get a beige twist weave broadloom run for the floor. For the windows, use ecru curtains with draperies of figured cretonne in a pattern flashing with brilliant greens. This same material would be lovely on a pair of easy chairs; have the sofa in a plain green fabric and other chairs in beige leather. Repeat greens in accessories, and use yellow for the grace notes.

R. T. writes about a bedroom that must be furnished on "what's left" of the budget after the living room was furnished to their heart's desire. Since little was left, the bedroom would have to be furnished largely with love and ingenuity. What ideas have we to contribute?, she asks.

The answer: Color and a comfortable bed—that's where the money goes—or should go—when a bedroom must be furnished on a shoestring. Don't skimp on springs and mattress, but you can do without a bedstead for the time being if you must by building a frame with legs for the springs to fit on. You can even add posters if the man in the case is handy with a hammer . . . paint the posts to match the wall, add a dotted swiss ruffle tester and a flowered spread and you'll have something really pretty. An old chest or a new unfinished one, painted, let's say, in pale green to match the walls, and decorated with decalcomania roses, do beautifully, especially with a flat mirror frame also finished with the decalcomania roses. A dressing table with a flowered cretonne skirt, white dotted swiss curtains, an old rocker or two painted green and with flowered seat cushions, a bare polished floor, or else washable cotton rugs—and there you'd be!

Start the mas "skeletons." using single lines, you can visualize instantly the action of the complete figure.

Don't be afraid to exaggerate; it's the way to get laughs. Want to show your man good and mad? Thrust his hands into his pockets. Bend his knees, turn up his toes to get determination in his walk.

Then you fill in the outlines of the body, add clothing and facial expression. Draw wrinkles in his forehead, a line at the mouth to show his rage. And you can give your dog a foolish look by drawing a hint of a smile, a raised eyebrow.

'Big Name' Galaxy Attends Mrs. E. B. McLean's Dinner

By Hope Ridings Miller

"BIG NAMES" from out of town mingled with well-known Washingtonians at the dinner given last night by Mrs. Edward Beale McLean at Friendship, her estate on Wisconsin Avenue.

Guests of honor were the British Ambassador and Viscountess Halifax. Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, a number of Senators—including several from the noninterventionist bloc—and top-ranking defense officials were among those in the large company.

Among guests from out of town were Glenn L. Martin, airplane manufacturer, who was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Minta Martin; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Victor duPont, of Wilmington, Del.; Gov. and Mrs. Charles Edison, of New Jersey; Mr. and Mrs. Byron Foy, Joseph Hergesheimer, Hal Phyfe, Mrs. L. C. Briggs, Walter Winchell, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Firestone, of Akron, Ohio, and Dr. Esther Richards, of Baltimore.

Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed, Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas and Justice Frank Murphy were in the company, as were Senator and Mrs. Alben Barkley, Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Joseph Guffey, Senator and Mrs. Robert A. Taft, Senator Robert Reynolds, Senator Theodore Francis Green, Senator and Mrs. Cabot Lodge, Senator Richard B. Russell and Senator Francis Maloney.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and Mrs. Welles arrived with the former's son, Benjamin Welles. Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold were there; also Edgar J. Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stettinius, Clarence Dykstra, chairman of the National Defense Mediation Board, and Mrs. Dykstra; Miss Harriet Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Taylor, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Sherman Miles, Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Air Corps, and Mrs. Arnold.

Still others there were Miss Mabel Boardman, Mr. and Mrs. George Garrett, the Misses Ida and Pauletta Guffey, Coleman Jennings, Maj. Gen. Allen Gullion, Countess Szecheny, the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, George T. Summerlin, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Lammot Belin, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Emory S. Land, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, Charles Michelson, M. and Mme. Van Swinderen, Mrs. Anthony Rumbold, Mrs. Lionel Atwill, Homer Cummings, John R. McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Pearson and several others.

Motion Picture Follows Dinner

Spring blossoms centered the round tables, which were covered with satin and lace and arranged in the dining room and the long adjoining sun room. Following the dinner, guests saw a motion picture.

Earlier in the evening as the company gathered in the drawing room, one guest took Lord Halifax aside long enough to entertain him with a few amusing stories that have floated up to Washington from Atlanta, since the British Ambassador's recent visit there. It seems the colored population of the Southern town awaited the envoy's visit just as eagerly as any other. So bright and early on the morning that the Ambassador and his wife were arriving, a sizable number of Negroes were lined up on the street through which the visitors were to drive. And as they passed, one old Negro took off his hat and solemnly observed, "Dere goes de Lawd."

Parties Planned For Postdebs

While subdebs are trying to make up their minds whether to make a formal bow to society, parties are piling up for a number of postdebutantes who will soon be centering the spring and summer spotlight. Miss Anne Custis Peter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Peter 3d, who was presented to society in November, 1940, at a large tea at Tudor place, will be guest of honor at a dance to be given by Mrs. Paul Bartlett on June 14. The party will take place at Mrs. Bartlett's home on Thirtieth Street.

Miss Rose Chatfield-Taylor, who is both a postdebutante and a bride-elect, will be honored at a continuous round of fetes before her marriage to Frank Goodnow MacMurray on June 14. Already in the mails are invitations for a dinner dance to be given at Grasslands on June 11 by Mr. and Mrs. William J. Flather and Miss Georgianna Flather, another postdeb. Miss Flather will be one of Miss Chatfield-Taylor's bridesmaids.

Several Dinners Will Precede Maurois Lecture

A number of dinners will precede the lecture to be given tomorrow evening by Andre Maurois, noted French author, at the Mayflower Hotel. The lecture, which will have as its subject, "The Lessons of France," will take place in grand ballroom at 9 p. m. Proceeds will go to aid French prisoners of war.

M. and Mme. Maurois will be guests of Mrs. Robert H. Dunlop at dinner before the lecture. Mrs. Albert Dewey, chairman of entertainment for the event, will have among her guests at dinner the Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins, Justice Frank Murphy, Miss Mabel Boardman, and several others.

Mrs. George Gordon will give a dinner before the lecture, as will Mrs. Burrall Hoffman, Countess de Limur, Miss Carolyn Nash and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, who will entertain Princess Bomcompagni, honorary vice chairman of the United Committee for French Relief.

Capt. Paul Rockwell, of Asheville, N. C., will attend the lecture as a guest of Mme. Georges Thenault. Capt. Rockwell, one of the few Americans who has held a commission in the French army, fought in France, both in the World War and in the present one. He returned to this country last December. Capt. Rockwell is author of the book "American Fighters in the Foreign Legion."

Gay Throng Attends Fete At Holcombs

The Holcomb luck held again, and yesterday produced as fine an afternoon as one could hope for the Commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb and Mrs. Holcomb to entertain at their quarters in Marine Barracks in their first garden party of the season.

Ambassadors, Cabinet members, Service set, Congressionals and smart-set Washingtonians gathered to greet the Holcombs, who received them in the drawing room of the commandant's quarters. Mrs. Holcomb was gowned in a gay print frock of lavendar and purple leaves against a pale yellow background. Pinned to her shoulder was a corsage of orchids and as ornament she wore a cunningly contrived silver pin in the shape of a flying fish.

Platter Gift Attracts Comment

Wandering out toward the garden, guests noticed in the conservatory the large platter given to Mrs. Holcomb when she christened the new submarine Drum recently at Portsmouth, N. H. Fashioned of silver and hand-hammered, it was in the shape of a fish. Next to it was the silver case which surrounded the champagne bottle with which Mrs. Holcomb christened the ship.

Assisting at the tables during the afternoon were Mrs. William O. James, gowned in purple and green; Mrs. Harold Rosencrans, whose outfit was of luggage tan; Mrs. Walter I. Jordan, Mrs. Jack P. Julian, smart as always in black with white lingerie touches; Mrs. Austin R. Brunelli, who wore a gay print with pipings of red; Mrs. Edward R. Hagenah, Mrs. Merrill M. Day, Mrs. John B. Hill, Mrs. Jackson B. Butterfield and Mrs. Joseph O. Butcher.

Early Arrivals Create Tension

Arriving early, somewhat to the consternation of the other guests, were the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Constantin Oumansky, the Japanese Ambassador, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, and the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close. But the gardens were large, everyone was courteous, and there was no incident, only a bit of tension.

Also among early arrivals were Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, Senator David I. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawrence Houghteling, Mrs. George C. Marshall, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem, Mrs. George Barnett, deep in conversation with Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis; Mrs. John R. (Ma) Williams and Mrs. Sidney Graves.

Still others were the Commandant of the Navy Yard, Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill and Mrs. Pettengill, she in black and white print; Mrs. Hayne Ellis, Admiral David Sellers, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Gen. and Mrs. Ralph Keyser, the Commandant of the Marine Barracks at Quantico; Maj. Gen. Louis McCarthy Little and Mrs. Little, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, Mrs. R. H. Dunlap, Mrs. George Thorne, Admiral and Mrs. William Blandy, Miss Margaret Delano Gage, Representative and Mrs. Melvin Mass, and hundreds more.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

REAL ESTATE news is more absorbing to Washington even than gossip this spring, what with the current struggle to find a place to lay the head. An interesting transaction rumored is that David Bruce has bought the home of Mrs. Louis Lehr on Thirty-fourth Street in Georgetown.

Mrs. Walter White, the present occupant, was calmly having breakfast in bed the other day when the phone rang and she was told the place had been sold over her head. There's a touch of mystery about just who the new owner is, but rumor has it Mr. Bruce. He has been living at that favorite bachelor haunt, the 1718 H Street Club. George T. Summerlin, chief of Protocol, is among his housemates there. Mrs. Bruce is the daughter of the late Andrew Mellon and her husband is one of the trustees of the new National Art Gallery.

The Lehr house is red brick with an enormous walled garden at one side. In Civil War days Army bands used to give concerts on the lawn. The home is directly across the street from the residence of Capt. and Mrs. Alan Kirk and that which Mrs. Lionel Atwill recently bought and did over. The Whites have lived in Mrs. Lehr's house for several years, and before that John Winant, Ambassador to London, made his home there while chairman of the Social Security Board.

AFTER A FEW DAYS in which she considered buying a trailer for lack of an available house, Mrs. Mondell Gregg has leased a home. It's in Georgetown, on the corner of Thirtieth and O, right across the street from Mrs. Arthur Woods' house, where Mrs. Gregg has been living. Mrs. Woods has built up quite a colony of tenants on the old Robert Todd Lincoln place which she bought several years ago and remodeled. She occupies the main part of the big residence and the section Mrs. Gregg had is being done over for another tenant. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finletter are settled in the coachhouse.

Since Mrs. Gregg can't get into her new home until June 1, she is staying with Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss at Merrywood. Mrs. Auchincloss has already made her reservations at Hot Springs, Va., for the summer and expects to leave about the middle of June. Ten years ago, the Virginia resort was almost deserted and there was some talk of its closing for lack of patronage. Now it is sharing in Washington's boom, with many officials who can't go too far away making brief stays there. Mrs. Auchincloss has spent several summers at Hot Springs.

WITH SPRING HERE other Washingtonians are deep in vacation plans. Mr. and Mrs. Richart Southgate will go to Haynisport, Mass., for the summer and have already leased their Kalorama Circle home to Richard Straus (defense). Mr. Southgate, who is with an airplane manufacturing company, is working overtime these days, so his visits to the Cape probably will be limited.

Another who has already signed for a cottage this summer is Mrs. Frank Letts. She will go to Lyme, Conn., where former Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham will be neighbors. Mrs. Letts plans to motor up in a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Peters hope to buy a farm near Olney, Md., and build a house. Mrs. Peters is a graduate of an architect school and will probably draw up the plans herself.

NEWS NOTES. Benjamin Welles, son of the Undersecretary of State, is following in his father's footsteps, re Latin America. He has just been named to represent a New York paper in Panama . . . Nedenia Hutton, Mrs. Joseph Davies' daughter, has told friends she will have a party at the Ritz-Carlton in New York as well as a Washington debut.

Roosevelts To Entertain Latin Envoys

President and Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain at a reception for envoys of the Pan-American countries on Tuesday evening, May 28, when the President's speech, originally scheduled for May 14 at the Pan American Union, will be given.

Meanwhile, the First Lady's calendar continues to be crowded. Yesterday she entertained at another in the annual series of Spring parties at the White House. Receiving with Mrs. Roosevelt were wives of Cabinet members, and guests were wives of members of Congress. The fete began at 4 o'clock. Later, at 5:15 p. m., Mrs. Roosevelt attended the tea at the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, 1015 L Street.

Earlier yesterday the First Lady held her weekly press conference and then received a delegation from the Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be in Bangor, Maine, tonight to speak before a Jewish club group at the municipal auditorium. She will return to Washington tomorrow and tomorrow evening she and the President will entertain at their annual White House dance for members of the press.

The Disabled Veterans garden party is set for Thursday afternoon on the White House lawn. If the weather will not permit a garden fete at that time, the party will be postponed to Friday afternoon. Already on the First Lady's Friday calendar is the Community Chest Fiesta, which will take place at the Glover estate on Massachusetts Avenue. On Monday, Mrs. Roosevelt will be in Arthurdale, Va., to make the commencement address at the school in which she has been especially interested for several years.

On Wednesday afternoon, May 28, Mrs. Roosevelt will speak before the National Nutrition Conference for Defense. Her next press conference is set for Thursday, May 29, at 10 a. m.

New Burdens Coming, Wallace Tells Sisterhood

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor

Warning that tremendous responsibilities will come soon to this country, Vice President Wallace yesterday declared the American people must make a rapid change of attitude toward the assumption of them.

Addressing the annual donor luncheon of the Sisterhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, Vice President Wallace asserted "Times will gallop with such speed that tremendous responsibilities will come so soon—whether by sudden peace or our greater involvement . . . it will be all we can do to change with the utmost tact our attitude to be ready to accept the broadest kind of responsibilities."

"The New World has gained emancipation from Europe and it now needs discipline," said the Vice President. "It needs a new discipline which will enable us to shoulder the responsibilities that come upon us—responsibilities which will require more ingenuity than those in the past."

The Vice President paid tribute to the Jews of America as "much more interested in the United States of the future being the chosen land than in themselves being a chosen race."

He said that from his conversations with Jews he had come to the conclusion that there was a higher percentage of them than of others vitally concerned with the United States who are "living up to its potentiality as a chosen land, and who have a heartfelt belief in what the country stands for."

The Vice President was introduced by Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation. "The future of the world depends on the choices of America," he declared. "Everything depends on the leadership and the kind of values we express."

Also on the program, as the last speaker, was Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, of St. John's Episcopal Church.

About 300 members and guests of the Sisterhood attended the luncheon, which was in the Blue Room of the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. Milton Schlesinger, chairman of the affair, presided. The occasion also was marked by the installation of new officers. Mrs. Herbert Sommers assumed her duties as president, succeeding Mrs. David Simon, who has served for several years. Mrs. Abram Simon, honorary president and founder of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, also was present.

New officers in addition to Mrs. Schlesinger were Mrs. David Simon, first vice president; Mrs. Sidney Hechinger, second vice president; Mrs. Schlesinger, third vice president; Mrs. William Bush, fourth vice president; Mrs. David Loenstein, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Max Wertheimer, financial secretary; Mrs. Martin Brum, recording secretary; Mrs. David Bornet, treasurer; Mrs. Max Goodman and Mrs. Benjamin Brill, auditors.

Federation of Women's Clubs Convention Honors Pioneers

By Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley

Atlantic City, May 19.—Clubwomen from all States in the Union, the District and the island possessions formed the great audience which gathered tonight for opening program of the triennial convention celebrating the golden jubilee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, of Portland, Oreg., retiring president, will preside at the sessions, which will continue through Friday.

Clubwomen and women who have pioneered in other fields in the last 50 years were honored at tonight's session. Among the clubwomen were the District Federation's two representatives. Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, of the Housekeepers' Alliance and Women's City Club, and Mrs. Julia Webb, of the Excelsior Club, one of the oldest in the District.

The federation selected as its three outstanding pioneer members of its 50 years' history:

Mrs. Emma A. Fox, of Detroit, 94, parliamentarian with 64 years of club membership, for longest continuous service.

Dr. Clara B. Burdette, of Pasadena, Calif., educator and a former vice president of the general federation, designated the outstanding living leader of the federation.

Mrs. Rudolph L. Blankenburg, of Philadelphia, who died in 1937, was selected as the deceased member most worthy of distinction as having had the longest number of years affiliated with the general federation.

Washington women selected for honor as pioneers in other fields included Mrs. Roosevelt, who, although not present, was honored as a pioneer in humanitarian service; Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, in Government service; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, diplomatic service; Katharine F. Lenroot, child welfare; Mary Anderson, work for women in industry; Miss Maude MacDougall, journalism; Representative Jeanette Rankin, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross and Senator Hattie Caraway, politics, and Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, business.

Mrs. John F. Sippel, the Maryland pioneer clubwomen chosen for outstanding service, was former president of the General Federation. She was escorted to the platform by Miss Margaret Springer, new president of the Junior Woman's Club of Chevy Chase. Miss Margaret Weir, Maryland's other pioneer chosen for length of membership, helped to organize the Myrtle Club of Baltimore. She was escorted by Miss Marjorie Olsen, of Chevy Chase.

Another among the clubwomen honored was Mrs. Francis H. Easby, of Philadelphia, one of the two present who had attended the meeting called by the Sorosis Club in the Palmer Theater, in New York, in March, 1889, which was the initial step toward federation. Mrs. Easby was the organizer of the Century Club of Wilmington, Del. Her mother, Mrs. Charlotte L. Peirce, a member of the New Century Club, of Philadelphia, organized in 1877, was among those present at the first woman suffrage meeting in Seneca Falls.

Mrs. Easby, who wore an original Godey's Lady's Book dress of 1889, later moved to Baltimore and was one of the organizers of the Arundel Club. She also was a member of the Good Government Club and College Club. She served as chairman of education in the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs during the early days of its organization.

Army-Navy League Officers Give Tea At Clubhouse

The officers of the Woman's Army and Navy League, sponsors of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, were hostesses yesterday at a silver tea given at the clubhouse, 1015 L Street Northwest. Guests were members of the Women's National Democratic Club committee in charge of the canteen they donated to the club and other members of the organization who were invited to inspect the canteen where tea was served.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who is chairman of the committee operating the canteen as the Democratic Women's Club's defense project, attended the tea. She was presented with a "National Unity" pin which the club is selling to help raise funds for this work.

Mrs. Julian Schley, president of the Army and Navy League, received, assisted by Mrs. Curtis Shears, president of the Women's National Democratic Club.

A.A.U.W. Told Of Problems Facing U. S.

Regardless of whether Hitler is defeated in Europe, serious domestic problems will confront this country, Merlo Pusey, associate editor of The Post, told members of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women yesterday. He was guest speaker at the weekly tea at the clubhouse, 1634 I Street.

If Hitler were not defeated the problems would be more serious, but in any event, this country will have some dilemmas confronting it, particularly on the economic front, he said.

He referred to the budget situation as one of them, and called attention to the fact that even in this crisis the tendency is to demand heavy benefits from the Government by various pressure groups. As illustrations he cited the surrender of Congress on the farm crop loans, the parity payments and the almost complete failure to trim nondefense appropriations in the emergency.

"We are still living in the illusion that we can defend the United States without making the sacrifices that are necessary," he declared.

Concerning the strike problem, Mr. Pusey declared that labor has not accepted the responsibilities that should accompany the tremendous power it has acquired. He added that the Government seems unwilling to impose upon labor the obligations commensurate with the benefits that it has granted.

If the country continues to unload all these problems on the Government, as in the case of the farm problem and relief, it will alter the whole set-up and possibly our entire way of life, he said. The question arises whether a democracy is capable, of itself, to manage the tremendously complicated system that is being built up.

"We have a real fight for democracy here at home," asserted Mr. Pusey. "We can't continue to unload our responsibilities on a Government already overwhelmed with those of its own, without the possibility of a breakdown."

Mr. Pusey was presented by the creative writing group of the branch, of which Mrs. Dick Carlson is chairman. He spoke at the annual tea given in honor of new members, with Mrs. Lawrence Radford, membership chairman, as hostess.

Bolivian Girl Will Exhibit

Marina Nunez del Prado, Bolivian sculptress who holds this year's Latin-American fellowship of the American Association of University Women, is in Washington for the exhibition of her work at the Pan American Union opening Thursday afternoon. The Minister of Bolivia and Mme. Guachalla have issued invitations for the showing at which the Minister will speak.

Senorita del Prado, who has been a teacher of sculpture and anatomy in the Academy of Fine Arts at La Paz since 1931, is also helping to plan programs of art education for the Indians in her country. Her object is to express the spiritual values of the old Indian culture of Bolivia for this generation. She came to this country on the A. A. U. W. fellowship to study at the Art Students League in New York City under Zorach, learning special techniques of work on a large scale.

Her sculpture has caught the Indian myths often expressed in the dances used to interpret their reflections about life.

Senorita del Prado is staying at International House during her visit in Washington and is enjoying seeing the art galleries here, especially the National Gallery.

Latin Ladies To Aid Fiesta

An authentic Latin touch will be added to the fiesta of Community Chest agencies by the presence of young women in costume from the South American legations and embassies.

Senhora de Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, is chairman of the Community Chest League's committee to obtain good-neighbor representation from the other Americas at the league-sponsored "good neighbors at home" fiesta. Attired in the gay and brilliant costumes of their native peoples the young women invited by Senhora de Martins to attend the fiesta on Friday, May 23, from 2 to 5:30 p. m., include Senhora Lourdes Leonardos, representing Brazil; Senhorita Susana Garland, Bolivia; Senorita Leda Fernandez, Costa Rica; Senorita Matilde Pastoriza, Dominican Republic; Senorita Eugenia Sosa Puig, Ecuador; Senorita Elena Alicia Castro, El Salvador; Senorita Beatriz Recinos, Guatemala; Senorita Maria Elena Davila, Mexico; Senora Lupe de Alfaro, Panama.

Just as colorful, though perhaps less elaborate, will be the costumes of more than 500 children from Chest agencies who will take part in the fiesta. They will be seen, dancing, singing and working in the bright-canopied villages clustered on the Charles Carroll Glover grounds. The Chest agency exhibits are to be grouped into five villages, according to the broad fields of human service in which they cooperate.

Making certain that no group of children will lack transportation to the fiesta will be a volunteer motor corps headed by Mrs. Walter F. Chappell. Among those lending cars and chauffeur services are: Mrs. James Karrick, Mrs. Corcoran Thom, jr., Mrs. Carroll Morgan, Mrs. Randolph Bishop.

All driving their own cars will wear the smart motor corps uniform of white trench cap and coat.

The opening of the gates of the Glover grounds at 4300 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, from 2 to 5:30 p. m. Friday, May 23, will mark the third annual outdoor exhibit and garden party sponsored by the Chest League on the Glover estate.

Air Ambulance To Be Shown Here Today

The Washington Committee of the British-American Ambulance Corps will sponsor a luncheon to be given today by its members at the Roger-Smith Hotel at 1:30 p. m. Guests of honor will be Lieut. Col. Stewart-Roddie and those who are coming down from New York in the "flying ambulance" purchased by donations of the officials and employes of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Arriving at Hoover Airport at 1 o'clock, the flying ambulance will be on exhibition throughout the afternoon and early evening. Equipped for immediate hospital work, the ambulance will be flown across the Atlantic in a few days and will be put in use at once.

Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman is chairman of the Washington committee of the British-Ambulance Corps and Mrs. Robert Stewart-Richardson is vice chairman. Many members of the committee will attend the luncheon.

LANSBURGH'S AIR COOLED

Bill Sped To Curb Foes Of Recruiting

By Jhon G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Legislation making it a crime to "wilfully obstruct" Army and Navy recruiting was rushed in Congress yesterday after it received an official Navy report of union resistance to enlistment of seamen in the Naval Reserve.

Capt. John F. Shafroth, director of the Naval Reserve, presented to the House Naval Affairs Committee a report of an episode aboard an American merchant ship May 1, during which an agent of the A. F. of L. Seafarers International Union refused to permit members to be interviewed by a Navy recruiting party and the vessel was found to have swastikas painted on the interior of the ship.

An investigation of the incident was immediately ordered by the committee and Chairman Vinson later in the day introduced legislation imposing heavy criminal penalties for attempted interference with Army and Navy recruiting. The bill was referred to the House Judiciary Committee and that body, acting with equal speed, set it down for hearing this morning.

Naval officials will appear before the group to testify as to the need for the measure, and perhaps, it was indicated, give other evidence of subversive activity in the merchant marine.

Capt. Shafroth's report stated that a Navy recruiting party had gone aboard the S. S. Deltargentino in New Orleans but that the "floating representative" of the union had ordered members who made up the crew not to talk to the recruiters.

When one seaman disobeyed, it was said, he was assailed by another who "blasphemed the Navy and the United States" and accused him of being a "traitor to the union." A fist fight was started, Shafroth said, which was stopped by a ship's officer.

Navy representatives contacted headquarters of the union ashore in the matter, it was said, but the official in charge "refused to give definite answers to questions."

Acting on information given them by custom officials, the Navy party went below decks on the merchantman and found three Nazi swastikas painted on interior doors, the report stated.

The S. S. Deltargentino is a new passenger-cargo vessel built with Government subsidy and is operated under a Government subsidy of the Delta Line (Mississippi Shipping Co.) from Gulf ports to Argentina and other South American countries. It would become a naval auxiliary in time of war.

Chairman Vinson said members of the crew and the commander of the Navy recruiting party will be called for testimony

NazisClaim Sub Sank 'Several' British Tankers

Berlin (Tuesday), May 20.—A lone German submarine in a series of attacks on "strongly protected" convoys in the Atlantic was declared early today to have sunk "several" British tankers aggregating 33,000 tons.

This claim followed announcement that a Luftwaffe bomber surprised a British submarine off Britain's southwest coast yesterday morning and sank the U-boat with a direct bomb hit, southwest of the Welsh port of Weymouth.

A few hours earlier a German bomber formation was declared to have attacked and sunk a "big enemy tanker" displacing 10,000 tons west of Ireland.

In the St. Georges Channel two merchant ships, aggregating 12,000 tons, were stated to have been sunk under bombardment. West of Donegal Bay, the high command said, a ship in a "strong convoy" was set afire and three others seriously damaged.

The cruiser of the 8,250-ton York class was damaged in Suda Bay, off the Island of Crete when she sustained three direct hits with heavy-caliber bombs, the communique said.

At the same time, two destroyers in Suda Bay were declared to have been heavily damaged and two small merchant vessels sunk, while six big merchant ships, it was claimed, were gravely damaged.

Battles Over England

London (Tuesday), May 20 (INS).—German raiders early today dropped several high-explosive bombs on Britain's southwest and eastern coastal districts, but did little damage, the British announced.

The attacks followed daylight air battles Monday over southern coastal areas in which five Nazi fighters were declared shot down as against four lost by the British.

Royal Air Force bombers, meanwhile, were stated to have inflicted fiery damage in raids on the German naval bases of Kiel and Emden and the "invasion port" of Cherbourg on the French coast Sunday night and early Monday.

New damage was inflicted on Kiel shipbuilding yards vital to the Nazi warfare against British shipping, the ministry stated.

At Emden, lair of U-boats used in "wolf packs" against British merchant vessels, docks and shipping were attacked. The same targets were picked out by R. A. F. bombers raiding Cherbourg.

Spanish Legations Shelter Nazi Plotters, Marquis Says

By the United Press

Charges were made yesterday by the Marquis de Aguiar, representative of the Spanish Catholic and Royalist parties, that Germany now is represented in every Spanish consulate and legation in the Americas as part of an intensive program against Pan-Americanism.

He voiced his charge to reporters at the State Department, where he is registered as a foreign agent.

He asserted that Nazis are penetrating Latin America under the name of the Spanish Falangist Party but actually under direct orders from Berlin. Shiploads of arms already have been delivered to Nazi agents in Mexico and Chile, he declared.

The two German panzer divisions which routed British forces in Libya reached Africa by way of Spain and Tunisia, he said, and 12 other German divisions have been in Spain since November prepared to take the field in Morocco when the time is auspicious.

Don Luis de Silva, Marquis de Zahara, first secretary of the Spanish Embassy, termed De Aguiar's charges "perfectly untrue." He said they were "so silly" that Spanish Ambassador Francisco de Cardenas would not care to comment on them. He said he knew everyone connected with the embassy here and that none was subject to German influence.

De Aguiar charged that a "real pact" was signed October 8, 1938, which placed Spanish foreign policy under Axis control and provided that Spain would enter the war in 1941 through an attack on Morocco. He said this plan was changed last September and Spain was told to remain neutral and get all she could from Great Britain and the United States.

Since then, he said, Germany has "peacefully" invaded Spain and placed military forces in various Spanish possessions, including the Canary Islands. Conclusion of any further agreement between Gen. Francisco Franco and Axis representatives, he said, would mean that "the time to move has come."

He said "the great majority of Spaniards" favor Britain and the democracies, but that they have been held in check thus far by the Franco regime.

Woodrum Would Go Out Shooting to Deliver Aid

St. Paul, May 19 (U.P.).—Representative Clifton Woodrum Democrat), of Virginia, declared in an interview today that "we must deliver our goods to England, even if it requires naval convoys and shooting, but we should not let ourselves be aroused to the pitch of a declaration of war."

"A declaration of war would commit the United States to the conquering of Germany," he said. "That would mean an immense expeditionary force trying to land on the continent of Europe to march into Germany. It is not common sense to commit this Nation to such a task."

STURDY HEALTH

Disease Rate Of D. C. Selects Reported High

A comparatively high percentage of venereal disease among District selectees is claimed in the annual report of the Social Hygiene Society, to be presented at a meeting in the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest, Friday night, according to an announcement yesterday.

"Ray H. Everett, executive secretary, will call attention to the District's inadequate defenses against venereal disease," the society said.

His report was quoted as follows: "Despite improvements in clinic and laboratory work, there still are numerous undiscovered cases of syphilis and gonorrhea in Washington, and far too few of those who do come for treatment report at an early enough stage to receive maximum benefit. Our clinics also are unable to hold their patients until they receive full courses of treatment.

"One major result of these gaps in the District's health protection," the report was quoted further, "is the comparatively high incidence of syphilis disclosed in the District's selectees."

Welfare and public health leaders of the District and nearby counties have been invited to Friday's meeting, which will be at 7 p. m. Dr. Ira S. Wile, of New York, psychiatrist and author, will speak on "Morale in the Gay Nineties and Today." Dr. Henry H. Hazen, president of the society, will preside.

Fifteen new directors will be elected. Those nominated are Judge Fay Bentley, William C. Bowen, Dr. George R. Creswell, Dr. Dorothy Boulding-Ferebee, Dr. Russell J. Fields, Mrs. Maurice H. Friedman, Dr. William P. Herbst, Capt. Rhoda Milliken, Dr. Winfred Overholser, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, Mrs. Maurice D. Rosenberg, Carl D. Wells, Mrs. W. W. Wheeler and G. C. Wilkinson. Both dinner and meeting are open to the public.

Death Penalty Sought for 2 Youths

The death penalty was demanded by Government counsel yesterday for two youths on trial in the District Court on charges of kidnaping a waitress at the point of a knife and assaulting her four times.

Mrs. Gertrude Imlay, mother of two children, collapsed on the witness stand when she was testifying to mistreatment at the hands of Albert M. Farmer, 23, and Francis J. Mulvey, 23. "I can't tell any more," she sobbed, interrupting a question being asked by Assistant District Attorney William Hitz, jr.

Justice James M. Proctor recessed court for 10 minutes until Mrs. Imlay regained her composure. She said Mulvey seized her as she walked home from work the night of September 13, 1940, held a knife to her throat and threatened to kill her if she made an outcry. She told the jury of three women and nine men that the defendants took her to a secluded place in Maryland, forced her to strip, assaulted her and stole her purse, finally returning her to Washington.

Robert W. McCullough, defense counsel, said in his opening address that the defense witnesses were expected to show that Mrs. Imlay went on the party willingly. Attorney Andrew A. Lipscomb also is defense counsel.

Jobless Board Employes Given Merit Exams

The 170 employes at the District Unemployment Board are being brought under Civil Service through noncompetitive tests. Some of the employes will be tested today. All, from Director John Marshall down to the janitor, are being brought under the merit system through the D. C. Unemployment Compensation Act which was approved nearly a year ago. Only two assistant attorneys who are under Schedule A are exempted from Civil Service.

Walter Rice, crack court attorney in Thurman Arnold's Anti-Trust Division, will resign this week to become vice president and general counsel of the Reynolds Metal Co. He has been working for five years on the Government's monopoly case against the Aluminum Co. of America. The Reynolds concern is a competitor of the Aluminum Co. Rice also handled the Schechter Poultry Case which killed the NRA. E. J. Lindquist, chief auditor of RFC, also has been elected a vice president of Reynolds and it's understood the company is after several other key Federal officials.

Harllee Branch, chairman of Civil Aeronautics Board, told a Senate committee that the 316 board employes had accrued 3,000 days of annual leave, which must be a new high record of piled up leave. An employe isn't allowed to carry over more than 60 days to a new year. Branch also testified that the employes had worked 3,019 days of overtime during the last six months, which is an average of more than 100 days for each employe. That, too, must be something of a high record.

Branch produced the statistics to back up his plea for funds to hire 12 additional employes to ease the work load at CAB. His argument was ignored as the committee agreed with the House that 15 new positions were sufficient. . . . Civil Aeronautics Administration also has its overtime troubles. A. E. Stockburger, executive officer, testified that CAA employes had put in 61,502 hours of overtime during the last six months despite the fact that 1,000 new employes had been hired in seven months. Neither the CAB is banning or restricting vacations. Officials say the employes realize there is work to be done and they don't ask for long vacations.

Probe Rider Killed

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday knocked out the rider in the State, Commerce, Justice appropriation bill which would have given the FBI $100,000 to investigate Communist and Nazi activities among Federal employes. Justice officials opposed the appropriation. They explained that the Overton amendment, which has been nailed onto all 1942 supply bills, covers the problem, as it prevents funds being used to pay the salaries of Communists and Nazis in the Federal service. . . . Incidentally, the Dies Committee tomorrow will open hearings which are expected to connect several Federal officials with subversive activities. A list of Government employes who are reputed to own Soviet bonds probably will be made public.

Joseph L. Rauh has resigned as assistant legal counsel of FCC to join the legal staff of lend-lease under Oscar Cox. . . . Willard B. Cowles, special assistant to the Attorney General, is the winner of the $3,000 Erskine M. Ross essay award of the American Bar Association.

The award is tops in the legal field. . . . The Senate must be after patronage at the Justice Department. It placed riders on the Justice appropriation bill which would require Senate confirmation for special attorneys and lawyers in the Anti-Trust Division. If the House agrees to the riders, just where will that put the Ramspeck Act? The act is supposed to bring lawyers under Civil Service and a board soon will be set up to bring them under. The House last year refused to agree to similar riders.

Civil Service Commission officials report that they haven't determined which employes will be given noncompetitive mental tests under the Ramspeck Act and which employes will be graded on their experience and education. As a general rule, however, only the clerical and other low-salaried employes will be required to take mental tests. Few, if any, professional and technical employes will be given mental exams.

Might Have 9 Lives?

Prince Georges County police at Upper Marlboro received reports Friday that a stray dog was frightening citizens on the outskirts of town. Officer Francis Richards put two loads from a sawed-off shotgun into the dog as it disappeared—then call it a day.

Yesterday the dog reappeared—still active. Police went looking for him again but—had no luck.

Well, He Had a Comeback!

Senator Charles W. Tobey (Republican), New Hampshire, yesterday accepted an umbrella—since Munich regarded as the badge of an appeaser—in the "same spirit of friendly combat in which I am sure it is given."

The donors were a group of Ossipee, N. H., citizens. Tobey said the umbrella was a "token of Americanism."

Monday Club Backs WPA For Morale

Session at Lorton Reformatory Urges Adequate Funds For District Projects

The Monday Evening Club last night adopted a resolution urging the "vital importance" for provision of "adequate funds" for WPA projects in the District affecting health and morale.

Among those named were the school lunch project, housekeeping aides, adult education, work at Blue Plains, art and music units. The resolution urged that other groups join in the effort to persuade Congress of the importance of these projects.

The club, holding its meeting at Lorton Reformatory with Ray Huff, general superintendent of penal institutions, as host, elected the following new officers:

Miss Louise McGuire, president; Miss Edna Kury, vice president; Mrs. Alice Thornton, secretary; Miss K. Virginia Timmons, reelected treasurer. Maj. Charles Dodd, of the Salvation Army, retiring president, was in charge of the meeting. Dinner was served to the club, which made a tour of the reformatory. Approximately 80 members and guests were present.

Lincoln Park

Alfred D. Calvert was reelected president of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association at a meeting held last night at the Kingman School, Fourteenth and E Streets Northeast.

J. W. Barse was elected first vice president; Levy R. Tindal, second vice president, and B. Frank Campbell, treasurer.

The association indorsed the recently proposed highway plan in principle, but opposed an increased gas tax and the proposed Alexandria subway. The recreation board plan was approved, with the provision that the four sections of Washington all be represented in its membership.

Interfederation

The Interfederation Conference of Citizens Associations, representing the District Federation and federations in adjoining counties in Maryland and Virginia, last night appointed a committee to investigate means of obtaining a coordinated plan between the District and adjoining communities on the question of "undesirable" houses.

The danger of low-cost houses undercutting property values in metropolitan communities was pointed out by numerous speakers. It was urged that the Federal Government force an improved design on many houses of low cost. The group met at the Y. W. C. A.

Lincoln Civic

Harry S. Wender was indorsed for the position of adviser on local affairs to the Senate District Committee last night by the Lincoln Civic Association. The resolution, proposed by Mrs. Edna West Peyton, chairman of the committee on social service, pointed out that Wender is a native and said he is "qualified by education, experience and training."

The association ipdorsed Conrad Van Hyning, principal assistant director of public welfare, to succeed Robert E. Bondy, director, who has resigned. The association met in Francis Junior High School.

Van Ness St. Quiz Ordered By Randolph

Bureau of Standards Request to Close It Is Opposed By Commissioners

Public airing of the controversy over the proposed closing of Van Ness sStreet Northwest through the grounds of the Bureau of Standards was ordered yesterday by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee.

Randolph told the regular Monday morning meeting of his committee that he had received from Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, bureau director, a request for hearing on a bill directing closing of the street from Connecticut Avenue to Reno Road.

The bill was submitted to Congress recently by Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones after the District Commissioners, following a storm of civic protest, declined to accede to a bureau request to close the street.

District Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech told the committee that the Commissioners have reported unfavorably on the bill to the Bureau of the Budget.

Briggs, Randolph said, declared closing important to the success of the bureau's national defense work. Jones, in a letter to Congress, pointed out that bureau activities are to be carried on in buildings on both sides of Van Ness Street and that to protect the buildings with fences it would be necessary either to close the street or build fences on both sides of it and hire additional guards.

A date for hearing on the legislation will be set by Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, chairman of the streets and traffic subcommittee. Schulte was out of the city yesterday.

In response to requests for action from members of a subcommittee which unanimously approved the measure, the full committee voted to make the police and firemen's pay-increase bill the first order of business at the next meeting. Because many members will be out of town May 26, the committee will meet June 2.

Keech, in response to a question from Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, said adoption of the bill would add to the District's yearly expenditures $1,338,700 for police salaries and pensions and $527,860 for firemen.

"We don't want to saddle the District with extra expenses, particularly at a time when we don't know what the 1942 revenues will be," Dirksen said.

Representative Stephen Bolles (Republican), of Wisconsin, agreed that legislation to prohibit picketing at the White House was beyond the jurisdiction of the District Committee after Keech had pointed out that the Executive Mansion is a Federal agency

"It seems to me outrageous that we should tolerate picketing at the White House, the home of the President of the United States, when we prohibit, by law, the picketing of foreign embassies," Bolles declared.

$100,000 Drive Begun by 375 At American U.

A drive for a $100,000 maintenance fund for American University was launched last night at a banquet attended by about 375 persons in the university gymnasium.

The campaign, which will be conducted for the next nine days by three divisions of women and eight of men, will help pay operating expenses for the university's expanded program—including the downtown in-service courses largely attended by Government workers.

Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, resident Methodist Bishop of Washington and chairman of the board of trustees, said: "American University will now become the national university of the Methodist Church."

E. Barrett Prettyman, general chairman of the campaign, pointed out the university's "ever-expanding assistance" to Government workers in the in-service program.

Frank H. West, of Nashville, campaign director sent here by the Methodist Church, gave instructions to the workers who will solicit funds.

Dr. Paul F. Douglass, new president of the university, pointed out that 50 years ago 50 persons at a meeting here launched the university. A member of that first group, Dr. Albert Osborn, who became registrar of the university, was present last night.

Charles Corddry, of Snow Hill, Md., president of the student body, and Lionel Stienberg, of California, graduate student, told what the university had meant to them.

Paul Cromelin is leading the women's divisions, and Stuart Patterson the men's divisions.

Perpetuate Christ's Ideals, Pastor Urges

Calling Christ "the cement of society to hold mankind, together," Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder last night urged perpetuation of His ideals in the world today.

He spoke at the opening worship service of the sixty-fourth annual convention of the Disciples of Christ, Capital area, at Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park Road Northwest. He is pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church and Federation of Churches' president.

"We should perpetuate the life of Christ on earth," said the cleric, "because He is the conscience of the world to give light, under which men may solve their problems; He is the Christ of God to give man and society a sense of destiny."

At the brotherhood dinner that formally opened the conclave, greetings were brought by Roy Harlow, lay leader of the host church; Dr. William R. Barnhart, Federation of Churches' executive secretary; the Rev. C. N. Williams, secretary of the Capital area; Henry Brewood, octogenarian convention president; Dr. A. P. Wilson, host pastor, and others.

The Capital area missionary society will conduct this morning's sessions. The Rev. Ernest Worden, of Martinsburg, W. Va., will speak on "State Missions," and J. Eric Carlson, executive secretary of the National Benevolent Association of St. Louis, Mo., will speak on "The Social Function of the Church."

This afternoon's theme will be "Weekday Schools of Religious Education." Tonight's speakers will be Mrs. May Yoho Ward, executive secretary of Disciples of Christ for Latin America, and Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. Noon luncheons will be served today and tomorrow at St. Stephens and the Incarnation Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and Newton Streets Northwest.

Franklin Bank To Start Paying Final Dividend

Dividends that will complete 100 per cent payment on deposits in the Franklin National Bank at the time it was closed in March, 1933, will be paid 17,000 depositors beginning tomorrow morning at 945 Pennsylvania Avenue, it was announced yesterday by Samuel M. Thrift, executive secretary of the Franklin Liquidating Trust.

Thrift spoke for the three trustees of the trust, William F. Kelly, Lindsey P. Hawley and Henry J. Sterzer. He said it was hoped interest amounting to about $100,000 would be paid to depositors at a later date. In order to be sure of getting this when it is paid, he added, depositors should be careful not to destroy their "certificates of participation."

The first dividend from the closed bank was paid to depositors in April, 1934. This amounted to about $1,800,000, or 65 per cent of deposits.

"Certificates of participation" were issued to depositors for the remaining 35 per cent, and since then four dividends have been paid. The portion that will be paid beginning tomorrow is the final 7 per cent.

Hearing Opens On Recreation Plans Today

Proponents of opposing theories on management of the District's recreation facilities will make their opening arguments at the first of a series of hearings on proposed legislation at 10 a. m. today in the House District Committee room.

Representative John F. Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, chairman of the parks and recreation subcommittee, said last night that he expects to devote at least three sessions to hearing arguments for and against two recreation bills he has introduced by request.

One measure proposes to place management of playgrounds and community centers in the hands of two directors and a superintendent of recreation. A second bill, approved by the Board of Education and the District Commissioners, would put a nine-member board in charge of all facilities, including those now under the direction of the Office of National Capitol Parks.

Philip H. Marcum, an attorney representing sponsors of the first bill, will be the starting witness. Milo F. Christiansen, acting District recreation coordinator, will present arguments for the second bill, drafted after years of study by the President's Recreation Committee.

Hunter emphasized that no representatives of civic organizations will be heard today.

Schools Sponsor Lectures on How To Sell Shoes

A series of lectures on "What About Shoes?" designed to help shoe salesmen become more proficient, will open today under the auspices of the District public schools and shoe dealers and manufacturers.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays through June 12, lectures will be held at 9 a. m. at the Columbia Theater, and at 8 p. m. at Roosevelt High School, without cost, to adults engaged in shoe merchandizing. The program is planned by the school's department of distributive education, with the cooperation of the following committee:

Edwin Hahn, chairman; A. J. Soucy, vice chairman; Harry E. Hannasch, secretary; Herbert J. Rich, chairman of executive committee which includes Joseph DeYoung, A. E. Felser, L. E. Massey, Aubrey Misell, Franz Richey, Jack Rosenberg, Marvin Seligman, Herman Siegel, Al Silverman. At both of today's lectures E. P. Strong, supervisor of distributive education, will speak, along with a lecture on "The Romance and History of Shoes," by Maj. Charles T. Cahill, of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Boston.

Face Is Familiar

Although Larry Bach, night clerk at the House, hadn't seen his old mechanical lettering teacher from back home in Detroit, Mich., for over 19 years, when he spied Carl E. Karlstrom strolling about Capitol Hill yesterday he recognized his old tutor at once.

Mr. and Mrs. Karlstrom are now Bach's guests for the remainder of their Washington visit.

Postlude

Nelson Logan, Pianist, Gives Recital Here

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Church of the Incarnation presents Nelson Logan in a piano recital Monday night in St. Augustine's Auditorium. Program of compositions by Bach, Chopin, Liszt, Debussy, Lecuona and Grieg.

Nelson Logan, who recently appeared as soloist with the Havana Symphony Orchestra in Cuba, gave a piano recital last evening in St. Augustine's Auditorium under the auspices of the Church of the Incarnation. Through the medium of a conventional program of familiar compositions he displayed a drilled technique exceptional neither in speed nor brilliance, and his playing was more cautious than inspirational. In his treatment of style there was very little distinction between composers. Of his tone one cannot speak with certainty because he was so ill-advised as to allow the use of an amplifier indoors.

BROWN

He began his recital with Rummel's transcription of Bach's chorale-prelude, "Jesu Christs, Gottes Sohn," which was handled sturdily. This was followed by three Chopin pieces—the C sharp minor and F Sharp major preludes and the C sharp minor polonaise—the group ending incongruously with the "Rigoletto" fantasia by Liszt.

Debussy and Lecuona were conjoined in a group, the former represented by "Voiles" and "Golliwogg's Cake-Walk" and the latter by "La Comparsa" and the inevitable "Malaguena."

The recital closed with a performance of the last two movements of the Grieg concerto in which he was assisted at a second piano by Madeline V. Coleman. This was marked by considerable spirit and touches of poesy in the lyric passages.

Bookshop's Members Deny Dies Charges

A group of members of The Bookshop, a cooperative enterprise at 916 Seventeenth Street Northwest, last night adopted a resolution disclaiming Communist domination, following a Dies Committee investigator's seizure of the membership list Friday.

The resolution stated: "We are unorganized, undisciplined people who joined The Bookshop to buy records and books at a discount.

"We are deeply concerned that the Dies Committee has charged The Bookshop with being a Communist Front organization. We regard this as a mass condemnation of many liberal and progressive people who are not subversive.

"We are heartily in accord with the foreign policy of this Government and are committed to full support of the defense program. There are hundreds of Bookshop members like us.

"We are opposed to the Bookshop following any other principles and purposes than those of consumer cooperation, and we repudiate any actions by the officers which might lead to Communist influence or domination.

"We welcome the support of all Bookshop members who think as we do. We urge their attendance at the emergency meeting called for 8 p. m. Tuesday at the Bookshop."

A release stated that the group agreeing on the resolution included Pauline Arkus, 2000 S Street Northwest; Lucile Breyer, 1733 Twentieth Street Northwest; Dorothy Cline, 2262 Hall Place Northwest; John Edelman, 2224 West Twenty-fourth Street, Arlington; Arthur Jacobs, 2700 Connecticut Avenue; Henry Lee Moon, 1206 Kenyon Road Northwest; Corienne Robinson, 1111 Columbia Road Northwest; John Saks, 2109 F Street Northwest; Paul Unger, 1 B St. Matthews Court Northwest.

A Dies Committee hearing, at which the matter will cme up, will begin tomorrow.

The list of 1,200 members of The Bookshop was obtained at headquarters of the District of Columbia Cooperative League with which The Bookshop has been affiliated. Dies said he authorized issuance of a subpena for David McCalmont, general counsel of the league, who surrendered the list to Robert Barker, Dies investigator.

Kennedy Routed as Chisox Beat Nats Again, 8-2

Two Former Griffmen Drive Runs Home in Clusters; Cast-Off Smith Check Nats

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The White Sox, past and present, heaped more grief on the Nats yesterday. Two of their current members, Taft Wright and Joe Kuhel, whacked runs across the plate in clusters, and another party to the Nats' defeat was Vernon Kennedy, one-time White Sox who, unfortunately, was pitching for Washington yesterday.

It was a lopsided 8-2 affair in which Kennedy was making his pitching debut for the Nats. The slender right-hander was no shining success. Before he was retired for obvious reasons during a four-run outburst by the White Sox in the seventh inning, Kennedy had walked seven batters and four of them scored. He was a little bit wild.

Two Deals Haunt Park

Haunting the premises again yesterday were the awful recollections of two of the deals made by the Washington club in recent years. Taft Wright, who was unregretfully traded to the White Sox at the end of the 1939 season, slugged three of Chicago's runs across the plate, the last pair with a booming triple. Earlier in the proceedings, Joe Kuhel (remember him?) slammed out hits that produced two runs.

It was a breeze for fat-legged little Edgar Smith, another of the league's discards, who coasted to his fourth straight victory for the White Sox. The chunky left-hander, always in possession of a lead, permitted few liberties with men on bases.

Actually the Nats outhit the White Sox, 10 to 8, but they were making the least of their opportunities, and in contrast to the seven walks dealt out by Kennedy, mean old Smitty issued only two bases on balls and refused also to give up anything more than a single until the ninth.

It was no false start that Kennedy made. He walked the first hitter to face him, and the White Sox promptly moved into a 2-0 lead. Kennedy threw wild in a try to pick Bill Knickerbocker off first, and he moved to second. Former Nat Kuhel promptly scored Knickerbocker with a single to center, and after former Nat Kuhel stole second, former Nat Wright fetched him home with a single to left.

In the fourth, Kennedy inspired another White Sox run by walking Lead-Off Man Lodigiani, who got to second on a sacrifice, to third on Hoag's infield hit, and home on Tresh's infield out.

Kennedy Proves "Cousin"

Kennedy didn't trifle in the seventh. He walked the first two men to face him, whereupon former Nat Kuhel drove one home with a single to right, and former Nat Wright banged two runs home with a triple into the center-field corner.

The first man out in the inning was Kennedy. Bucky Harris took him out, Walter Masterson go tthe pitching job at this point, and served a single to Lodigiani that got the fourth run of the inning home.

Against Masterson in the eighth, the White Sox picked up their last run. Knickerbocker banged a single to right, and Appling rifled a single through the box for run No. 8.

The Nats, meanwhile, were not causing much disturbance. They left two runners on base in the second and third, and finally crashed through with a run in the fifth, when Kennedy singled through the box. Case and Cramer struck out, but Archie and Lewis poked singles to center for the run.

They came up with a run in the ninth, too, when Al Evans tripled to left and Pinch Hitter Johnny Melaj singled to right, but that uprising fell something like six runs short of tying the score.

Tigers Whip Red Sox, 4-2, For 5 in Row

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 19.—Right-handed Johnny Gorsica sinker-balled the Boston Red Sox into submission today, limiting the Hose batting order to four safe hits, while the Detroit Tigers went on to win their fifth straight victory, 4-2, before a slim crowd.

Gorsica had the Sox eating out of his hand, retiring them in order until the fifth, which Jimmy Foxx opened with a single. Joe Cronin ended that threat, however, by tapping into a fast double play. Cronin collected a double and Ted Williams slammed his fifth homer of the season with Finnery, who had singled, on base in the seventh to account for the remaining Boston hits.

Detroit scored single runs in the third, fourth, fifth and ninth innings. Frank Croucher opened the third with a single, the first hit off Joe Dobson, who started for the Sox. Gorsica bunted him to second and he scored on Bruce Campbell's single to left. Croucher scored again in the fourth, after drawing a base on balls, coming home on a Bob Harris single. Charlie Gehringer's homer scored the fifth-inning tally, and Paddy Mullin and Tuck Stainback collaborated in a double steal in the ninth for the fourth marker.

Burman Forces Alfano to Quit

Baltimore, May 19 (AP).—Clarence (Red) Burman, 199, scored a technical knockout tonight in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-round bout over Mike Alfano, 210, of Newark.

Alfano fought back Burman's rushes in the early sessions but tired badly and midway of the sixth notified Referee Ed Brockman that he could not continue. The fight was Burman's first since going five rounds last January with Joe Louis.

Art Donovan Named Louis-Baer Referee

D. C. Commission Selects New York Official; Okays Extra Wrapping for Fighters' Hands

By Al Hailey

Joe Louis was guaranteed full protection for his hands yesterday by the District Boxing Commission, which at the same time named Arthur Donovan the referee for Louis' seventeenth defense of his heavyweight championship Friday night in Griffith Stadium against Buddy Baer.

The commission, which stands to clear the most money it has ever taken from a fight gate, made a special ruling on hand wrappings yesterday at the request of the Louis camp.

Joe and Baer, too, will be permitted to use 6 yards of tape over 10 yards of bandage over their fists. This is several yards more than the usual wrapping generally specified in the District.

Louis Uses Extra Wrapping

Although Louis' trainer, Jack Blackburn, insists that Joe's hands are in first-class shape, the step seeking extra protection indicates he is not as satisfied as he would like to be.

Louis has been using this extra wrapping since his "Bum-of-the-Month" tour began to put such a tax on his hands, but Friday night he'll probably have more than he ever has used in any title defense. Both Louis and Baer camps pointed out to the commission that they wanted to use more tape on the wrists of their fighters.

Happy in the thought of the commission's 10 per cent "take" on what begins to shape up as a $150,000 gate Friday night Commissioners Claude W. Owen, Ernest W. Brown and Thomas P. Morgan, jr., readily agreed to bring in Donovan, the New York referee who has officiated at so many Louis fights that he knows almost every move Joe will make before Joe himself.

Selection No Surprise

Donovan's selection over Frank Fullam, former Catholic University boxing star, came as no surprise, although Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, only Sunday said he was opposed to Donovan.

Izzy Kline, Buddy's trainer, said a few moments later in the presence of Hoffman that he would rather have Donovan than anyone else and only after frantic eye signals from various publicists did he think to add that Donovan probably would favor Louis.

Donovan is the official who voted for Billy Soose over Ken Overlin 10 days ago when 56 out of 58 newspaper men called Ken the winner in the middleweight title fight in the Garden. Hoffman's animus dates back farther than that, however—back to the time when Donovan had Max Baer trailing Primo Carnera up to the time he knocked Primo flat in the eleventh round. Max had knocked down Primo 11 times.

Judges Not Named

Judges for the fight will be announced the night of the fight. Selection lies between Frank Schuyler, Jimmy Sullivan, Dr. O. U. Singer, Bob Eller and H. C. Trigg, colored physician who sat in on the Henry Armstrong-Phil Furr fight.

All indication, however, is that the judges won't be extended when Buddy starts trying to avenge the family honor by wiping out the stain of the defeat Louis handed big brother Max. A knockout is certain.

Buddy, whose calm and lack of perturbation continues to amaze one and all at his Olney, Md., camp, yesterday went so far as to name the round in which he'll knock out Louis.

"I'm in better shape now than I ever have been, and I'm going to knock out Louis in six rounds," he told Overlin, a visitor to Steve Cochran's farm, yesterday as he took a day off from his training program.

Scalzo Beats Zwick, Keeps Feather Title

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, May 19.—Petey Scalzo, of New York, successfully defended his N. B. A. featherweight title tonight, beating the veteran Phil Zwick, of Kaukauna, Wis., by a decision in 15 rounds before a crowd of 8,500. Scalzo weighed 125, Zwick, 124½.

Zwick, who has been fighting for more than 20 years, staged a great finish, winning the last round by a good margin, but the lead the champion had built up in the earlier rounds enabled him to win.

Most of the action was packed into three rounds, the fourth, eleventh and fifteenth. Scalzo had Zwick in trouble when he got through the veteran's tight guard with stiff rights in the fourth and eleventh. In the final round Zwick got over a left hook and a right cross that sent Scalzo tumbling through the ropes. He was up at a count of five.

Joe Louis & Co., May Make Tour Of Australia

The Joe Louis road show may make a flying trip to Australia for a barnstorming tour, according to a story yesterday by Richard Hughes, Washington correspondent for the Australian Consolidated Press.

Hughes, who also represents the Sydney Daily and Sunday Telegraph and the Australian Women's Weekly, talked Louis' managers, John Roxborough and Julian Black, into a happy frame of mind yesterday when he mentioned that Louis could pick up $100,000 in exhibitions in Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane. Joe will go next fall if this figure is guaranteed.

A popular picture magazine which hits the stands tomorrow quotes Joe as saying he will quit the ring in September, however, after he fights Lou Nova. Louis is said to be anxious to retire and that he would have quit earlier but for the soft pickings of the "Bum of the Month" tour.

Whirlaway Runs Today At Belmont

By the Associated Press

New York, May 19.—Whirlaway isn't going to take it easy just because he already has won two-thirds of the turf's triple crown and appears to have the other one-third signed, sealed and ready to deliver on June 7, when the Belmont Stakes is run.

Believing the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner needs racing to keep in condition, Trainer Ben Jones has entered the 3-year-old champ against older horses in the $2,500 Henry of Navarre Handicap at Belmont Park tomorrow. And if its competition Jones wants his charge to have, he should get it in the mile and sixteenth number.

Named today to oppose Warren Wright's chestnut were Charles S. Howard's Mioland, one of the top-notch handicap performers in the country; Hash, from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable; Mrs. George D. Widener's Your Chance, and Gustave Ring's Ringie.

Mioland, top weighted under 127 pounds, figures to offer Whirlaway the sternest opposition in the race itself, but the entry of Hash probably hurt the 3-year-old most of all. Eddie Arcaro, pilot of Whirlaway in the Derby and Preakness, will have to entrust his pride and joy to another boy.

The veteran Missouri trainer probably will fall back on his regular boy, Wendell Eads, but Eads was unable to keep Whirlaway straight in either the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland or the Derby trial at Churchill Downs. Whirlaway, however, has the weight in his favor as he has been assigned only 108 pounds. Hash picks up 120 and Your Chance and Ringie, 116 each.

The race figures to be a prep for Saturday's Metropolitan mile for the older horses, while upon Whirlaway's performance rests the decision whether he'll go Friday in the Peter Pan Handicap, the race in which King Cole, Withers winner, also may start.

Double Play In Ninth Nips Tribe Rally

Cleveland Suffers 2d Straight Loss; Hayes Stars at Bat With Four-for Four

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, May 19.—Rookie right-hander Les McCrabb turned the tables on the Cleveland Indians today as the Athletics made it two in a row over the American League leaders, 5 to 4. McCrabb now has beaten the Indians, Yankees and White Sox and lost to Cleveland and Washington.

McCrabb dropped a 6-5 decision to the Indians on April 30, when Cleveland scored three runs in the ninth after two were out. He was in trouble in the ninth today, too, but with men on first and third and only one out, he got Clarence Campbell to hit a 3-1 pitch into a snappy double play, Benny McCoy to Al Brancato to Dick Siebert.

The A's won in the eighth on Frankie Hayes' infield single that scored Siebert from third.

Hayes Big Noise

Hayes, who had two doubles and two singles for a perfect day at the plate, also batted in the first Athletics' run with a double scoring Sam Chapman in the second and did the same thing again in the sixth to tie the score. He scored one run himself in the fifth when he singled and scored on Pete Suder's double, Suder later scoring on a single by Wally Moses.

Big Al Milnar accounted for two of Cleveland's runs with a home-run clout over the center-field scoreboard to score Rollie Hemsley ahead of him in the fourth. Earlier the Indians had taken the lead on Hal Trosky's first-inning double, scoring Campbell, who had reached second on Al Brancato's error. An error and two singles gave the visitors another run in the second.

Ladies' Day Today As Nats, Chisox Conclude Series

Clark Griffith has created a synthetic ladies day for today as the Chicago White Sox conclude a three-game series with the Nats. The Griffmen will be in Philadelphia Friday for a night game.

Dutch Leonard, winner of three straight before he was knocked out by the Browns in a game the Nats eventually won, will take the mound against Thornton Lee, southpaw nemesis to the Nats.

Hoffman Situation Is All Clear Now

Though he plays for the Cardinal Athletic Club in off season, Jack Hoffman, Eastern High first baseman, is not the Hoffman appearing in box scores of the Cards' games. Bill Hoffman is the Cardinals' first sacker.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Stout Jimmy Dykes, manager of the White Sox, is staging baseball's counterpart of the Hindu fakir's rope trick. There his team is, for all to see, doing very nicely in second place, but what is keeping it up there seems to be a full-blown mystery. It is no less than legerdermain. There are more reasons why Dykes' club should be in last place than second place, and here are a few:

POVICH

The White Sox are the worst hitting club in the league, according to latest averages. As a team, they're batting .251, a figure that is supposed to represent utter futility. They've scored fewer runs, by far, than any club in the second division. They trail the league in hitting doubles and triples and that goes for home runs, too. The entire White Sox team, with its output of only 8 homers in 26 games, has hit only 2 more home runs than Joe DiMaggio.

What, then, are the virtues of Dykes' White Sox, because assuredly they are not in second place by default? It isn't their tight fielding that is offsetting their batting sins, because the records refute any such theory. The Sox are in second place despite their fielding, it would seem. They rate no better than sixth in club fielding at this writing, and the added horrible fact is that they have made fewer double plays than any team in the league.

Nobody's Scared—But They Should Be

Pitching? Well, offhand, Dykes' staff wouldn't seem to terrify any club in the league. There isn't a 20-game winner in it, and in the main it's comprised of cast-offs and discards who weren't good enough for other clubs. Ted Lyons, the most consistent winner, pitches only once a week, and John Rigney, Dykes' No. 2 pitcher, has never quite attained stardom. The other fellows who have been winning for Dykes—Edgar Smith, Thornton Lee and Bill Dietrich—were discharged by, respectively, the A's, Indians and Nats, for incompetence.

They have been doing very well for Dykes, however, and more important, they have been finishing what they started. Dykes' pitchers have gone the full route 19 times in 27 games, which is a record superior to any other staff in the league and one of the reasons, of course, why the White Sox are up there.

But that does not explain everything because, with all due respect to the staying qualities of Dykes' pitching staff, it can scarcely be classed as great—at least not the kind of a staff that figures to win when saddled with the Chicago team's anemic batting average. Yet it has been doing just that, and winning in the face also, of sixth-place fielding behind them.

When you see the White Sox up in second place, you see a team that owns only one player who can be called a stand-out star—Shortstop Luke Appling. The others are merely good journeymen ball players who have never won any special acclaim. But under Dykes' ministrations, they seem to be surpassing themselves.

Wily Nat Bosses Missed Something

Dykes apparently perceived in Taft Wright some talent the Nats' bosses overlooked, because he has stepped very becomingly into the clean-up job in the White Sox batting order and is doing a job of it. There's nothing classic in Wright's stroke, but he keeps meeting that ball, which is important with Dykes. They are willing to abide Wright's fielding which, incidentally, has not been bad at all.

Joe Kuhel is doing all right for Dykes, too. He was willing to trade Zeke Bonura for Kuhel after the season in which Bonura hit .340 and Kuhel didn't hit .300, and apparently Dykes knew what he was about. Kuhel and Wright, batting third and fourth, provide a fair one-two punch in the Chicago batting order, and there never were any complaints about Kuhel's fielding.

A few years ago, when Dykes traded Vernon Kennedy to the Tigers for Gerry Walker, he insisted that the Tigers include a young minor league catcher named Mike Tresh in the deal. The Tigers didn't squawk. They merely wondered why Dykes would be so insistent on a catcher who couldn't catch much, or hit much, either. Now they know, because Tresh has blossomed as one of the better backstops in the league.

Dykes doesn't say his White Sox are the best team in the league. He's willing to wait on that point. But he thinks they're pretty good, and he has them feeling the same way about it. "One thing I can tell you," says Magician Dykes. "We're the happiest ball club in this league every day in the week." Maybe he was giving away his secret.

Galehouse Wins Third As Yankees Bow, 5 to 1

Browns' Pitching Ace Allows Only 4 Hits, One Dickey's Homer; Errors Hurt Losers

By the Associated Press

New York, May 19.—Dennis Galehouse, one of the Browns' winter pitching pickups from the Boston Red Sox, won his third game without defeat today with a four-hit performance that helped St. Louis stop the New York Yankees, 5 to 1.

The only run off the tall, 29-year-old right-hander was a homer into the right field stands by Bill Dickey in the eighth inning.

He pitched four perfect innings without a man reaching first base and five before giving up his first hit, a grounder into right by Frank Crosetti. Coming on the heels of his one-hit shutout of the Washington Senators, today's fine exhibition gave Galehouse a string of 17 scoreless innings since Cleveland counted against him May 11.

The Browns pounced on Lefty Marius Russo for three runs in the first inning, two on Roy Heffner's single with bases loaded, and added two more in the fifth. Russo, in losing his third game against four victories, was the victim of poor support with errors by Joe Gordon and Crosetti figuring in both the scoring innings.

Angott Defeats Lenny Mancini

Cleveland, May 19 (AP).—Sammy Angott, National Boxing Association world lightweight champion, took a split 10-round decision over Lenny (Boom-Boom) Mancini, of Youngstown, Ohio, here tonight with a determined rally in the final round.

Two judges voted for the Louisville scrapper, with Referee Joe Sedley's ballot marked for the 22-year-old Ohioan. At 138, Angott had a 1-pound weight advantage.

There were no knockdowns, although Angott slipped to the floor for no count in the sixth after a rapid-fire exchange of punches.

Mrs. Betty P. Meckley Wins Cup Play at Washington Club

Mrs. Walper Takes Gross With an 82

Mrs. Maxwell Loses Play-Off to Kenwood Player; Champion Nears Course Mark

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Mrs. Betty Palmer Meckley, who plays good golf anywhere but is best over the rolling turf of Washington Golf and Country Club, won the Star Cup there yesterday and took it to Kenwood for the first time since its inception in 1917.

Mrs. Meckley, who once held the District, Maryland State and Middle Atlantic titles in one year, was within a shot of Dorothy White Nicholson's course record 76 as she played the nines in 40 and 37 for a 77.

The Kenwood player deducted four handicap strokes for a net 73, which was tied by Mrs. M. M. Maxwell, of Army and Navy, with 90, 17—73. Under the new District women's ruling the cards of the deadlocked players were matched to decide the title but this method still left the players in a tie and then Mrs. Meckley was awarded the cup by having the lowest handicap.

Mrs. Walper Scores

Mrs. Maxwell, who is still in her first year of competition here, started with a birdie three on the first hole and finished with nines of 46 and 44. The Service Club player was awarded second low net prize.

Mrs. Leo Walper, wife of the former Middle Atlantic P. G. A. champion, won low gross with an 82. The Keifer Cup champion was out in 43 with all fives and fours but played the first seven holes of the back nine in even par figures before running into a ditch and three-putt green on 17 and 18 and finishing with two sixes for a 39 and 82. Manor's teammates, Mrs. Walter R. Stokes and Mrs. L. G. Pray missed a tie by a shot with 83s.

Mrs. Walper also won gross honors in the Keeler Cup play last month at Washington when Mrs. Meckley won the trophy. The former then won the Keefer Cup at Chevy Chase.

The host club took over in the late afternoon prize presentations by furnishing winners of third, fourth and fifth low net; Mrs. Marion Falls, 80-44, 94-17, 77; Mrs. W. S. Masten, 48-44, 92-14, 78, and Ann Reh, 48-45, 93-15, 78. Mrs. Pray completed the prize list with 83-5, 78.

Miss Simmons Picks Up

Barbara Simons, defending champion from Manor Club, who has played little golf this year, did not return a card.

It was the fourth consecutive year in which Mrs. Meckley has posted the lowest score in the Star Cup play but it was the first time she was in the running for the net award. After playing the first nine in 40, starting 4-3 and then sandwiching a half-dozen fives before a par three on the ninth, Mrs. Meckley went to work on the return trip. The new champion was only one over par for five holes when she flubbed an approach on the fifteenth but one putt saved a par five. On the seventeenth a great shot out of the ditch saved at least a stroke or two and she finished with a five for the 37.

The tournament was the first played under the new system of making the pairings by drawing names out of a hat, the one to ten handicapped players together and the 11 to 18. Mrs. W. L. Weible requested any complaints be turned over to the club chairman.

Bob Bensinger Wins as Two Stars Default

Though top seeded Bobby Bensinger advanced with little difficulty to the quarter-finals of the Georgetown Prep Private School Tennis Tournament yesterday, the main event of the day was the default of the No. 2 and No. 3 players in the meet.

Both Cooper and Chewning, of St. Albans, failed to put in an appearance for their matches. Bensinger moved through the second round with an easy 6—0, 6—0 triumph over Joe Genovese, of Gonzaga.

It was Chewning's default to Compton Jones, of Friends, which made possible the most heated set of tthe day in the only quarter-final. Jones dropped the opening set to Sam Doyle, St. Albans' No. 4 player, 6—1. He braced for the second set, however, forcing his foe into 24 games before suffering a 13—11 setback.

Hole-in-One Helps Houghton Sweep P.G.A. Tourney Play

Beaver Dam Professional Shoots Subpar 70 At Mt. Pleasant; Drops Tee Shot on 17th

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Md., May 19.—Al Houghton, Beaver Dam pro, turned the annual Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association's am-pro best ball and professional sweepstakes tournament into a Roman holiday today by smashing through with a twin triumph and hole-in-one at Mount Pleasant.

The veteran Washington shotmaker teamed with a fellow club member, Jesse Baggett, to sweep the best ball event with a 64 and then marched on to capture the pro sweepstakes with a 70.

It was while playing with Baggett that Houghton registered his ace—the third of his career—by lifting a No. 1 iron shot 185 yards on the par 3 seventeenth hole. The ball landed near the edge of the green and after a slight roll trickled into the cup.

The 2 under par round enabled the steady District player to edge past Levy Yoder, Annapolis Roads pro, who fired a 73. Sixty-eight contestants, one of the largest fields to compete in the annual event saw action.

Jimmy Flattery, of Five Farms, and J. J. Newman, Public Parker from Mount Pleasant, placed second in the best ball test with a 67, while three teams tied for third place.

Andy Gibson, Bonnie View, and Barnes fired a 68 along with Bill Schrieber and Bill Cole, both of Mount Pleasant, and the Beaver Dam team of Houghton and Jerry Burch.

Five tied for third place in the P. G. A. Sweepstakes. Gibson, John Bass, Clifton; Tom Doerer, East Potomac Park; Leo Walper, unattached, and Wiffy Cox, Congressional, registered 76s.

Stadium Lights Tested; Griffith, Eynon Are Elated

A test of the lighting system for night baseball, held at Griffith Stadium last night, evoked the admiration of Club President Clark Griffith and Business Manager Edward B. Eynon.

Congratulating the electrical engineers, Griffith pronounced the stadium "the finest lighted field in the Nation." Seven hundred and sixty-four bulbs, of 1,650 candlepower each, illuminated the field from the eight towers which surround the inclosure.

Griffith pointed out the entire absence of shadows on either side of the infield or outfield, and declared it to be the only lighting system which permits fans to see outfield balls as clearly as infield grounders.

The first of seven night games at the stadium this season is scheduled on May 28 against the Yankees.

By the Associated Press

1,052 Entered In U. S. Open June 5 to 7

By the Associated Press

New York, May 19.—One thousand and 52 entries—the lowest total since 1933—have been accepted for the 1941 United States Open golf championship at Fort Worth, Tex., June 5, 6 and 7, the United States Golf Association announced today.

This number, slightly larger than the first count when the entries closed a week ago, includes the unusually large number of 42 players who have earned exemption from the sectional qualifying rounds. The remaining 1,010 players will have to shoot for 128 places in the big tournament at 27 locations on May 26.

The 28 entries from the Middle Atlantic section, Maryland, Virginia and the District, will compete for four places to the championship proper next Monday at Columbia Country Club, over the 36-hole route. Host pro Fred McLeod, the 1908 titlist, is an automatic qualifier, but does not expect to make the trip.

Corpl. Oliver Absent

The field at Fort Worth has been limited to 170 starters. Those who turned in the 30 lowest scores or tied for thirtieth place last year, eight former champions who weren't in that group and the home club professional, Bob Byrnes, can go in without playing in the 36-hole preliminary tests next Monday.

Two of last year's low scorers, Eddie Kirk and Al Huske, did not enter. Another notable absentee will be Corpl. Ed (Porky) Oliver, of Camp Dix, N. J., who wanted to take advantage of the exemption offered to service golfers but said yesterday that he couldn't get away for the trip to Texas.

The complete entry lists for each of the 27 qualifying locations and the groupings for these tests will be announced next Friday.

15 Former Champs

The field will include 15 former Open champion winners. Lawson Little, the defending champion; Gene Sarazen, Ralph Guldahl, Byron Nelson, Tommy Armour, Johnny Farrell and Sam Parks, jr., were among last year's leaders, while Fred McLeod, George Sargent, Walter Hagen, Chick Evans, Billy Burke, Johnny Goodman, Olin Dutra and Tony Manero were exempted from the sectional rounds under a new rule which gives this favor to all former champions who enter.

Groucher's Boy Beats Out Hot Man in Martinsburg Purse

Pays $7.60; Welsh Lad Runs Third

Remolee Captures Secondary Feature, Paying Off $10.80; 6,000 Attend Sport

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 19.—Groucher's Boy, from the Charles Town stable of Dr. H. B. Langdon, gave the natives a chance to collect and cheer today when he drove to victory in the Martinsburg Purse. The 5-year-old son of Groucher, who has seldom, if ever, raced on another track, finished a length in advance of Mrs. W. Anderson's Hot Man. Four lengths farther back came Mrs. G. H. Pearce's Welsh Lad to be third in the field of six going 1 1-16 miles.

Jockey Carson Kirk, a Silver Spring, Md., boy, did the booting on Groucher's Boy and rode him home to the tune of a $7.60 mutuel. The track was labeled "good" and the winner's time was 1:48. A better-than-average Monday crowd of 6,000 saw the program conducted under a warm sun.

Hot Man was first to show on top as Starter Morrissey sent the field away. Welsh Lad and Groucher's Boy were closest, while Mae Beau was being squeezed back. Willie Duord urged Hot Man along in front and for a while it appeared that there would not be a catcher. Kirk was forced to keep Groucher's Boy on the inside and he had to rate his mount when he lacked racing room along the rail.

Welsh Lad made his move at the far turn and then began to fade. Kirk finally found room for Groucher's Boy and shot the gelding up at the bend. Dufford began whipping Hot Man and Kirk also went to the bat. In the drive to the wire, Groucher's Boy displayed a game punch that earned him the decision in "going away" fashion.

The day's secondary feature, fifth on the card, proved a thriller with J. E. Simmons' Remolee charging up on the inside to hang a defeat on Pimlico Lady, the favorite in the field of seven. Jungle Moon was third in this battle. Remolee paid $10.80 and proved the second winner of the day for Apprentice Jockey Martin Bletzacker. He had taken the fourth race with J. Richardson's Flagetta, a $6.40 shot.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GROUCHER'S BOY, $7.60, $3.40, $2.40; HOT MAN, $4.40, $2.80; WELSH LAD, $2.40.

GROUCHER'S BOY, within striking distance from the start while saving ground, came through on the inside entering the stretch and wore down HOT MAN to win going away. HOT MAN, first away, set a good pace, but could not stay with the winner while under punishment. WELSH LAD was in the thick of contention to the stretch and weakened. MAEBEAU was messed about leaving the gate, ran upon BROOMORIA and then tired.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIG STEEL, $18.40, $5.40, $4.00; CHALOTAUR, $3.00, $2.80; ALAMODE, $11.80.

BIG STEEL, steadied when in close quarters on the inside early, came out for racing room and drew out on CHALOTAUR in the closing test. The latter saved ground while setting the pace and held on gamely. ALAMODE improved his position gradually and hung in the final stages. OLIVILO was held safe.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 6:07½. Off at 6:09. Winner, S. H. Hall's br. f. NETTA WOOD, rated while close up on the inside, responded gamely when placed to a drive after coming out approaching the stretch and disposed of SUMMER STOCK to win going away. SUMMER STOCK displaced FERNBRAKE as the leader after a half, was vigorously handled, but could not resist the winner. DUN LUCKY was forced wide in the early stages and was a tired third. WOOD OF ROSES was not a serious factor at any stage.

Injured Chiozza Asks Giants to Retire Him

Memphis, Tenn., May 19 (INS).—Because his injured leg still bothers him, Lou Chiozza will ask the New York Giants to put him on the voluntarily retired list, he said tonight.

Chiozza's brilliant major league baseball career was cut short when he suffered a broken leg in 1939, and his attempt at a comeback last year was unsuccessful. He was then optioned to the Memphis Chicks.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

George (Pappy) Witmer said to tell his public that he has been out of action with an abscessed tooth but will be heard from this week. What we will hear probably will be a loud squawk. Witmer is the Charles Town correspondent for the Jockeys' Bulletin, official paper of the Jockeys' Guild. He was frowning yesterday because he hadn't sent in his column. Somebody suggested that he just send a note, "Ain't got no news." Witmer replied, "That's what I sent them last month." The bugler is improving every day. He is Earl Chesnut from the Charles Town High School Band. Joseph (Reds) Rowland, champion messenger boy around here, is improving every other day. Galt Davis came up from Rosslyn to see his Exhort perform in the fourth race. Alan Clarke came up to check on the Mowlees. Art Brown is tied to the organ at the Capitol Theater and he's probably better off. Track Superintendent Henry Erickson made a game effort to have the track fast yesterday and missed by inches. Miss Mona Manya, who trained Grand Luck, winner of the third race, received from New Jersey a new charge, a 3-year-old filly named Cockleburr. Pimlico Lady was claimed out of yesterday's fifth race. The Waugh Stable took the coholder of the Charles T wn course record. Little Richard Machado is getting to be quite a young man. The Bennings Stable's Clymene isn't ready for the races yet. She is coming along and probably will wing into action in the next 10 days. There's nothing wrong with her appetite. Meetake has a slight leg injury and will be on the shelf for a week. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—LIKLY LAD has plenty of speed and may hold it long enough to defeat a field of this kind. Needs to get off the reserve list, however. BRAIN CHILD gets in light and is better than shown. ROVING EYE to take care of the others.

Second race—EMMA H. might win this at a long price. Showed front-running ability at Pimlico. ADHELMAR won here and is a threat. JAMES PAL showed speed at the big tracks and is ready to be a keen factor in this field.

Third race—LADY ANDY gets in this with 102 pounds and gets rid of some of the classy opposition of those recent races. PASO GRANDE has a good race in the books. BILL K. for the show end.

Fourth race—MISS MAKER seems suited by conditions in this field and needs only the right handling. POMARY was a winner here and is dangerous. SCHLEY AL is not outclassed and should be close.

Fifth race—SARANITE is the class of this field. Turned in a good effort in New England before being shipped down. DEODO and WAR RUMOR are in good form and will be keen factors.

Sixth race—ROMAN BOY is something of a champ hereabouts when in form, and the works say he's ready. LAST BET and TIME HER both have their speed now and will be ready to battle it out if the top one fails.

Seventh race—PAMUNKEY was a winner here last out and should come right back despite the top impost of 115 pounds. LYDE, another winner at this track, is dangerous. WALE SIGNAL should be the third one.

Eighth race—KAI-MIN, from the No. 1 post position, will be a keen factor in this field, and I'm going to take my chances. CURVES' last was encouraging. TRANSDAY for the show end.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take COMMANDERESS, BABY MOWLEE and WANDERING HERO.

Best bet—SARANITE.

New Players Lead Reds to 7-to-3 Victory

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, May 19.—New blood showing its still potent effect, the Cincinnati Reds cut loose with a 14-hit attack against Boston today and with a great show of defensive play, won 7 to 3 for their second straight victory.

Big Ernie Lombardi, Rookie Chuck Aleno and Ernie Koy, recent $35,000 acquisition from St. Louis, sparked the game, Lom's strong right arm cutting down four runners at second, three as they attempted larceny and catching the fourth off base.

C. U. Cancels 1941 Grid Schedule

In a not unexpected move, Catholic University yesterday announced that its 1941 football schedule had been cancelled. The school, which not long ago started a sweeping deemphasis of athletics, said player losses because of the national defense program prompted the cancellation.

The Rev. Dr. James Magner, university procurator, said that a number of the school's athletes had been drafted for military service, others had gone to work in defense industry, and that there were now only 13 available grid candidates.

"We felt it would not be fair to ourselves or our opponents to go through with the schedule," he added. "We just wouldn't have a team. It was something we couldn't foresee when the schedule was aranged."

Games had been scheduled with Mount St. Mary's, of Emmitsburg, Md.; Mississippi, Toledo University, Hardin-Simmons, West Virginia Wesleyan, Detroit University and Miami University. Hardin-Simmons, West Virginia Wesleyan and Detroit already have agreed to release C. U., but Miami was reported loth to cancel.

Census Bureau, Lansburgh Win

Lansburgh and Census Bureau were returned victorious in National Night Softball League play last night at Washington Softball Stadium.

The department store ten turned back Community Businessmen of Mount Rainier, 8 to 5, behind the eight-hit hurling and home-run hitting of Orin Shanks, while Census took the measure of Giant Food Stores, 9 to 7, in a free hitting slugfest featured by the hitting of Jungersfield, who connected for three for four and who also made an unassisted double play.

Errors Help Gonzaga Beat G.W. High, 9-6

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, May 19.—Held to six hits by a pair of opposing hurlers, Gonzaga High combined its safeties with errors and passes to defeat George Washington High, 9-6, on the losers' field here this afternoon. The contest was limited to seven innings by mutual agreement.

The Eagles won the game in the sixth inning when they scored three runs on one hit, two walks and a pair of errors. The lone hit, however, was a circuit clout by Catcher Vincent with a teammate on base.

The two teams were deadlocked at 2-all going into the fifth, when the Eagles drove in four runs on two hits, a walk and two errors. After they added three more in the next frame, the Presidents came back with one in the sixth and two in the seventh, but Carroll quelled the last-ditch rally with two men on base.

Colonial Nine Routs Terrors; Redinger Star

George Washington's baseball team regained the .500 level yesterday by defeating Western Maryland, 11-1, on the Ellipse behind the three-hit pitching of Jack Redinger. It was the Colonials' ninth victory against as many losses.

Redinger, a tall right-hander who has been erratic in most of his previous starts, held the Terrors hitless for six innings to win his second game of the season. Redinger holds a triumph over Virginia.

Sharing stardom with his batterymate was John Koniezewski, reserve catcher, who was behind the plate instead of Jimmy Dowd. The big Koniezewski, a 225-pound football tackle, banged out two doubles and a triple.

Linen Takes 4-3 Victory

A miscue by Marshall Dellinger in the eighth inning enabled First Baseman Applebaum to romp home from third with the winning run as Standard Linen downed Manhattan Auto and Radio, 4 to 3, last night at Ballston Stadium. The victory gave the Linenmen a tie with Senate Beer for the Merchants League lead.

In the nightcap of the doubleheader, Plaza Wine and Liquor crashed the victory column by taming Adam Hats, 9 to 5.

Senate Beer and Standard Linen will clash in a game that involves the league lead Wednesday.

Preview of Joe Louis' Title Fights:

Enraged Louis Knocks Out Conn In Eighth After Early Beating

Challenger Gives Bomber Boxing Lesson for First Six Rounds of Championship Battle

(This is the second of a series of four articles by Bob Considine, presenting a ringside preview of Joe Louis' probable performances against the four challengers who will attempt to lift the Brown Bomber's title during the coming summer.)

By Bob Considine

New York, May 19.—A soft June night. The Polo Grounds. Fifty thousand fans cover the enormity of the towering seats, their eyes focused on the flood-lighted ring that is pitched over second base. In the ring, Arthur Donovan is pounding his right fist into his open left palm, emphasizing his final instructions to a tense little group that stands around him.

Dominating the little crowd is Joe Louis, listening solemnly to the words he has heard Donovan utter so often. His blue and red dressing gown hangs loosely from his sloping shoulders. He is looking down, averting the insolent stare of Billy Conn, who stands pale and frail-looking a few feet from him, contemptuously muttering things at Louis, while Donovan talks.

LITTLE MAN ISN'T THERE

They go back to their corners and rub their shoes in the resin, and munch on their rubber mouthpieces. And the big mob, which has deposited close to $400,000 at the box office to see this fight in which Louis is rated at only a 1-to-3 shot, comes to the edge of its seat.

The bell clangs wildly through the night and there now comes an unearthly quiet over the big place, broken only by the angry cricketing of a hundred telegraph keys in the press rows.

challenger, lightest man to challenge for the title since Georges Carpentier fought Dempsey 20 years earlier, has stepped aside with blinding speed and countered with a brisk left hook that explodes smartly on Louis' jaw.

Louis intently stalks Conn, gets set and waits for Conn to start a punch. Louis knows, of course, that he, Joe, is one of the great all-time counter-punchers. But Conn, well-schooled for this chance of his lifetime, steps away. And Louis is forced to follow him and assume a new position. Conn moves away again, laughs at Louis and jabs him briskly. He is making Joe fight the way Billy wants him to fight.

And so it goes through the first, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth rounds. Conn is giving a memorable demonstration of boxing. He is a reincarnated boxing master. He can do nothing wrong. He has the footwork of a ballet star, the speed of a lightweight, and the debonnair manner of a matinee idol.

CROWD HOWLS WITH GLEE AT CONN'S ANTICS

The big crowd, ever eager to greet the rise of an underdog, and the undoing of a champion, goes over to Conn's side and howls with glee at his every antic. The jabs he pops off Louis' red nose bring great waves of acclaim rolling down from the banked grandstands. His occasional left hooks which land on Louis' face with a loud splat, cause roof-lifting cheers. His wild rights, which miss Louis by a foot or bounce off Joe's kinky head as a tennis ball bounces off a tight racquet, cause ovations.

Conn wins every round up to the sixth, but in its eagerness to hail the new champion-to-be, the crowd is overlooking Louis. All it has noticed is that the Bomber has looked worse than at any time since the abysmal night he chased and couldn't catch Bob Pastor. He looks slow and clumsy, and not very bright. But he is not hurt in the slightest. Aside from the fact that he is silently burning with rage over his inability to tag the zig-zagging streak in front of him, he is as fresh as when he entered the ring. He is waiting . . . as Jeffries waited one night for another cocky Irishman, Jim Corbett.

THE BROWN BOMBER EXPLODES

In the seventh round, Louis' secret rage boils over. The taunting Conn, wriggling out of a clinch, backhands Louis across the mouth and laughs at Joe, but Joe charges in and hurts him with a left hook that doubles Conn up. Billy backs out of trouble, but Louis has won his first round.

In the eighth round the calculating, patient Louis lands another good one to Conn's classic but frail body. Then Conn sees red. The Irish in him explodes. He forgets that he is a boxer. All he remembers is that this fellow Louis has hurt him, and he must hurt back. He throws away all the wondrous boxing skill which had piled up for him a tremendous margin of points. Full of courage he barges into Louis, his fists flying, but never hurting, his mind in a vengeful rage.

It is just what Louis has wanted him to do. Timing beautifully, countering better than ever, Louis unleashes all the pent-up savagery of his attack and knocks out his doughty but too frail and too ambitious challenger with a crushing 1-2 punch.

Hilltop Nine Meets Terps

Handed two successive lickings on its recent three-game Northern invasion, Georgetown University today hopes to bolster its deflated confidence with a victory over Maryland at the Hilltop. The game is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

This will be the second meeting of the season between the intra-District rivals and Georgetown will be out to duplicate the 19-7 walloping it handed the Terps May 10 at College Park.

Max Hunt, stocky right-hander, probably will get Maryland's pitching assignment, while Georgetown is expected to send its ace, Dick Dieckelman, to the mound.

Macs Try for First Place Tie Tonight

The Arlington Macabees, in second place in the Washington-Virginia Baseball League, will seek a tie for first tonight at Ballston Stadium when they clash with Village Motors at 8:15 p. m. A softball preliminary will bring together the Buckingham All-Stars and Potomac Blues at 7:15.

Takoma A. C.'s softball team is seeking a game for Sunday on its own field. Call Manager Jack Ellis at Shepherd 7863.

Western Nine Faces Riders

Western High's last desperate attempt to gain the interhigh baseball playoffs starting May 29 will be launched today as the Raiders clash with Roosevelt in the feature game of a double-header. The game at Roosevelt will be supplemented by Anacostia's invasion of Eastern.

In third place in the standings after a disastrous loss to Tech last week, Western must turn back both Roosevelt today and Central, the second-place club, on Friday in a postponed game to earn a tangle with the leading Eastern nine for the title. Meanwhile the latter is expected to have little trouble as it closes out its season with Anacostia.

Today's opposing hurlers in the headliner will probably be Billy Gray for Western and Billy Garner for Roosevelt. Either Anacostia's Nunnally or Leukhardt will most likely face Eastern's Ken Deavers.

GAO Pitcher Wins One-Hitter

The next-to-last man to face him ruined a 7-inning no-hitter for Less Hoff, of General Accounting Office, yesterday in a 9-0 Departmental League victory over the Arlington Macabees.

Stelle slashed out the Macabees only safety, while G. A. O. sluggers were reaching Stutler for 7 hits.

26 Players On Cub List, Is Complaint

Passeau Restricts Dodgers to 4 Hits As Chicago Pounds Out 14 Safeties

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 19.—The Chicago Cubs, hopping on Hugh Casey and Mace Brown for nine runs in the second inning, buried the erstwhile league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers under a humiliating 14-1 score today before 13,120 spectators.

This was the Cubs' second straight victory over the rollicking Dodgers, and drove them into second place behind the St. Louis Cards, but there is a possibility neither game will count in the standings. Midway of today's game Manager Leo Durocher announced he was protesting both games, contending the Cubs had 26 men on the active list, one over the limit. His protest was forwarded to League President Ford Frick for possible action.

Hugh Casey started for the Dodgers in quest of his sixth straight triumph, but wildness and ineffectiveness sent him to the showers in the big blowup in the second frame.

Passeau Homers

Bill Nicholson and Lou Novikoff walked to start the outburst and Clyde McCullough beat out a bunt to fill the sacks. Lou Stringer walked, forcing in Nicholson. Cookie Lavagetto erred on Bobby Sturgeon's roller, scoring Novikoff and leaving the bases full. Pitcher Claude Passeau then smashed a fast ball into the left-field stands.

Casey left at this point and Brown came in, beginning his stint by walking Stan Hack. Phil Cavarretta doubled and then Dominic Dallessandro made the first out of the inning by flying to center, Hack scoring after the catch. Nicholson drove a homer into the right-field stands for two more runs. Novikoff singled to right and McCullough bunted him to second. Stringer walked, but Sturgeon ended the inning by hoisting a fly to Medwick.

Catholic Pin Meet Tonight

The Washington Catholic League, said to be the largest duckpin loop in the country, will hold its annual handicap tournament tonight at Brookland Recreation at 8 o'clock. The league is divided into seven sections, and tonight the winners of each section will roll a five-game block with total pins determining the championship of the league.

George Harbin, who has been president of the league for the last ten years, will roll in his first tournament tonight, his St. Peter's No. 1 quintet having won the championship of Section D. Holy Comforter No. 3, Section A, last year's champs, did not place this year.

Still another feature of the matches is that William McCloskey, a 75-year-old duckpinner, will be seen in action. Mr. McCloskey is a bowler of long experience and at present maintains an average of 95 in two leagues. A quintet made up of the league officers will act as pacers for the odd team.

Names of the winning teams that will compete tonight, with their captains, are: Section A, Holy Name, Ralph Meyer; Section B, St. Dominick's, No. 2, John Garneau; Section C, St. Aloysius, William Burch; Section D, St. Peter's No. 1, George Harbin; Section E, St. Anthony's No. 2, Harold Harrigan; Section F, St. Joseph's, Paul Del Borrell, and Section G, St. Aloysius No. 2, Francis Collins.

Steel Mills Roaring at 99.9% Rate

By the Associated Press

New York, May 19.—The American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today that the Nation's steel mills, turning out armaments in the greatest flood in history, are operating this week at 99.9 per cent of theoretical capacity.

This is .7 of 1 per cent higher than last week and compares with 96 per cent a month ago and 73 per cent of capacity in the same week last year.

The operating rate of the industry actually ran above theoretical full capacity in May, 1929. For that month the average was 102 per cent because of operating efficiencies not foreseen when "capacity" was originally estimated.

Steel men explained, however, that the actual quantity of steel being turned out in the country today is substantially larger than in the 1929 boom-time, since plant capacity has grown in the past dozen years.

With additions in the last few months, steel plants can now turn out about 86,000,000 tons annually, while in 1929 production was about 63,000,000 tons.

Idle Coke Ovens Resume

Birmingham, Ala., May 19 (AP).—Booming industrial activity placed 210 additional coke ovens in operation in Alabama over the weekend, Republic Steel Corporation disclosed 150 ovens which had been idle at its Virginia mines near here since 1920, had begun production again. They will produce some 6,000 tons of coke monthly.

The Warrior River Coke Co. announced return to operation of 60 ovens at Holt, Ala., inactive for more than ten years. They will furnish between 457 and 600 tons a day.

Curb President Plans to 'Hire On' 2,500 Investment Dealers as Security 'Salesmen'

By Frank MacMillen
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, May 18.—Wall Street, a-seethe for many months with plans to revive the dropping business of its two big market places, the Stock Exchange and the Curb, got a blueprint today of the ideas of handsome George Rea, Curb president, on how to set the 2,500 independent securities dealers of the country to work as "salesmen" for the big New York exchanges.

GEORGE REA

Rea, who said his plan was intended to serve merely "as a basis for discussion and further study," outlined a system which he believed would make it attractive for thousands of stock and bond salesmen in big and small cities throughout the country to seek buyers for the 1,300-odd issues of securities listed on his exchange.

The easiest way to understand Rea's plan is to consider the hypothetical case of shares of ABC Co. stock which are quoted on the trading floor of the big exchange—it hasn't really been an outdoor "curb" market since 1921—$27 a share bid, $29 asked.

That means that someone is willing to pay 27, someone else willing to accept 29 for stock. Until the buyer and seller are brought to the same price, no business is done, and nowadays buyers are scarce, especially for big blocks of securities.

Rea suggests that the seller, seeing no immediate taker at his price or even very near it, might cause to have printed on the tape of the stock ticker that he would offer his 10,000 shares of ABC at "29, less 1 to dealers."

Dealers all over the country, not members of the exchange, would see this notice on the tape, seek among their clients for buyers at the offering price of 29, and keep the $1 a share concession for their services as salesmen. They would not be allowed to resell the stock on the floor of the exchange below 29 so long as the concession to dealers was in effect.

As Rea figures it everybody gets something out of a deal of this sort.

1. The man who offered stock netted for himself a price of $28, or $1 better than the best bid on the floor of the exchange at the time.

2. The floor broker of the Curb market got the commission on sale and purchase of 10,000 shares of stock which otherwise might have stood stagnant for weeks.

3. The independent dealer got $1 a share for finding a buyer.

4. The ultimate buyer (or buyers) of the stock paid only $29, the price he would have paid in any event, since that was the best offering price available on the floor of the exchange at the time.

So much for Rea's ideas for helping the seller to dispose of stock. He also wants to enlist the dealer as an active salesman for the whole list of the exchange's securities, to make the exchange a sort of "perpetual inventory" of securities for the dealers to peddle. He plans it this way:

Dealers themselves, instead of merely waiting for some seller to offer a concession, will be permitted to bid at a price under the regular bid in a way to give their salesmen a profit margin for reselling to the ultimate buyer.

With the same hypothetical case of ABC Co. stock at 27 bid, 29 offered, the dealer himself would be allowed to print on the ticker an offer to buy at 29, less a "dealer" concession, to be agreed on with the offerer. The transaction, when completed, would appear on the tape as a sale of 10,000 ABC at "29, dealer."

Thus, the exact concession to the dealer would not be publicized on the tape, although all would be put on notice that some concession had been made to give the dealer a resale profit margin, and the ultimate buyer could learn the amount of the concession by asking the exchange.

Dealers ordinarily can find no profit in buying securities on an exchange and reselling, because their customers will not pay more than the last sale recorded on the tape of an exchange.

Many financial men think this latter phase of the Rea plan, with its not quite full disclosure of the terms of the transaction, would make it unpalatable to the Securities and Exchange Commission at Washington, which would ultimately have to approve this sort of change in the trading technique.

Stocks Move Narrowly With Trend Hazy; Session Is One of Dullest in 25 Years

New York, May 19.—The stock market today ambled through one of the slowest sessions in the past 25 years without developing any real strength or weakness in any department.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 39.6. Of the 530 individual issues traded, 170 were up, 179 down and 181 unchanged. Transfers of 223,010 shares actually were the smallest for a full stretch since August 26, last, and there have not been many under this figure since 1916. The total compared with 287,060 Friday.

Lack of inspiration in the war news and a slight chill resulting from the Treasury's excess profits tax program presented to Congress tended to restrain the speculative urge, brokers said. While prospects for peace in coal mining controversies brightened, the demand of the railway brotherhoods for a 30 per cent wage increase involving some $168,000,000 annually was an offset here. Rail stocks and bonds, however, generally kept declines to relatively minor amounts.

On the credit side of the market ledger was an estimated jump in this week's steel mill operations to a new record peak so far as tonnage production was concerned, another lift in crude oil prices and expanding demand for copper. Steels, coppers and oils were slightly in front most of the day.

Shares on the upside at the close included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Corp., Phillips Petroleum, Anaconda, American Smelting, General Motors, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Phelps Dodge, United States Gypsum, Du Pont, Pullman and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Public Service of New Jersey edged into new low ground for the year or longer. In arrears also were Santa Fe, New York Central, Eastman Kodak, Sperry, Glenn Martin, American Telephone and Chrysler.

Sale of a stock exchange seat for $28,000 up $1,000 from two transfers May 10, was a moderately cheerful item, in view of the fact memberships previously had dropped to $20,000, lowest since 1898.

In a spotty Curb, modest gains were retained by American Gas, Calamba Sugar, Gulf Oil and New Jersey Zinc. Lower were Creole Petroleum, Electric Bond & Share, Pennroad and Todd Shipyards. Volume here was around 46,000 shares versus 90,000 in the preceding 5-hour session.

Bond prices moved unevenly in quiet trade. Recently favored second-ary rail loans tended to slip, through these losses, as well as others scattered through the list, mostly were minor. Gains, where registered, were also generally confined to fractions and many quotations were unchanged.

Indicative of the cautions pace of trading in the face of forthcoming Treasury financing, a demand for higher rail wages and the general restraint caused by the European war picture, was the turnover of $4,128,800 face value, smallest since September 16, last. Volume Friday, the proceding session, was $5,447,600.

Dipping in the rail list were Santa Fe 4s of '95, Baltimore & Ohio convertibles, Rock Island General 4s, Illinois Central 4¾s, New York Central 5s and Missouri-Kansas-Texas 51 of '62, "A." Texas & Pacific 5s lost more than a point on small trading. Many of the rail issues showed dealings of $30,000 to $100,000 or so each.

Staples Gyrate Erratically on 'Parity' Steps

By the Associated Press

Speculative commodities exhibited some fancy gyrations yesterday, but the key items were higher on balance at the close.

Erratic price swings in the "basic" leaders—cotton and wheat—were associated with prevailing confusion in trading circles over apparent moves by some Government authorities to extend the scope of price ceilings on manufactured products and the willingness of other official quarters to have some farm products attain parity prices this year.

Chicago wheat seesawed to a closing level 1⅞ to 2⅛ cents a bushel higher. At one time prices were ahead 3 cents. Corn ended ⅜ to ¾ of a cent advanced.

Cotton futures were unable to hold new gains of about 75 cents and ended 5 cents to 25 cents lower.

New York futures markets closing at gains included: Cottonseed oil, up .10 to .13 of a cent a pound; silk, up 1 to 1½ cents; straits tin, unchanged to up 12½ cents.

Rubber slumped for losses of .20 to .46 of a cent; most other staples for forward delivery were mixed to slightly lower.

Bank Debits in Week Decrease $9,880,000

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that bank debits in 274 leading cities totaled $9,097,000,000 in the week ended May 14.

This was a drop from the $9,880,000,000 of the preceding week but officials said that the earlier week was swelled by first-of-the-month check transactions. Last week, however, was ahead of the $8,313,000,000 of the corresponding week last year.

Failures' Total Mounts

New York, May 19 (AP).—A 15 per cent rise in industrial and commercial failures last week over the previous week was reported today by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. The mercantile agency said 286 firms failed, compared with 248 the week before and 268 in the like 1940 week.

Louisville Gas Issue Placed on Market

New York, May 19 (AP).—An underwriting group headed by Lehman Brothers offered to the public today a new issue of 780,792 shares of 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock of Louisville Gas & Electric Co. at $27.25 a share.

Holders of the company's present 6 and 7 per cent cumulative preferred shares have priority in buying the new stock, but must exercise this right before May 28.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 19 (AP).—A strong hint that President Roosevelt will approve the 85 per cent of parity crop loan measure passed by Congress last week gave the wheat market a jump of about 4 cents a bushel today from early lows.

Prices had sagged around a cent in early dealings but when the hint came one of the most rapid rises in recent years took place. Quotations at one stage showed net gains of as much as 3¼ cents compared with Saturday's close. May reaching $1.02⅜. All deliveries were at new highs for the past year.

Heavy profit-taking reduced these gains about a cent, but wheat closed 1⅞ to 2⅛ higher than Saturday; May, 1.01¼; July, 99¾@99⅞. Lard and soybean futures reached highs for the past four years and other grains were affected by action of wheat. Corn closed ¾ to ¾ higher; May, 71¾; July, 73⅜@73¼; oats unchanged to ⅜ up; rye unchanged to 1⅛ higher; soybeans, 1⅜ to 2¾ up and lard 12-15 higher.

The hint about Presidential action on the loan bill came from Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, who said the President "wants basic crops to reach parity this year," and quoted the Executive as expressing belief that wheat farmers, taking loans and payments into account, will get parity.

However, some traders continued to express uncertainty as to what the actual loan rates may be considering the possibility that benefit payments may be involved.

Schram Formally Made President Of N. Y. Exchange

New York, May 19 (AP).—Emil Schram, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was formally elected president of the New York Stock Exchange today.

Schram has yet to set the date he will assume the $48,000-a-year post vacated by the drafting into the Army of William McChesney Martin, exchange president for nearly three years.

Announcing the formal election—Schram was chosen and accepted tentatively May 6—the exchange's board of governors indicated his assumption of the office was "subjected to certain considerations having to do with pending plans for the further improvement of the administration of the exchange."

The board of governors at the organizational meeting elected John A. Coleman vice chairman of the board to succeed Robert P. Boylan. Nine new governors took office.

New York Cotton

New York, May 19 (AP).—On the tug of opposing forces cotton prices fluctuated erratically today, closing 1 to 5 points lower.

Against the disposition of traders to interpret bullishly the remarks of Agricultural Secretary Wickard on the parity price loan situation, there was an offset in reports that ceiling prices would be set on combed yarns.

In the course of the volatile session prices at one time showed moderate net gains, but late trading was dominated by hedge selling by spot interests.

Cotton exports yesterday were nil; season so far, 926,689 bales; port receipts yesterday totaled 15,081 bales; port stocks, 3,361 bales.

Oil Prices Raised In South, Midwest

Tulsa, Okla., May 19 (AP).—Two oil companies today raised crude oil prices 10 cents in Oklahoma, Kansas and Illinois and 9 cents in the Texas Panhandle.

It is the second crude price raise for Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas since April 1 and the fourth for Illinois for the same period.

The Shell Oil Co. and the Phillips Petroleum Co. raised prices 10 cents in Oklahoma and Kansas to a top of $1.25. Shell raised its Illinois price to a flat $1.37 a barrel for the 3,000 barrels it buys daily in the Benton district. The new Phillips top in the Texas Panhandle is $1.11.

Clothing Trade Workers Get Pay Increase

By the Associated Press

New York, May 19.—Wage increases for 135,000 clothing workers amounting to $18,000,000 annually go into effect today as a result of an agreement between the Clothing Manufacturers Association of the United States and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

The union announced the increases run from 10 to 13 per cent.

Under the new agreement, minimum pay for the lowest paid of 50 classifications of workers is raised to 85 cents an hour from 77 cents, while the minimum pay for the highest classification, the cutters, is boosted to $60 a week from $55.

Meanwhile clothing store buyers were reported today concentrating on advance purchasing as shortages and delivery problems became more acute.

The situation in cotton goods was highlighted by the Washington announcement that Leon Henderson, price administrator, would impose a drastic price ceiling on various grades of combed cotton yarn.

With prices advancing in the cotton goods market, buyers said orders for cotton dresses, particularly Shantungs, chambrays and seersuckers, were pouring in. Deliveries of these types were slowing.

Heavy orders for beach wear were requiring two to six weeks for shipment and some styles were temporarily withdrawn.

Socony to Heat Offices With Coal To Conserve Oil

New York, May 19 (AP).—Famous old 26 Broadway, where a heroic bust of John D. Rockefeller, sr., commands the lobby, will be heated by coal this winter.

Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., announcing the shift from oil burners, said the action "will reduce the demand for heavy fuel oil in the city by some 12,000 barrels per year."

Also, the company said, it is "investigating the possibility of substituting coal for oil in its refineries on the Eastern Seaboard."

The use of coal is contemplated in order to release oil tankers from the coastal trade for use across the Atlantic. One tanker, it was announced, will be freed by an increase of 5,000 barrels

Opening lead: ♠ J.

Harold S. Vanderbilt and his partner, Waldemar von Zedtwitz, on today's hand. Simple bidding marked the pair's approach to four hearts and simple but necessary safety measures marked declarer Vanderbilt's fulfillment of the bid. He refused to risk a finesse, throwing a possible extra trick away, to make sure of his contract; for he realized that should he try the finesse and should it fail he could be defeated as a valuable entry would be taken from the dummy.

West opened the jack of spades; small was played from dummy and East's king won. A spade was returned, declarer playing low, and West trumped. A low club followed; the jack forced the king, which lost to the ace. At this point Vanderbilt decided to give up the heart king rather than use up one of dummy's entries, the diamond ace or a club ruff, as he needed to reach the board after trumps were exhausted for a diamond discard on the ace of spades.

If he took the heart finesse and it lost a diamond lead, assuming east held the king, would prove extremely embarrasing. Vanderbilt gave up three tricks, the spade king, the ruff and the king of trumps.

It's a peculiar predicament that radio actresses find themselves in with regard to fan mail.

Unlike movie actresses, for instance, their fans don't know what they look like usually, don't know their ages, don't know anything about them except their voices. Because, you see, unlike model little girls, radio actresses are heard, but not seen.

The result is that every day in the mails they get a pretty curious collection of notes. Respectable and long-married radio actresses are always receiving proposals of marriage from college sophomores or the equivalent. If they play certain parts in dramatic serials—like, say, Ann Shepherd, who does the title role in "Joyce Jordan, Girl Interne" on WJSV—listeners assume they are authorities in what they're portraying. And Miss Shepherd gets all sorts of questions about ailments and an occasional request for personal supervision in the removal of tonsils. If the girls are playing villainous parts and get the villainy over in fine style, they receive letters from irate listeners threatening them with all sorts of violence for being so nasty to the noble hero or heroine.

But the greatest blow of all to an attractive actress in the early 20's is to get a letter from someone who presumes, without any question, that she should be addressed as a grandmother.

Hats to Become Less 'Poisonous'

The Public Health Service yesterday announced that the Nation's hat industry has agreed to eliminate poisonous mercurial compounds from manufacture of fur felt after December 1.

Agreement to abolish the health hazard through the substitution of harmless compounds for mercury in processing felt was reached at a conference between manufacturers and union representatives arranged by Surgeon General Thomas Parran.

World Peace Requires Sacrifice, Union Now Author Says in Talk at Willard

Deploring those who seek an easy way to world peace, "a slipshod way," Clarence K. Streit, originator of the Union Now theory yesterday told an audience of 400 at the Willard Hotel that his idea is a solution to the present "nightmare."

Before reiterating to the luncheon meeting of his organization members his basic principles, Streit took a poll of audience opinion on the war situation.

He inquired how many thought it probable that the United States would soon be in the war. The response by raised hands was almost unanimous. He asked how many wanted Hitler defeated. There was unanimous affirmation.

He asked if the audience thought the United States was facing the most dangerous crisis in its history. The audience was almost unanimous in its belief that it was. Only six or eight persons, in response to a question, said they believed that England could win without aid from the United States. Streit said that almost identical reactions to these questions are made to him in every part of the United States.

To the audience he described the United States Constitution as a peace document which had originated as one strong means of settling internal territorial disputes. In a statement given the press he elaborated that "the Constitution of the United States is our forgotten foreign policy, our forgotten peace policy."

He proposed that "the American people request the President and Congress to invite the people of Canada, the United Kingdom, Eire, the Union of South Africa, Australia and New Zealand to form with us a provisional Federal Union modeled broadly on the United States Constitution. Have it do for these seven what the Continental Congress did for the 13 States," he said.

Admiral William H. Standley, U. S. N., retired, presided. Mrs. C. Reinold Noyes, of New York City, and Mrs. Edgar Ansel Mowrer, wife of the newspaper correspondent, spoke in advocacy of the organization's objects.

A NATIONALLY FAMOUS

TROPI-TEX

BRITISH LOUNGE SUIT

WRINKLES AS AN EGG

Many suits look good when they are new. But it takes a couple of wearings to tell if they wrinkle. A plum looks good, too, when it's ripe. But let it get a little old and the wrinkles show it up to be a prune. Tropi-tex British Lounge suits are in the "always fresh" class.

They're tailored of a pure worsted, lightweight fabric that's as cool as a cucumber. The virgin wool used in Tropi-tex suits is gently washed in naphtha baths to preserve the original life, strength and resiliency of the fabric.

Tropi-tex wrinkles less than the average tropical suit, therefore less often to the tailors which means a savings on pressing bills.

Once you wear a Tropi-tex suit and note its comfortable fit and perfect drape, you'll wear one always. Get out of the "prune" class . . . wear Tropi-tex for smartness, comfort and a fine appearance. British Lounge as well as conventional models.
